Bluenose Again Wins Championship With Wind 30 Knots

COLUMBIA BEATEN IN FINAL

Defender Leads Challenger Over the Greater Part of Course.

THIRD VICTORY

Bluenose Again Becomes the Champion of the North Atlantic Fleet.

Halifax, Nov. 1.—Angus Walters, of Lunenburg, master of the champion Bluenose, pride of the Nova Scotia fishing fleet, for the third successive time piloted his charge to victory in International Schooner Races, when today the champion led the challenging Columbia, of the U. S. A., over the course and ended the 1935 series.

Out of three starts the champion won two. One race was called off, and on another day the schooners did not start, owing to lack of wind. It was a five Bluenose victory, with an American boat not being able to make a score.

With the wind blowing 30 knots an hour at times today, the Bluenose literally tore through the rough waters of the Atlantic and was never headed by the challenger.

Thus three American boats have been unable to wrest the North Atlantic championship from the Bluenose. Two of the American boats were specially built to lift the international cup.

Bluenose Across First

After the pouring rain of the previous night, the sky was overcast and windy when the schooners went down the harbor to "tune up" for the start, but as nine a. m. approached, blue sky began to appear in patches and an ideal racing day was predicted.

The five minute gun found both schooners behind the line with all sails set except foretopsails. They were circling swiftly around one another seeking the advantage for a quick dash across the line on the gun. They came together about fifty yards back of the line and it looked as though Bluenose would beat the gun across the mark.

Time—Bluenose—9:00.27. Columbia—9:00.40.

The schooners got away to a fine start, and running almost before the wind, scudded away for the first mark, six miles distant. For a moment soon after the start, the Bluenose lost her lead. The Columbia came abreast and almost a length ahead, when the Bluenose got a better wind and again jumped into the lead. At 9:15 the Bluenose seemed from the shore to have a length or more on the Columbia and was bearing away for the inner automatic buoy.

Number 2 course means a run of six miles to the inner automatic, a broad reach of six miles to the southeast automatic buoy, a jibe and run of nine miles to Sanbro gas buoy, and a seven-mile beat home by way of the inner automatic buoy.

Columbia again flew the Stars and stripes from her main, with staysails and jibs topsails set. She was moving much faster through the water than the Bluenose under four lowers only. The fifth-minute preparatory gun found both schooners in the cove back of the breakerwater from which the start is signalled. The Columbia was an advance, with the Bluenose repeating every move made by the challenger.

Angus Scores

The five-minute gun found both schooners on the starboard tack, Columbia, close hauled, heading up the harbor, and the Bluenose with her sails, killing down the line. Two minutes before the starting gun, the Columbia squared away and headed for the line. The Bluenose came about a moment later. She crossed the line sensibly ahead and to weather of the challenger. Angus had again scored.

The Columbia, with mainsail broad, seemed to be overtaking the defender. At 9:30 the schooners were off McNab's Island, reaching for the first mark, with the Bluenose a quarter of a mile to weather.
