(Hardware and Metal, July 15)

The thirty cent advance in the price of flaxseed during the week, coupled with the placing of an embargo against further shipments from the Argentine, has proved a factor in the sharp advance in flaxseed oil, ranging from seven cents to fourteen cents per gallon. The question of supplies is increasingly difficult, and a recession in present prices before new crop seed is available is not looked for. Crop reports as yet are rather indefinite to have a direct bearing on the market, but the reports from the West have taken on a somewhat pessimistic tone. The future cannot be determined under unusual conditions existing and that may develop. Turpentine has also attained higher levels, and other three cent advance being made in some quarters, while others have withdrawn prices altogether until further supplies are available. Revised prices have been issued on wrought iron pipe providing for an advance. Pipe fittings have also advanced. The market for valves, couplings, and cast iron pipe, both malleable and cast, has been affected. Valves, couplings and bath cocks are all now selling on a new scale of discounts which bring net prices to higher levels. Some shipments of ingot tin have come to hand, but have been absorbed. Supplies to arrive are largely sold, though when further shipments will reach Canada is not known definitely. Prices are holding high, and offer of as much as $1.20 per pound have been made in an endeavor to secure spot stocks. Lead remains very firm, and spelter holds steady, while antimony records an advance of two cents per pound under increased demand. A revision in values on solder has been made, and quotations now ruling are substantially below those prevailing for some time past. Lead pipe is holding steadily at advances established last week, and other manufactured lead products are unchanged. Many miscellaneous though important lines in the hardwareman's stock have been changed during the week. In the list will be found blow torches, fire pots, thrasher endless belts, semi-rotary wing pumps, sweeping compound and tie-out chains, all of which have registered advances.

DIED IN MAINE

Lemuel S. Day died in New Gloucester, Me., recently. He was born March 17, 1865, and went to New Gloucester from his home in New Brunswick in 1888. He has served on the school board several times and had been a trustee of the public library for quite a number of years. He was a member of the Masonic lodge. He had been foreman of the section on the M. C. R. R. ever since going to New Gloucester. His wife and one daughter survive.

In Thinking of Clothing

Did it ever strike you that there are some kinds that don't cost any more money, that are nicer, better and more stylish than others? That some firms make a study of their wares and lend all their energies to secure just such goods? The better kind at not more cost. That's our policy. Come in and let us prove it.

Some new raincoats—trench style—at $15.00, are decidedly good value.
