Fifteen Years in Dorchester Pententiary. Amherst, Nov. 29-(Special)-This morn-ing John A. McCarthy, who was found guilty of the charge of manslaughter for killing Charles McAulay, at Pugwash, on October 31, was brought into court for sentence. T. S. Rogers, counsel for the prisoner, made a strong appeal before sen-tence was passed, calling attention to the circumstances connected with the sad af-fair, the previous good character of the prisoner as proved by the evidence of such men as Job H. Seaman, C. W. Hew-son, M. D., P. L. McDonald and others who voluntarily took the stand to give evidence in his behalf; also that the pris-oner, being a married man with four small children depending upon him, he pleaded for the elemency of the court in the sen-tence to be imposed. His honor, addressing the prisoner, said that everything possible had been done in his case by counsel and friends. It was a matter of doubt whether the case should have been tried before him or in a higher court where the prisoner might have been indicted for murder. In this large county, his honor said, he had had only two cases of murder and five of manslaughter. He did not intend imposing as long a sen-tence as some of the prisoners he had for manslaughter. He had sympathy for the prisoner but as a judge he owed a duty
