CONQUEROR OR EXILE

Speaker Calls Canadians His Fellow-Citizens at This Time.

Hon. James M. Beck, the pioneer champion in the United States of the cause of the allies against Germany, gave good and substantial reasons for the faith that is in him at a Canadian Club luncheon in St. James' parish house yesterday.

He aroused real enthusiasm by his friendly sentiments, and in opening addressed those present as his fellow-citizens. His learned friend, beset by technical wrong, but he said he used the expression advisedly. As long as this war lasted, as long as soldiers of the two countries were fighting together, as long as the women were making the sacrifices they did, as long as the two flags were entwined, so long as the nations were together in the great venture for the cause of democracy, he would regard Canadians as fellow-citizens. There was a nobler word whose propriety would not be disputed which he would borrow from Shakespeare in the address of the great King before Agincourt to the good yeomen whose limbs were made in England:

"We few, we happy few, we band of brothers.
"For he who sheds his blood with me today,
"He is my brother."

Nothing was further from his thoughts than to boast before England, Canada and France of what the United States had done, and he asked to be acquitted of any intention of that kind in mentioning a few facts of a tangible kind. The indemnity awarded France in 1870 was one billion dollars, and it staggered the world. The United States in six months had put at the disposal of the allies seven times that amount. Congress had appropriated twenty-one times as much. The entire capital wealth of the United States was 250 billions, and one-fourth of this had been appropriated as a start. Divisions had all died away, and they were in fact as well as in name the United States of America. He believed President Wilson's reply to a little group of which he himself was the spokesman, was the utterance of a sincere mind when the president declared, "America will never stop in this fight until the great ends for which it was begun have been accomplished."

Excess of Sentiment.
There was usually an excess of sentiment in a democracy, and he warned them against any false idea of magnanimity. He ventured the prediction that Kaiser Wilhelm in twelve months would either be a twentieth-century Caesar or a dethroned exile. There was a great danger that in the presence of such unusual butchery they might accept a congress in which that case there would come to the Kaiser all the prestige of a conqueror, and the residue of power of the new trials and even some of our allies would go to him.

He referred to the career of Frederick the Great, who in the year of the seven-years' war was far nearer defeated than the Kaiser at present. No war was won until it is won. They must depend on what St. Mark called the impendable. Had there been any appreciation of the fact that this was a moral universe when Frederick raped Silesia there would have been no rape of Belgium. The nations should have risen and stamped out the author of this false idea of peace France and England stopped because there had been enough blood shed. "When a bully starts on to bully the world there is only one thing to do, and that is to thrash the bully. Having cornered the Hohenzollern beast, let's cage him," he pleaded amid great applause.

J. S. Fairly occupied the chair.

An Instantaneous Wrinkle Remover

The average woman is always surprised to learn, after experimenting with all sorts of patent so-called "wrinkle removers," that the most effective remedy is a simple face wash which she can make herself at home in a jiffy. She has only to get a tin of pure powdered sassafras from her nearest druggist, and dissolve it in half a pint of witch-ham. Apply this refreshing solution to the face every day for a while. The result is charming-marvelous. Even the very first treatment wrinkles the face less plainly and the face has a nice, firm, comfortable appearance. It is thoroughly delightful and lends self-confidence in one's appearance. This harmless home remedy is used by thousands of women to obliterate the unwelcome signs of time.

HON. JAMES M. BECK,
speaker before the Canadian Club. He has been strongly pro-ally since the beginning of the war. He is a former assistant attorney-general of the United States.

UPPER CANADA COLLEGE PRIZES ARE GIVEN OUT

Representative Gathering Present to Witness Annual Event of Great Interest to Students.

Upper Canada College was the scene of a large and representative gathering Friday afternoon to see the annual distribution of prizes. Sir John Hendrie occupied the chair. The acting principal, J. H. Craik, read the long list of honor of college men serving at the front while the audience stood. Sir John Williamson, on behalf of the board of governors, said they regretted the departure of Principal Auden, but that they considered the college was to be congratulated on having secured the services of so splendid a man and so able a scholar for the new principal as Major W. Grant. Major Grant has been serving at the front, but has been released from military service on account of an accident, and will be back to take up his new duties in December.

Lady Hendrie then presented the form prizes to the winners, after which a beautiful bunch of roses was given to her by one of the small boys.

Col. Denison, in presenting the Parkin prizes in Greek and athletics, said he had attended just such a gathering in that same college 70 years ago. John Small presented the prizes that were given by the old boys of U. C. C. Sir William Mulock, in giving the prize for Latin prose to his grandson, said it was one of the greatest honors the boy had done him. The Harris prize for history was presented by Rev. Father Minelin.

The Cockburn cup for shooting was given by Major-General Logie, while Major Arnold gave the life-saving medals and certificates. Both gentlemen remarked that they had been chosen to present prizes that had nothing to do with scholastic ability, which was full of meaning, as they were not noted for their academic qualifications.

Mrs. Williams of Ridley College, St. Catharines, being absent, A. E. Good writing, which was given by the St. Catharines L.O.D.E. Sir John Hendrie presented the lieutenant-governor's and governor-general's medals. Archdeacon Cody gave the Herbert Mason gold and silver medals to the boys of highest character in the school, and the highest character in the school, Sir William Hearst and Prof. Baker also presented prizes.

The following are some of the winners: Governor-general's medal, W. M. Thompson; Herbert Mason gold medal, L. B. Hardaker; Herbert Mason silver medal, E. C. Shurt; lieutenant-governor's medals, G. T. Glazebrook, W. E. Huckle; cup for shooting, P. R. Wilson.

Acting Principal Craik then thanked the Lieutenant-Governor and Lady Hendrie for their presence and the students did the same with three hearty cheers. The National Anthem closed the program.

"This is the 19th of October, and we have received our wages for September but not the slightest increase. We are all out of the money and it would not surprise me if there was more trouble. We returned to work in good faith believing that the company was acting in the same spirit, but they have not."

ALL NEWS TO MR. CAREY

Had Not Heard of His Probable Appointment as Under-Secretary of Labor.

D. A. Carey, referring to the Ottawa despatch which stated that he would probably receive the appointment to the under-secretaryship of labor, said that it was all news to him. The despatch further intimated that besides being an excellent representative in the administration of labor, Mr. Carey would increase what some people thought to be an insufficient recognition of the religious faith to which he belongs. The under-secretaryship would also have a seat in the parliament, but not in the cabinet.

TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant. This preparation is a delightful toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.
