Heatford reporter lately visited Mrs.

A Hartford reporter lately visited Mrs son cell. He says she has a very tidy cell, son cell. He says she has a very tidy cell, with books, pictures and plants, and seems contented and cheerful, and "not at all disposed to complain." She must be a person of wonderful Christian meekness. She poisoned several husbands and numerous children, and decimated her relatives generally with strychine and laudanum, and yet she does not complain because the State of Connecticut gives her a neat cell, with board, clothes and washing, without its costing her a cent.

perversity to cause other people unnecessary trouble and amoyance in the matter. Now, here is a woman at Pembroke, N. H., who went and jumped into the well from which the family drew its supply of water. Of course it is squeamish and fastidious and all that, but some people would not like to drink that water for a day or two, to say nothing of the trouble of getting the foolish woman out. It is really provoking, the want of consideration for other people's convenience which these suicides show.

Serenades will be quite the thing this Spring, on account of the great favor into which part-singing has come of late. A quaint old gentleman, of an active, stirring disposition, had a man at work in his garden who was quite the reverse.

THE Subscriber begs to announce to his friends and the public generally that he has leased and fitted up for a HUUKE OF ENTERTAINMENT the above delightful property on the MANAW AGONISH ROAD. This place is BRAUTIFULLY SITUATED about five miles from the city, and the drive presents a great variety of scenery.

THE GBOUNDS are attractive, and provision will be made for amusements such as Quoirs, CROQUET, ARCHERY, FOOTBALL, &C.

The Subscriber hopes, by a strict attention to the wants of his guests, to secure a share of public patronnae.

We suppose there is a time that comes to every man when he feels he should like to have a garden. If he takes such as Quoirs, and when he feels he should like to have a garden.

to every man when he feels he should like to have a garden. If he takes such a notion he will tell his wife of it. This is the first mistake he makes, and the ground thus lost is never fully recovered. She draws her chair up to his, and lays one hand on his knee, and purses up her lips into a whistle of expectation,—the vixen -and tells about her mother's garden and how nice it is to have vegetable fresh from the vines every morning, and she will go right out and plan the whole thing herself. And so she does. He takes his spade and works himself into a perspiration, and she tramps around un-der a frightful sun bonnet, and gets under his feet and shrieks at the worms, and his feet and shrieks at the worms, and loses her shoe; and makes him first vexed, and then mad, and then ferocious. After the garden is spaded he gets the seed, and finds she has been thoughtful enough to open the papers, and empty thirteen varieties of different vegetables into one dish. This leads him to the papers where communes with nature alone for a moment. Then he takes up the seed and a hoe, and a line, and two pegs, and starts for the garden. And then she puts on that awful bonnet, and brings up the rear with a long handled rake, and a pocket full of beans and petunia seed, and dahlia bulbs. While he is planting the corn, she stands on the cucumber hills, and rakes over the seed pan. Then she puts the rake handle over her shoulder, and the rake teeth into his hair, and walks over the other beds. He don't find the
