

Notice of Withdrawal of Advance-of-Publication Prices of THE NEW EDITION (the 11th) OF THE

ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA

If you have already received a form for making application you should send it promptly to the Cambridge University Press (Encyclopædia Britannica Department), Toronto, or make use of the form at the foot of this page. If you have not yet availed yourself of the opportunity to learn the full particulars of the New Edition, you are urged to apply for the prospectus at once.

The New Encyclopædia Britannica is a complete and modern exposition of thought, learning and achievement to 1910, a vivid representation of the world's activities, so arranged and classified as to afford a maximum of accessibility, and embodying everything that can possibly interest or concern a civilized people.

The sum of human knowledge all that mankind has thought, done or achieved—all of the past experience of humanity that has survived the trial of time and the ordeal of service and is preserved as the useful knowledge of to-day. Of the human race and its endowment of persons, histories, languages, literatures, arts, sciences, religions, philosophies, laws, industries, and of the things and ideas connected with these—all is included that is relevant and everything explained that is explainable. In brief, to borrow an illustration from the engineer, the contents of The Eleventh Edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica constitute a cross section of the trunk of the tree of knowledge as it stood in the year 1910.

A new and modern work of reference adapted to modern needs. The appearance of a fresh and original edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica has been welcomed by scholars and by book-buyers generally throughout the English-speaking world as a prime need of the day. Those who have never found any work of reference exactly suited to their needs will find that the new edition will bear the closest scrutiny, not only from the point of view of its scholarship, but because of its efficiency as an intelligent recorder of the newer activities of the world of thought, research and experience, activities which are dealt with adequately in no other work. The Eleventh Edition is not a book only for the erudite, but more particularly for the average reader, being a complete inventory of extant knowledge, and an epitome of the world's progress reduced to an A B C simplicity of arrangement.

Protected by copyright in every civilized country in the world.

When the Ninth (the last completely new) Edition of the Britannica was published, 1875-89, the state of the copyright laws of the United States was such as to afford no protection to works which had primarily been issued in another country. The consequence was that, in common with other English books, the Encyclopædia Britannica was "pirated", and garbled and mutilated reprints purporting to be the real work were foisted wholesale on an unsuspecting public, so that the English publishers who had sunk a large sum of money in preparing and issuing the 9th Edition were robbed of the just reward of their enterprise. The United States copyright law, of 1908 now affords protection to foreign publishers. By copyrighting the work in every civilized country in the world the Cambridge University Press protects the public from spurious and incomplete reproductions of a work of which the traditions are among the highest in the world of letters and scholarship.

Any reader who has not yet received particulars of the new Encyclopædia Britannica may obtain illustrated prospectus (40 pp.) 56-specimen pages (printed on India paper, to show the attractive character of the work in this popular form), and order form giving the present low rates and terms of purchase, by applying to The Cambridge University Press, Royal Bank Building, 10-12 King Street East, Toronto.

The Occasion, and Its Appeal to Intelligent Persons

The present occasion involves no more than the making up of one's mind that the new Encyclopædia Britannica is worth having, and the decision to examine into the details of the offer without delay. The completion of the 11th Edition cannot be regarded as other than a significant achievement, which demands the attention of all intelligent persons. It consists of 28 volumes and Index, 28,000 pages, 40,000 articles—a work so vast that the making of it, before a single copy, was sold, cost $1,150,000; a work produced by the collaboration of 1,500 among the highest authorities in every branch of knowledge and every field of practical specialization. Many years of use can draw upon only a fraction of the contents of a library in which forty million words are the condensed result of a fresh inquiry into every development of research, experiment and invention. The version of the Encyclopædia Britannica which is about to be displaced by the new edition dates back to 1875, when the first volume appeared. During all the intervening years no fresh work of reference has covered the same ground, yet the foundations of knowledge have undergone a vast transformation. In fact, the editors of the new 11th Edition base upon an analysis of the index the estimate that the new work contains twice as much information as did the other.

To grasp at first thought the varied utility of so vast and original a work is impossible. To consider the most obvious uses, which any intelligent reader will make of it is to look ahead for years.

Yet, unless the question of the price to be paid is altogether disregarded, the decision to examine the details of the offer with the idea of becoming a subscriber on the most favorable terms possible must be immediate.

The Object of The Cambridge University Press

in the announcements that have appeared in this and other magazines and in the daily press throughout the Dominion is to tell the Canadian people exactly what the new edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica is, and in describing its distinctive new features, and its improvements upon previous editions, to invite public interest to the successful completion of a vast educational undertaking, a fresh exploration of the whole field of human knowledge and its presentation in an orderly and intelligible manner, not for the use of students merely, but of all readers.

A Great Advantage to Immediate Applicants

The Cambridge University Press having assumed control of a book which deserves the widest possible distribution, its cheapness was an essential factor of the undertaking. The last completely new edition, the 9th, had been sold at $7.50 a volume (cloth). To place the new Eleventh Edition, however, within reach of the greatest number of persons could best be accomplished by naming, before publication, the lowest price that was possible without disregarding the question of profits. Subscriptions in advance of publication are usually called for in order that funds thus obtained may be used in producing a book. In the present case no payment is now desired, but early subscribers are, on the contrary, offered a substantial premium in the form of a special temporary concession in price. The Syndics of the University Press are satisfied that, in respect of cheapness, no publication is comparable with the 11th Edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica at the "advance" price.

Intending Applicants for the New Edition of the Encyclopædia Britannica are hereby advised that, complete publication of this work having been reached, the concession allowed in return for advance-of-publication subscriptions, but without immediate payments, will be definitely withdrawn from May 31st, when a new schedule of higher prices will have effect, both in this country and in England.

The Present Oppor- tunity

The prices set out on the order form below are those obtaining before publication. These prices will cease to be operative from May 31st, when a new and higher schedule will come into force. Delivery has already begun, and is being made as fast as printers and binders can complete their work and the books can be shipped from England. Those who have convinced themselves that the work is one they should possess are urged to fill in the order form at the foot of this page, and post it promptly to Toronto, so that there may be the least possible delay in receiving their sets.

Cash payment means a remittance in full immediately after delivery. Deferred Cash Payments (4, 8 or 12 months), amounting to but a fraction more than the cash price, can be accepted only if made, at the time of the delivery, by post-dated cheques. By electing to pay in this manner the subscriber, on his side, is saved all trouble, since he completes his purchase in a single transaction, although his expenditure is spread over a term of months.

Installments of $5 begin immediately after delivery, and continue at monthly intervals thereafter.

If you wish to have a bookcase, please mark a cross in one of the squares shown below:—For the India impression:

- ☐ (1) Single tier, solid mahogany (see photograph above), $14.50 cash (or 3 monthly payments of $5 after payments for the books are completed).
- ☐ (2) Double tier, solid mahogany (see photograph above), $8.75 cash (or 2 monthly payments of $5).
- ☐ (3) Portable rack, trough shape, fumed oak, to stand on table, $3.
- ☐ For the ordinary paper impression:
- ☐ Revolving bookcase, dark oak, $14.50 cash (or 3 monthly payments of $5).
