SAINT JOHN, MONDAY MORNING, JULY 31, 1911.

THE COMING ELECTION.

The sudden decision of the Government to dissolve Parliament and precipitate a general election is a high handed piece of business, for which no valid excuse can be offered. The firm stand the Opposition had taken against passing the Reciprocity Agreement until the people were given an opportunity of voting on it cannot be raised in defence of the action of the Government. Not only have the demands of the people for a redistribution of the constituencies been ignored, but many of the important items of the seasonal programme, to which the Government stood pledged in the speech from the Throne, have been wilfully abandoned.

It is the Government and not the Opposition which has the power of dictating the business to be taken up in Parliament, and it is significant that Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his colleagues have not shown the slightest disposition since the House resumed on July 18 to proceed with the work of the session. Day after day Mr. Fielding moved the House into Committee of Ways and Means to resume the discussion of the Reciprocity resolutions. Not once was Parliament asked to take up such important legislation as the bill to renew the charters of the banks, the new Copyright Act, the act respecting grain, or the resolutions providing for the leasing of branch lines to the Intercolonial, which, with other important measures were awaiting consideration. Not once was the House moved into Committee of Supply, although of the amount asked by the Government for the expenditures of the fiscal year ending March 1912, more than $48,000,000 has yet to be voted.

Mr. Borden served notice on Sir Wilfrid Laurier months ago that the Opposition would not permit such a revolutionary measure as the Taft-Fielding Agreement to come into force without an appeal to the people. He made the situation perfectly clear and invited the Premier to proceed with the business of the session, pass the redistribution bill and then appeal to the country. But Sir Wilfrid would have none of it, and, despite the fact that there was no urgent need for Reciprocity, refused to take the logical and statesmanlike course that was open to him.

Recent events may not have been without their influence in deciding Sir Wilfrid to bring Parliament to an abrupt conclusion. The Oliver investigation, the pointed inquiries which were to be made regarding Mr. Pugsley's blanket tenders for Courtenay Bay, the Chinese immigration frauds in British Columbia, involving a loss to the country of $1,000,000, and other scandals are now as far as investigation is concerned, conveniently side-tracked. But the besmirched record of the Laurier Government remains. The white plumed knight and the political bandits and grafters that follow in his train with their transcontinental contracts, their sawdust wharves, their Newmarket canal jobs, their dredging scandals and their endless schemes and extravagance for wasting the earnings and revenues of the country, have still to be dealt with. For this reason alone, despite the injustice that an early election will entail on some sections of the community, conservatives throughout the country will welcome the light now it is forced upon them.

But above and beyond the general record of the Government the coming election is to be fought on a greater issue. Reciprocity as defined by President Taft is designed to strike a blow at the closer union of the nations of the Empire. It is designed to wean Canada from her allegiance to the Motherland and to sever once and for all that "Imperial Commercial band reaching from England around the world to England again." The Laurier Government, bound hand and foot to Taft, professes to be blind to the dangers of the situation, and insists on the adoption of the Agreement. Against the Separatists will be ranged not only Conservatives, but every Canadian who believes in the great destiny which awaits a United Empire. Borden and British Connection against Laurier and Separation is the real issue in the coming fight. No one who reviews Canada's long record of steadfast loyalty to the Motherland can doubt that when the day of reckoning comes, the upholders of Borden and British Connection will win a sweeping victory at the polls.

MR. PUGSLEY'S DEFENCE.

The Toronto News responds to Mr. Pugsley's plaintive wail in the House of Commons that he has been the victim of a conspiracy by giving a brief review of his past connection with the Central Railway, which, as a matter of record, is both pertinent and instructive. Says the News: "Mr. Pugsley has been the victim of a conspiracy. He says so himself. Like the old German he does not have to prove it, he admits it. When Mr. Borden referred in the House to the interesting record of the Minister of Public Works, while yet he was Attorney-General in New Brunswick, Mr. Pugsley protested. He asserted that there was a plot against him. He dared the Opposition Leader to make a charge, to produce the correspondence and to come into court. "Mr. Pugsley is always asking people to come into court, but even when they humor him, his 'triumphs' are equalled. Mr. Borden retorted with a reference to the records of the Province of New Brunswick. Of course it was necessary then for the Minister to make reference to his 26 years of public life and the 'indications' he had won at the polls. But the Speaker, cynically enough, rejected this as irrelevant.

"It may be worth while to recall the record of Mr. Pugsley in so far as it was examined by Premier Hazen's Royal Commission. Judge Landry presided over this investigation. It was found that in the building of the Central Railway of New Brunswick about $1,000,000 of Provincial money had been spent under the guidance of Mr. Pugsley. Of this sum $134,000 had disappeared. He was called before the Commissioners. He told them that he did not remember where the money had gone and that he had kept no books.

"In Parliament after the report of the Provincial Commission was made public Mr. Pugsley attacked the honor of the Commissioners. He spoke them of conspiracy, and the people of New Brunswick laughed. Even the French-Liberals there who knew the character of Judge Landry treated the Minister with the contempt he deserved.

"Mr. Pugsley's speech in the House of Commons on that occasion was marked by bold and reckless misstatements. He treated facts supported by documentary evidence as if they were non-existent. And seldom has a public man been so mercilessly grilled as the Minister was by Mr. Crothers who followed. He exposed the bluff, and built up an unanswerable argument to show that Mr. Pugsley was wholly unworthy of any position of trust, least of all of the Department of Public Works. No one has attempted to meet the argument. It stands today, as strong and complete as the day it was built. "And the Minister still presumes to speak of conspiracy!"

TEACHING CHILDREN TO SAVE.

Last year the Legislature of Massachusetts passed an act providing that instruction in thrift "may be given" in the public schools. This year the same body has carried the principle from the region of theory to the domain of fact, by authorizing savings banks to receive deposits from school children and establishing a procedure. The latter measure was initiated by the bank commissioner, and his department has just addressed to members of school committees a circular of instructions and another of suggested "forms" to be used by boards which are willing to aid in promoting the new agencies of thrift.

To state the case briefly, the plan provides that any amount, from a cent upward, which a pupil wishes to save, may be collected, at a certain hour each week by a teacher or a bank official. The sum is deposited for upon a card, and when the total reaches a certain amount, a pass-book is issued to the pupil, who thus becomes a depositor in the savings bank. If it appears that younger pupils would be encouraged to save by having their receipts appear in the form of artistic stamps of different denominations, such stamps may be sold, to be pasted upon the cards. Encouragement for the school authorities and for pupils as a whole is supplied by the provision that all the equipment of a school savings bank shall be provided by the savings bank with which it co-operates.

The latest statistics of school savings banks in the United States are a year old, but they show that at that time there were in that country 8,515, with more than 202,000 depositors, and that since 1888 there had been deposited in such institutions $5,051,644. Such statements demonstrate the popularity of the idea as well as its worth. Undoubtedly in its various developments it must have trained many thousands in the practice of thrift as established in a great number of young people a habit of saving that will not cease when they are men and women.

PLAIN TRUTHS FOR CANADIANS.

(The Chicago American.)
The day that Reciprocity becomes a fact the chief interests of Canada will be here in the United States. Should we not with Reciprocity be far more important in the eyes of Canadians than the imaginary "Empire of Great Britain," which they look to now? The ideal condition, of course, would be a political as well as a business union of all this North American continent. A political union, however, cannot be brought about suddenly or by any act on our part. It must grow out of the good will and the friendship of the Canadians, if it is to come at all. Is it not a fact that Reciprocity, bringing the people of Canada and the United States closer together every day, will do more than anything else to promote, eventually, the complete political and business union of the United States and all the great territory north of us?

Current Comment

(Bangor News.)
It is probably a very true thing that Queen Mary of England snubbed several over-important American duchesses for their marked eccentricities in dress, while they were lingering about Westminster to attend the Coronation services. Queen Mary is a woman of good taste, a cleanly and sympathetic woman who was a proud and happy mother before she ever became a queen. By excluding these members of the American aristocracy from her public receptions, she honored her sex. She simply announced that nothing new bizarre or odd would be tolerated at her court while she remained Queen of Great Britain and Empress of the Indies. For this brave act, all loyal women honor her. She is a braver and a nobler queen for this one destructive "snub."

(London Free Press.)
Champlain is to have another monument on this continent. The tercentenary celebration on Lake Champlain in 1909 is to be commemorated by a lighthouse to be erected at Crown Point. The style of the design is that of France in the time of Champlain, a bronze statue of the great explorer in the front with statues on either side of an Indian and a courier du bois. Champlain is one of the figures of the old regime in Canada concerning whose greatness and character there has never been any question.

(Victoria Daily Colonist.)
It is said that Christ Church cathedral in Fredericton, lately struck by lightning and almost completely destroyed, was the finest specimen of Gothic architecture in America and one of the finest in the world. It was not a large edifice, but its lines were exceedingly graceful and it was of the purest Gothic. There is reason to believe that it will be restored, but it will be difficult to replace adequately some of the features that made it a thing of unique beauty.

(Toronto World.)
The conviction is becoming increasingly prevalent that the utilization of undeveloped areas in the neighborhood of expanding cities ought to be in the hands of the municipalities interested. In this way profits arising from increasing values due to civic expansion become available for public purposes, and not only so but the authorities have a free hand in framing and carrying out town planning schemes in accordance with the general interest of the community.

(Regina Standard.)
Edmonton has dismissed two of its city commissioners, Mr. Butcher and Mr. Bouillon. They had developed the tendency to become Czars in the northern city, Mr. Butcher being chief civic head chopper and Mr. Bouillon coming to believe that he was the only pickle in the soup.

(Ottawa Citizen.)
How the late Sir W. H. Gilbert would have enjoyed the present crisis in British politics, as the House of Commons takes the Upper Chamber by the scruff of the neck and says: "Vote the way we tell you or we will make five hundred more puppets like you!"

(Galt Reporter.)
Sir Wilfrid Laurier's expression, "Follow My White Plume," may be the Liberal battle cry in the impending general election. It will be remembered that the late James G. Blaine went into a notable contest as the Plumed Knight. Then he was licked.

ST. JOHN STUDENT HEADS THE LIST

Results of July Matriculation and Leaving Examinations Given out on Saturday — Fred C. Manning Leads.

ROADS AND BRIDGES ARE IN FINE SHAPE.

Grays Mills, July 29.—Geo. Jones and Jas. A. Murray, M. P. P., passed through here today looking after the roads and bridges and wharves. They were also looking about the location of a wharf to be built at or near Bradley's landing at this place. Since the channel on the eastern side of Grays Island has been dredged out the steamer Sincennes runs regularly through here, opening up this very fertile and industrious market gardening and fruit growing part of Kings county.

The roads and bridges and wharves reflect great credit on our present provincial government.

Wm. Sterritt, Jr. and wife and family, of Boston, who have been visiting his father's family of this place, left today for their home.

Miss Elsie McCarthy, of St. John is the guest of Miss Lucy Bradley, at present.

Engagement Announced.

The engagement of Dr. Geo. Simpson of Boston, Mass., to Miss Ethel K. Barr of New Bedford, Mass., is announced, the marriage to take place at an early date.
