

AN APPEAL

TO THE

VIRTUE AND GOOD SENSE

OF THE

INHABITANTS OF GREAT BRITAIN.

ON the eve of that day, which by many Christians is set apart for the celebration of that glorious event in which the human race are so deeply interested, "when a multitude of the heavenly host praised God, saying—Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will towards men," I sit down to make another appeal to my countrymen, in behalf of the distressed Indians of North America, with the fullest confidence that the many errors in its style of composition &c.—will be generously overlooked, in the importance of the object that occasions it.

WE know with infallible certainty that all the human race spring from the same source,* and that the descendants of one man, under the protection, as well as in obedience to the command of Heaven, multiply and re-
