fore he can hear what has been done. The Bishop has to officially notify him to attend at a certain hour and place on a certain day, and there, in the presence of three clergymen of the diocese, summoned for the occasion, he will read the decision of the court of triers. After this has been done the matter becomes public property. three clergymen of the diocese, summoned for the occasion, he will read the decision of the court of triers. After this has been done the matter becomes public property.

The decision of the court of triers is not final, however, and from it Mr. Geoghegan will have three mouths in which to appeal to the Bishop for a new trial. The Bishop must in that case refer the matter to the Committee on Discipline for the diocese and a new trial may be held. There is a feeling, even among Mr. Geoghegan's friends, that the decision of the court of triers in the trial just concluded is not favorable to him.

John Brodrick, said Her Majesty's Government had not modified its undertaking to support China against a power committing aggression in China, because the latter had granted British subjects permission to make or support a railroad or public work. But, he added, the Government did not anticipate that a question of this description would arise with respect to the British contract for the northern railroads.

The foregoing question and answer arose from the Russian protest against the British railroad contract and the statement of the British Minister at Pekin, Sir Claude Macdonald, that any attempt to repudiate the contract would be regarded as a breach of faith meriting retributive measures. At the same time he recalled Lord Salisbury's assurances of support for China if another power should attempt to force her to repudiate the contract.

See Majesty decided to avoid the long sea trip and go from Folkestone to boulogne-Sur-Mer in a special passenger boat, which has been in a special passenger boat, which has been entirely changed for its 80 minutes' trip. All sorts of staging and platforms had been erected at Folkestone, where Rear Admiral John Fullerton, aide-de-camp of the Upval Aporth Victoria and Abeer stance 1884, and a host of court officials, have been superintending the arrangements. Two trial trips have already been made and everything was in readiness to-day.

A Boulogne-Sur-Mer, in addition to a large force of gendarmes and custom house officials, two battalious of infantry were in readiness, while the entire railroad line to Nice was guarded by soldiers, posted at intervals, supplementing the usual force of railroad employes detailed for duty in such emergencies.

get led to the usual references to the uccessity for preparedness against Germany and to comparisons of the two armies. The members of the House, while compaining of the budget, which totals up 875,000,000 francs, admitted the impossibility of retrenching and the necessity of meeting German increases by corresponding additions. The Minister of War admitted that the French effectiveness was inferior to the German, but it was impossible to remedy this owing to the lack of population. The Minister also expressed the belief that mere numbers, above a certain point, did not add to the effectiveness of the army, as they could only act as reserves, and he was convinced that the fate of a conflict would be decided before the reserves could be employed. It is not necessary, therefore, to be alarmed about neighboring increases. France must meet quantity by quality. The rifles and guns of the French army were without their equals, and the country therefore might await the future with confidence.
