The Folks We Dread to Tell

By RUTH CAMERON

I almost every family there is some person whom all the others dread to tell when anything goes amiss.

Once in awhile it is the mother; sometimes it is a domineering son or daughter; far more often it is the head of the house.

A friend of mine fell and broke her arm. She was a middle-aged woman and was quite ill with the pain and shock.

Her husband was absent at the time, and she decided not to let him know about the accident until his return. The day before he was to arrive she became so frightened at the thought of telling him that she never went up to a dangerous pitch, she actually became delirious, and the nurse heard her murmur over and over again, "What will Harry say?"

Of course, the fall was entirely an accident—one does break one's arm on purpose. And yet the thought of telling "himself" actually frightened the poor lady into a delirium.

This case is extreme, but it illustrates the queerest feature of the whole matter—that it is not only the things for which they are to blame but even the most palpable accidents which the other members of the family dread to tell to the fault-finding one. The expression, in spite of all warnings, gouges a piece out of the hall paper; a neighbor puppy digs up the newly planted flower-bed; the butcher sends up a bad piece of meat—surely for none of these things is the mistress of the house culpable, and yet her dread of telling him about the unfortunate accident clouds over her whole day.

Once upon a time there was a man who, although at heart a very kindly person, had gradually drifted into this attitude. One morning the housemaid broke an expensive vase, and as usual, his wife began to dread the terrible moment when she should have to tell him. She was not feeling very well and the dread wore on her nerves more than usual so that by night she was almost sick. As it happened, her husband was in a particularly good humor that evening, and when she finally summoned up courage to tell him, he said very pleasantly, "Well dear, that's too bad. You always liked that vase. Do you suppose I could find another one for you?" Thereupon, his wife, who had expected an entirely different response, actually burst into tears from sheer relief. Explanations followed, during which the husband, being a man of unusual perception, realized the attitude he had been taking, and solemnly resolved to be more reasonable in the future.

I doubt if any of these dreaded folks realize how much happiness they spoil. Oftentimes they are led into this attitude by their women folk's readiness to apologize and cringe in regard to any unfortunate happening. Tyrants of any sort, as I have often said, are partly other folks' fault.

Are you in the least degree such a tyrant?
Or are you doing anything to help make one?

KEEPS THE SKIN CLEAR AND SOFT

Humors of the skin are especially prevalent in the spring. There is nothing more annoying than to have irritation of the skin and disfiguring eruptions breaking out to mar the beauty of the complexion.

Internal treatments are slow and unsatisfactory in results, but you can depend on Dr. Chase's Ointment to heal up the sores and bring lasting relief. Unlike pore-clogging powders, Dr. Chase's Ointment cleans out the pores of the skin and makes it soft, smooth and healthy. It is a food for the skin, and a beautifier of the greatest value.

Eczema, salt rheum, psoriasis, chafing and all forms of itching skin disease soon yield to the soothing, healing influence of this well-known ointment. It is indispensable in the home where there are babies and young children.

MORNING LOCALS

J. E. Tighe, business agent, and Fred Daley, ex-president, were last evening selected as delegates by the Longshoremen's Union here to attend the convention of the international organization at Port Huron next month.

The mayor, the commissioners, the city engineer and Mr. West, a visiting engineer inspected the Loch Lomond water extension yesterday afternoon. Two automobiles conveyed the party to Silver Falls, Lake Lattimer and Loch Lomond where they enjoyed their supper. The complete tour of inspection was carried out in spite of the downpour of rain.

Ten acres of land fronting on the Old Loch Lomond road have been sold by Joseph McHugh to Henry B. Peck and by Mr. Peck to Rev. W. M. Rochester. Mr. Rochester is traveling secretary for the Lord's Day Alliance in Canada.

WHIPPING UP TIRED NERVES

The driver reaches his destination sooner by whipping up his tired horse, but no one supposes that the whip imparts strength to the horse. It merely causes the more rapid expenditure of strength.

And so it is with stimulants. When the system is run down the use of stimulating medicines merely calls forth the additional expenditure of the waning vitality and in reality hastens the breakdown.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is not a stimulant. It does not give rise to false hope by whipping up the exhausted system. It is a true tonic and cures by gradually and naturally building up the feeble, wasted nerve cells and adding new, firm flesh and tissue. You need not expect any startling results from the first dose, but can be certain that the benefits to the body are thorough and lasting.

LA MARQUISE DE FONTENOY

Marriages For Titles—
Visits of Monarchs—Lord
Kitchener in Egypt

(Copyright, 1912, by the Brentwood Co.)

Emperor William is endeavoring to secure legislation similar to that existing in France, by which divorced women forfeit the name, and above all the titles, of their former husbands.

The reason for this is that his attention has been called to the extraordinary number of marriages which have taken place of late between penniless and broken no-ies and women whose wealth is derived from questionable sources. Such marriages, popularly known as name marriages, are rarely of long duration, the transaction often being a purely commercial one.

Some of the most historic and illustrious names, obtained in this fashion are borne and paraded by women of unfortunate character, which certainly does not enhance the prestige of the German aristocracy.

The murder of Countess Frieda von Strachwitz, who once belonged to the Berlin half-world, seemed to recall that she had procured the grand old name and title in very much the same fashion. The Strachwitz family, of Silesian origin, dates from the end of the twelfth century, and derives its title from the Holy Roman Empire which may well explain their wrath when this extraordinarily humiliating union took place.

According to French law, a divorced woman, even when she is the petitioner and the innocent party, loses the right to use her former husband's name. In the case of an American girl, who secured a divorce from her Jewish husband and the custody of the children, she resumed her maiden name, prefixed, however, with "Mrs." instead of "Miss."

One of the favorite topics of conversation in the United States of recent years, is the question of exchange of visits between the president and foreign rulers. Visits such as these constitute a sort of obligation upon a European monarch, after his accession to the throne, and among his complimentary visits of this kind he invariably includes one to the president of the French republic, who returns the courtesy in due course.

The chief magistrate of the Argentine republic, Saenz Pena, determined to follow European example, and intimated recently his intention of making a friendly descent upon each of his brother potentates of the Old World. He had, in fact, completed all arrangements for the transatlantic trip aboard a man-of-war escorted by a squadron of cruisers, when he received official notice from the kings of Spain, Italy and Belgium, that it would be impossible for them to return his visit for six or seven years; while the other sovereigns, including the Kaiser, King George and the Czar, offered no hopes of any return visit at all. This seems to set a precedent that should go far towards deciding the question of any interchange of visits between the president of the United States and European rulers.

Every student of modern history is aware that on the eve of the bombardment of Alexandria, the English government invited France to join in the attack, and in the subsequent military occupation of Egypt. The French fleet lay at Prince of Wales for having done so. But

Daily Hints For the Cook

ANGEL CAKE.
Whites six eggs beaten stiff, three-fourths cup granulated sugar. Stir in slowly one-half cup of flour with one-half teaspoonful cream of tartar sifted together several times. Flavor to suit the taste. Bake in an ungreased pan. When done invert pan and let steam till it drops out of pan.

CREAM SALAD DRESSING.
Beat one cup of thin sweet cream and add two level teaspoons of cornstarch made smooth in a little cold water. Cook until the mixture thickens and then two minutes longer. Add the well beaten yolks of three eggs, cook a minute, take from the fire and add a tablespoon of melted butter, half a level teaspoon of salt and cool. When cold add two tablespoons of vinegar and stir until well mixed. Use this dressing for vegetable salads.

MARYLAND CHOCOLATE DROPS.
For the cream beat two cups of sugar and 14 cups of milk for five minutes; add two teaspoons of vanilla, beat for half an hour until stiff enough to hold and then make into balls. Now take a half pound of unwetted chocolate, grate it and steam it over a tea kettle. Drop the balls of cream when hard one at a time into the hot chocolate, using two forks at a time to take them out. Scrape off the cream that drips from them and place the balls on a buttered dish. Keep in a cool place.

Mancini absolutely refused; chiefly, it is said, because the British government stipulated that the army of occupation should be under the supreme command of an English general; and when Cripst not long afterwards met the Prince of Wales at a garden party at Marlborough House, the prince expressed to him the opinion that Italy, by refusing to join in the occupation of Egypt, had let slip a valuable opportunity. Both France and Italy bitterly regretted the pusillanimity of their respective governments in 1882; but for which they would be sharing today in the possession of the country bathed by the beautiful Nile.

Queen Wilhelmina, who last week paid her first state visit to Paris since her marriage, thus returning the call made up on her by President Fallieres at Amsterdam, showed that she was proud of her French ancestry. Among the deputations which she received during her stay, the one to which she accorded most attention was that from the French town of Orange.

In the Department of the Vaucluse, and which consisted of the mayor, the parliamentary representatives, and some of the prominent citizens.

The former principality of Orange passed, in 1282, to the House of Nassau, through the marriage of Count Henry of that ilk with Claude de Chalon, sister and heiress of the last French Prince of Orange. This Count Henry is the direct ancestor of Queen Wilhelmina.

The principality and town of Orange were surrendered to France in 1660; but by the treaty of Utrecht, in 1713, the empty title was conceded by France to the House of Nassau, now reigning in (Continued on page 8, seventh column.)
