

NEW TAXES FOR BRITAIN, ADDED BY THE COMMONS

Increased Tea and Tobacco Duties Meet With Support—Joseph Hears His Son Speak.

London, April 19.—The widespread interest in the presentation of the budget to-day was evidenced by the crowded state of the house of commons. Long before the chancellor of the exchequer, Austen Chamberlain, rose to make his statement, every place in the house was filled. Joseph Chamberlain was present to hear his son. The former colonial secretary, whose first public appearance it was since his return from abroad, met with a great reception from the occupants of the ministerial benches, while the Nationalists invited him to sing "Rule Britannia," and greeted him with shouts of "Big-tail."

The Budget Statement. Austen Chamberlain rose shortly before 9 a.m. He opened his speech by expatiating on the difficulties of his position, the great wave of prosperity which Great Britain had enjoyed so long having apparently spent its force, and given place to a less prosperous cycle. The industries of Great Britain, especially the cotton industry, were depressed, and foreign competition was keener than ever.

Last Year's Heavy Deficit. The markets in which Great Britain had heretofore been supreme were increasingly threatened by the commercial depression in the United Kingdom was aggravated by the conditions in South Africa. The revenue for 1903-4 was $1,620,000 below the estimate, while the expenditure exceeded the estimate by $1,035,000. The repeal of the duty on wheat had been more costly than anticipated, without affording the comforter the relief expected. The net total deficit for the financial year was $7,015,000.

Mr. Chamberlain proposed to realize $5,000,000 towards the deficiency. The chancellor refused to suspend the sinking fund, considering it bad policy.

Incomes, Tea and Tobacco. Mr. Chamberlain estimated the expenditure for 1904-5 at $714,000,000, and the revenue, on the basis of existing taxation, at $698,200,000, a deficit of $15,800,000 to be made up. He proposed, therefore, to increase the income tax by two cents.

The chancellor of the exchequer also proposed an additional tax of four cents per pound on tea, and a readjustment of the tobacco duties, imposing a duty of 21 cents on tobacco stripped of the molasses limit to 32 per cent, and introduce three or four different rates in the drawback, which he hoped would increase Great Britain's tobacco trade, especially to the colonies. The net gain by these tobacco changes was estimated at $2,750,000.

The increase in income tax would give $10,000,000 additional revenue. The increase in the net duty will amount to $10,000,000, bringing the total estimated revenue up to $718,950,000, or a surplus of $3,850,000.

Mr. Chamberlain's announcements of the increase in income tax and the tea and tobacco duties were both received with loud protests.

Congratulations. On the increase of the tea tax, the Liberal leader, Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, congratulated the chancellor of the exchequer on the healthy of his speech. He said he had discharged a difficult task in a manner to command general admiration. Mr. Chamberlain, after considerable discussion, adopted the increased tea and tobacco duties by majorities of 72 and 54 respectively.

Last year's government reduced the tax on incomes from one shilling and three pence to eleven pence. The addition of a penny now brings it up to twelve pence, and the tax on income is six pence per pound, to which Mr. Chamberlain proposes to add two pence.

IMAGINARY BRITISH ATTACK. Brussels, April 19.—The orders given by the minister of war for the spring manoeuvres to defend the River Scheldt against an attack from the British squadron, have caused severe criticism. It is thought that the minister of war could have issued these orders without mentioning the name of any power, more especially in view of the present agitation regarding the Congo Free State.

A. H. ERB DEAD. Elmira, April 19.—A. H. Erb, ex-warrior for the County of Waterloo, died suddenly from pneumonia at his home this evening.

KING IS HOME AGAIN. London, April 19.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra arrived in London from Copenhagen at 6:45 p.m. to-day and drove to Buckingham Palace.

Was Given $1200 Damages. St. Catharines, April 19.—In the case of Higgins vs. the Hamilton Electric Light Company, Higgins was awarded $1200 damages.

Joseph Protests. Guelph, April 19.—Last night the council made a vigorous protest against the scheme to divert the provincial sale to the route, and appointed a special committee to deal with the matter.

LOCAL BREWING. Charles Elliott of Bradford has been appointed a member in the customs. North Toronto Orange County Lodge annual at home will be held in St. George's Hall tonight.

The license commissioners will meet Monday to consider the applications for licenses for the coming year.

The late Thomas H. Baker left an estate of $525,000 to his daughter, Catherine Lynch, who is to pay $100,000 to her mother.

Credit sale of farm stock and implements Thursday, April 21, 1904, at one o'clock. H. E. Wood, lot 2, Dundas-street, Kingston.

Wound Round Shaft. Stratford, April 19.—A serious accident befell Fred Baker, proprietor of the Wool Stock Mills, here this morning. While engaged in adjusting a belt, set screws on a shaft behind him caught in his coat and wound him round the shaft. The strain of the shaft threw the belt off, leaving Mr. Baker suspended, but not before he had sustained severe injuries. He was taken to the hospital, where it was found his back was bruised and torn, left arm broken and his shin injured. It is feared he may be injured internally.

STORY OF A GAMIN. Career of Spiv Started Humbly, But Ends With a Fortune.

London Express: A remarkable story was circulated yesterday concerning Henry Bagster, a London gamin, who is known as "Spiv."

It was stated that on Sunday, when he comes of age, he would be entitled to a little of the money he had accumulated. "Spiv" stood shivering in the cold wind which swept thru the streets of Westminster when seen yesterday near Victoria Station.

His thin, worn summer suit of navy blue was little protection against the seething wind, and his teeth chattered. But there was the grand air of a man with 10,000 in the bank about him, and he looked like a millionaire.

"I haven't got hold of it yet, for I don't come of age till Sunday, and I don't suppose there'll be much moving before Tuesday—holiday times, you know," he explained. "But I've put it in the hands of Mr. Philip Conway—him as wins the cases at Westminster—poor man's friend, they call him, and 'll fix it up."

"Spiv" rubbed his pimpled chin and became reflective. He is a smart lad of his kind. Among a group of gamins, his was the cleanest face, and there was a spry look about him. His old brown cloth cap was of good cut, his worn boots seemed to have had a respectable origin. He was the gentleman of the group, and spoke with contempt of the loungers hanging around him, who are, nevertheless, his "pals."

For seven years or more "Spiv" has haunted Victoria Station. "Always in London in winter," he said; "get a bit by sellin' papers, carryin' bags and puttin' folks in omnibuses and cabs, 'an' anythin' else."

"In the summer I've bin to races, done a bit of 'outin', sellin' cards and a bit of stamin' 'em. Got locked up six months ago for assault; only came out on a Saturday. Always bin restless. Guess it's too late to turn to anythin' now."

"Spiv" was the son of a publican at Brighton, who left it, it said, £15,000 or £16,000, which on his widow's death some years ago, was halved between "Spiv" and his sister.

"She's livin' in Algiers," said "Spiv"; "married a man with £3000 a year, and they won't let me know 'er address. One day a lady stopped me in the street near 'ere; it was 'er. They've tried to get me up, but it didn't seem much good. I got back 'ere."

"They sent me off for Canada once," said "Spiv," with a touch of scorn, which was explained when he added: "Herd want to send me to a philanthropic institution. Fancy that, for a man of my prospects!" and "Spiv" expectedly turned salmon and other fine-dressed stuff which they had stolen from a van. With their few remaining links they set out for Brighton, but at Bait-ham they were "nabbed" while taking "swigs" of condensed milk from one of the "lads."

"Canada" knows that he might have done better. When he was eleven he was sent to Ealing Grammar School, but he did not stay long. He was a "run-in" on various occasions for loitering at Victoria, and little things that add variety to the life of the common lodging-house gamin.

"bolted," and went back to Brighton. Then he fled from home, and transported to London, and sank into a grain of the streets.

Mr. Barnett, the Westminster Court missionary, has tried his hand on "Spiv" for some years, and now says he will not try him again.

"I can do nothing with him," he says. "Once I got him into a home at Drayton, and he promised to stay there, but a few days before Ascot races he disappeared."

After the races he went back, and said that he would not stay, but he would give them a subscription, and he handed over 15s.

Another time Mr. Barnett took him away from the police court to give him a fresh start. "Spiv" said that he would go and get his things from the common lodging-house in Stratton-ground. Mr. Barnett waited outside for him for twenty minutes, and then found that he had scaled a fourteen-foot wall at the back and ran away.

"He's got good points," said Mr. Barnett yesterday. "He always tells the truth, but there's something wrong."

"Spiv's" explanation is that "restlessness" has caused the trouble. But he goes no good to him. "I don't drink because I like it," he said, "but only for company. I'm always in bad health through it."

And what will "Spiv" do with his money? The Express representative pointed out to him that £3000 well invested would bring in perhaps £300 a year.

"Canada" or "ousse Property." "Not more than that," said "Spiv" in surprise. "Well, I dare say I could live on that." He was not joking, he meant it seriously.

"Yes," he agreed, "they'd give it from me if I stayed round here." The direct "gams" around him grinned at the words.

"Canada" now I've got my money. I thought they were trying to get me out of the way so that I shouldn't get my money when they wanted to send me there be-

KNOX CHURCH TO BE SOLD. NEW SITE NOT DECIDED.

One-third Proceeds and One-half Future Revenue to be Used in Downtown Work.

The Toronto Presbytery yesterday decided that Knox Church is to be sold. The question of sale was discussed from every viewpoint. Rev. J. M. P. Scott, as convener of the special committee, so recommended and unanimous opinion was in favor of a removal. It was also conceded that something should be done toward filling up the gap which removal will cause.

One difficulty confronting the assembly was the matter of a new location. The ministers in the northern section protested against the new church being located too near their own, and it was felt that considering the even distribution of Presbyterian churches, the proposed edifice would be likely to invade a district already occupied.

The real discussion, however, came with the arrangements as to the sum to be used in keeping up some kind of mission work in the business section of the city. After a good deal of argument it was decided that one-third of the proceeds of the sale should be devoted to downtown work. One-half also of the revenue from the church's property will go for the purpose. It will be decided at a future date whether the downtown work will take.

Some members favor a mission and others a judicious expenditure of the money as serving the purpose better. This, however, will be decided at a future date. As decided at the annual meeting of the congregation in January, the least figure which will be considered is $200,000.
