

The Catholic Record.

"CHRISTIANUS MIHI NOMEN EST, CATHOLICUS VERO COGNOMEN."—"CHRISTIAN IS MY NAME, BUT CATHOLIC MY SURNAME."—St. Pacian, 4th Century.

VOL. 2.

LONDON, ONT., FRIDAY, JULY 2, 1880.

NO. 90

GENTLEMEN,
See our IRISH and SCOTCH TWEEDS and SERGES—the nicest patterns and most durable texture ever shown.
Our Cutting and Tailoring is unequaled in the city.

N. WILSON & CO.

ECCLIASTICAL CALENDAR.
JULY, 1880.
Sunday, 4—Seventh Sunday after Pentecost.
Monday, 5—St. John I. Double.
Tuesday, 6—Octave of St. Peter and Paul.
Wednesday, 7—St. Benedict XI. Double.
Thursday, 8—St. Eusebius III. Double.
Friday, 9—Miracles of the Blessed Virgin Mary. Double.
Saturday, 10—S. S. Brothers, M.M. Double.

EDITORIAL NOTES.
A TELEGRAM from Tobermory, Ireland, states that the famine fever is raging there. Famine fever has also appeared at Charlestown, county Mayo. Twenty cases are being treated at the public infirmary in Swinford, near Charlestown.

At the Cincinnati Convention, General Hancock was, on the third ballot, selected as the Democratic candidate for the office of President of the United States. Mr. English, of Indiana, was chosen as the candidate for Vice-President.

The Irish Canadian says that the reverend clergy of the Archdiocese of Toronto will go into Retreat on the first Monday in July, and that immediately after Retreat important changes will be made in the clerical administration of the Archdiocese.

The O'Gorman Mahon is credited with recently saying a good thing, over the Bradlaugh case. Discussing it with a friend, the old veteran put the position thus: "Fifty years ago I was in the House when I wanted to exclude Bradlaugh because he believed too much; now it wants to exclude Bradlaugh because he believes nothing at all."

The London Times has published a very lengthy article to demonstrate the idea that emigration is the best remedy for Irish famine. This, it seems to us, is a very unnecessary piece of work on the part of the Times. We are well aware that if the Irish people come to America, there is no fear of their starving. But how comes it that they are pinched with want in Ireland when it is an admitted fact that that country is capable of supporting a population twice as large as it contains at present? It will be hard to convince most men that nothing else but bad legislation and villainous, alien landlords are the prime and the only cause of Irish famines.

A CITY contemporary says that the gentlemen who act as agents for the Associated Press in England allow their political sympathies to tinge these despatches. This is, we might add, also true in a religious sense. Whenever anything transpires relating to the Catholic Church, the dispatches are, by subsequent reports, proved to be either wholly or partly erroneous, and they are always unceasing. The only way to effect a cure is to remove the whole batch of persons in charge. What the public expect from the Associated Press is the simple facts of current events, and it should remove from its employment those persons who are constantly airing their private feelings in public matters.

The Mansion House Relief Committee says there is urgent need for more assistance. The funds now afford only three weeks' supply, and eight weeks of intense distress is to be faced yet. Even if the harvest should be good the troubles of the country will be only beginning, owing to the enormous debt which presses on the tenants and farmers. The government is still pursuing its heartless and riggardly course. It is alive to every sense of the term. No assistance of a tangible form may be looked for. The Chief Secretary says he regrets that fever has appeared in some districts, but does not think it was caused by the famine. He also says reports from Ireland are reassuring in the face of the Mansion House Committee, this declaration will not save the government from the doom which their cold and unfriendly mode of procedure will most assuredly bring down upon them.

An organization has been formed in Montreal for improving the condition of the Protestant insane, who are now confined in Asylums presided over by nuns. A deaf and dumb youth brought to Montreal from Quebec, to be placed in an institution, and left temporarily in charge of the nuns, has mysteriously disappeared.

The following, from the Brooklyn Review, contains much that it would be well for parents to ponder over carefully. What has taken place in New York and other large American cities holds true, to some extent, in regard to London: An official connected with the elevated railroad dropped into conversation with a gentleman the other day at one of the stations, and gave his opinion of picnics and excursions. "It is my conclusion, founded on experience," he said, "that they are demoralizing. Every evening I see young people—scarcely out of their childhood—totter down the steps of the station, too drunk to walk straight. And the conversation of the young folks, as they go over the doings of the day, is really appalling. These picnics are often made excuses for the most outrageous license, and the 'moonlight' excursions and other summer amusements so lavishly advertised can scarcely be defended even by the most apathetic. Anybody who has chanced to be a looker-on at these festivals, which are un-Christian and anti-Christian, cannot have helped feeling sickened and disgusted by the conduct of the participants. The dances are excessively 'round' and the liberty of language and conduct permitted would have disgusted Plato, who, by the way, had rather liberal views in regard to public games. No man of sense objects to reasonable amusements, and a day spent, far from the mad-dog crowd among green trees and free summer breezes, ought to be a red-letter day in the annals of the city workers, and he would deprive them of it would indeed be heartless; but most of these days deserve a black mark. What good can come to the mobs of irresponsible young men and women who crowd the barges, who set forth, excited by their prospect of freedom, and who return in the small hours of the morning? This kind of thing may be innocent, but it does not look so. The influence of parents seems to be powerless against this evil; the young people will attend these picnics; and when the parent fails, the voice of the priest has little chance of being heard effectively, although it is hoped and believed that Catholics have learned to avoid these occasions of sin."

A PROTESTANT gentleman of New York, writing to the Catholic Herald of this city, thus refers to the public schools: "Though I am a Protestant, will you permit me, through the columns of your excellent paper, to render a tribute of praise to the Roman Catholic Church for the good it has done and is accomplishing by its attitude toward the Public Schools? Whatever objections I have to Roman Catholicism are all sincere, and I can heartily applaud all Catholic authorities who condemn the Public Schools as Godless and productive of bad morals. Those persons who inveigh against the Catholic Church for condemning the Public Schools are seldom willing, when they can afford to pay the charges of a private school, or can avail themselves of the privileges of a parochial school, to risk the danger of having the breeding and morals of their children contaminated by their mingling with children from the most rude and immoral quarters of society in Godless schools, where not even the first principles of Christianity and morality are taught."

The New York Star thus refers to the effects of the antics of the "Boy Preacher" in Talmage's Tabernacle: Miss Bertie Kneaster, a comely young woman residing at No. 1043 Fulton street, Brooklyn, became crazed from religious excitement about a month ago, and has been out of her mind ever since. Her mental condition is attributed to attendance at the revival meetings held at Talmage's Tabernacle under the ministrations of T. Harrison, the "Young Evangelist." Harrison is a youthful clergyman of the most sensational type, and even outdoes the antics of his prototype, Talmage. He has been conducting the meetings for more than a month past, and after the Sunday sermon has full swing. Then he roams up and down the ample platform like a tiger at bay, and gives a numerical estimate of the souls "God will give him tonight." His rhetoric is audacious and frequently absurd to those who are at all critical, but it is said that Talmage has characterized him as "one of the greatest men in the world."

In the English House of Commons on the 22nd the debate on Bradlaugh's claim to affirm was resumed. Gladstone said the government's position is to give advice and leave the decision to the House. The question of atheism, he said, was irrelevant. He opposed Gifford's amendment that Bradlaugh be permitted neither to take the oath nor affirm. The matter, he said, was a constitutional, not a party question. Gifford's amendment forbidding Bradlaugh either to take the oath or make an affirmation, was adopted by 275 to 230. On the announcement of the vote, which has the effect of unseating Bradlaugh, there was an extraordinary scene of excitement, the opposition cheering tremendously, and waving their hats. On the opening of the House of Commons next day Bradlaugh combated the resolution arrived at against him, and was loudly cheered. The speaker afterwards directed Bradlaugh to withdraw, but the latter refused. Northcote moved that Bradlaugh be given into the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms. Gladstone, seeing no other means of giving effect to the last night's resolution, seconded the motion. Northcote's motion was adopted—274 to 7. Bradlaugh was then confined in the tower of London, but has since been released.

THE following, from the Brooklyn Review, contains much that it would be well for parents to ponder over carefully. What has taken place in New York and other large American cities holds true, to some extent, in regard to London: An official connected with the elevated railroad dropped into conversation with a gentleman the other day at one of the stations, and gave his opinion of picnics and excursions. "It is my conclusion, founded on experience," he said, "that they are demoralizing. Every evening I see young people—scarcely out of their childhood—totter down the steps of the station, too drunk to walk straight. And the conversation of the young folks, as they go over the doings of the day, is really appalling. These picnics are often made excuses for the most outrageous license, and the 'moonlight' excursions and other summer amusements so lavishly advertised can scarcely be defended even by the most apathetic. Anybody who has chanced to be a looker-on at these festivals, which are un-Christian and anti-Christian, cannot have helped feeling sickened and disgusted by the conduct of the participants. The dances are excessively 'round' and the liberty of language and conduct permitted would have disgusted Plato, who, by the way, had rather liberal views in regard to public games. No man of sense objects to reasonable amusements, and a day spent, far from the mad-dog crowd among green trees and free summer breezes, ought to be a red-letter day in the annals of the city workers, and he would deprive them of it would indeed be heartless; but most of these days deserve a black mark. What good can come to the mobs of irresponsible young men and women who crowd the barges, who set forth, excited by their prospect of freedom, and who return in the small hours of the morning? This kind of thing may be innocent, but it does not look so. The influence of parents seems to be powerless against this evil; the young people will attend these picnics; and when the parent fails, the voice of the priest has little chance of being heard effectively, although it is hoped and believed that Catholics have learned to avoid these occasions of sin."

BRADLAUGH talks of paying a visit to America. That would be a mistake for Mr. Bradlaugh. If he is really desirous of meeting his American admirers we think a public subscription to send the latter over to England would be rapidly filled up. Isn't Mr. Bob Ingersoll quite enough for the United States without importing foreign blasphemers?—Pilot.

WHILE British Protestants grumble and growl over the appointment of the Catholic Marquis of Ripon to the Vice-royalty of India, the Catholics of Meath unanimously elect, as their representative in Parliament, the Presbyterian clergyman, Rev. Dr. Nelson of Belfast. And yet we sometimes hear of Catholic exclusiveness, and what would happen if Catholics were ever to get control here. Can the annals of Protestant communities show any such broad liberal spirit as this? When was it ever heard that an exclusively Protestant community conferred similar honors on a Catholic priest?—Buffalo Union.

COMPARED with all other churches, how grandly stands out the spiritual kingdom of the Church of Jesus Christ! No Church is more solicitous than she for the rights of princes; she yields to the sovereigns of this world that honor to which they can justly lay claim. But she will not allow even princes to encroach upon the rights with which she was endowed by her Divine Founder. While honoring them as earthly monarchs, she refuses to yield to them that spiritual jurisdiction which they oftentimes ambitioned, and which she could not forego without being untrue to the mission confided to her by Jesus Christ Himself.—Catholic Herald.

NATIONALISM in religion is almost as bad as Liberalism. Break up a Church into nationalities, and its speedy collapse is certain. A national Church is, as a necessity of its existence, the slave of either the sovereign or the populace. The Church of Jesus Christ cannot be dismembered, for just as on the dismemberment of the human body the soul ceases to occupy it, so if the Church founded by our Divine Lord were divided into a series of national churches the Divine Spirit would no longer dwell in it. What a farce, then, is it for Protestants to claim that their Church is a portion of the Church of Christ!—Catholic Herald.

ACADEMY OF THE SACRED HEART.

COMMENCEMENT EXERCISES.

THE SCHOLARS GIVE THEIR PREMIUMS TO RELIEVE IRISH DISTRESS.

Our most sanguine expectations were fully realized on Tuesday at the commencement exercises, and distribution which took place on Monday the 28th inst. About four o'clock p. m., Monsignor Bruyere, accompanied by the following clergymen, wended their way to the institution:

Rev. J. O'Connor, Superior of the Assumption College, Sandwich; Very Rev. Dean Wagner, pastor of Windsor; Rev. B. Boubat, of Ingersoll; Rev. P. Molphy, of Stratford; Rev. M. O'Keefe, of Mount Carmel; the clergy of the Cathedral; Rev. Messrs. Tiernan, O'Mahony, Dillon, and Schneider, all of whom testified by their presence the warm interest they took in the prosperity of the institution.

The air was replete with the sweet perfume of choice flowers and plants, that seemed to speak a hearty welcome to the kind friends of the Academy in their own silent but eloquent language, while the cooling spray from several fountains played upon the verdant lawn.

Great preparations had been made to hold the exercises in a beautiful pine grove towards the north-east side of the building, but the heavy rains necessitated a change, and the spacious study hall assumed its holiday attire as if by magic. The charming simplicity of the young ladies, the winning grace of the little ones in their modest white robes, none wearing a richer ornament than a bunch of fresh rose buds, impressed every one present. The programme was not too lengthy, but varied and interesting. On the arrival of the guests a grand overture from Rossini greeted them, being executed in splendid style. In pretty French verse, a little girl of nine or ten summers testified her dreams of happiness. Her gentle tone, correct pronunciation and expressive gesture, bespoke the natural talent of the child and the superior training of the teacher. A musical accompaniment from Sardoni, on the organ, piano and harp, was highly commensurate for taste and finish. Scarcely had its sweet strain died away, when a decade of bright little girls, from six to ten, stepped forward to describe a conflict between the "hae and the snail," which they rendered in a graceful and lively manner. Miss Coyte, of Toronto, treated the audience with a vocal solo, entitled "Whispering," with a harp accompaniment by Miss Penwarden, of Fingal, Ontario, who proved quite an adept in the art of drawing sweet strains from the instrument most dear to the heart of every child of Erin. Next followed Schiller's "Aline Hunter," a very tastefully rendered in German, by Miss Wehrly, of Washington, D.C. An amusing feature of the entertainment was a French Operette, "Le Secret," delightfully performed by Miss Beattie, of St. Mary's, and Miss Killoran of Seaford, whose clear soprano tones elicited great applause.

The brilliant "Scenarium" of Rossini evinced superior musical talent. Misses Jell, Beattie, Penwarden and Christopher, presided at the piano. A complimentary sonnet from the pen of an illustrious Italian, was prettily rendered by Miss D. Enigh, of Woodstock. The young ladies of the singing class entertained the audience with a most beautiful chorus from Wagner.

The highest honors of the Institution were then conferred on Miss B. Du Hamel, of Washington, D. C., amidst the plaudits of her companions. His Lordship, Rt. Rev. Dr. Walsh, being unavailably absent on the occasion, to the deep regret of all present, Monsignor Bruyere presided and evinced great pleasure in presenting the hard-earned "Lorne Medal," gracious gift of His Excellency, the Governor-General, for proficiency in Universal History, to Miss Skelly, of Paris, Ont. Honorable mention was also made of five other competitors, Miss Murray, of Paris, Ont.; Miss Killoran, of Seaford, Ont.; Miss Scanlan, London; Miss Carr, London; Miss Nettie DuHamel, Washington. A beautiful vocal quartette from the soul-stirring melodies of Ireland's immortal bard, was charmingly sung to the accompaniment of harp, piano and guitar. A touching tribute of the entertainment was a beautiful address read by Miss Scanlan, London, Ontario, expressive of sincere sympathy, in the name of her schoolmates, and earnestly requesting Monsignor Bruyere to accept the same extended to her by the students in behalf of the distressed in Ireland, and begged him to present it to His Lordship, in behalf of the needy in that country. The cheque was entrusted in the hands of a beautiful harp wreathed with golden shamrocks, and coming as it does from the spontaneous offering of their young hearts, reflects the greatest credit on them and speaks volumes for their generosity and charity.

Testimonials of merit were then distributed to the deserving pupils, amidst the joyous acclamations of their companions. The talented grammar, Miss B. DuHamel, delivered her valedictory in superior style. She bears away the kind wishes of all her friends in London. The proceedings of this memorable day were terminated with a beautiful farewell chorus.

Monsignor Bruyere addressed the pupils in the kindest manner, congratulating them in the name of His Lordship Rt. Rev. Dr. Walsh, and in that of the other reverend gentlemen, for the successful closing of the scholastic year. He bestowed high encomiums on this Institution, and on the order of the Sacred Heart in general, distinguishing them as the leading educators of the young ladies, not only in the new, but likewise in the old world, and making pleasant allusions to the unfortunate but excellent Empress Eugenie and other noble ladies who owed the blessing of their christian education to the Religions of the Sacred Heart.

Reiterating kind wishes for a truly happy vacation, Monsignor Bruyere repaired, with the other reverend gentlemen, to a beauteous collation, and before leaving paused a few moments to glance at a number of finely executed pencil and crayon drawings, paintings in water colors, and pastels, with fine specimens of literary articles and was-work, that would reflect great credit on the far-abled pupils. The admirable termination of the scholastic year will be pleasantly remembered by those who were present and who gladly predict fresh laurels for the Academy of the Sacred Heart.

Studies will be resumed on the first Tuesday of September.

DISTRIBUTION OF PREMIUMS.
The highest honors of the Institution were awarded to Miss Bessie Du Hamel, Washington, D. C.

HONORARY DISTINCTIONS.
The second medallion and blue ribbon have been awarded by the votes of the pupils, sanctioned by those of the teachers, to Misses B. Du Hamel, Mary Skelly, Maria Killoran.

The other blue ribbons to Misses Lizzie Scanlan, London, Ont.; Minnie Murray, Paris, Ont.; Nettie Du Hamel, Washington, D. C.; Lisa Penwarden, Fingal, Ont.; Laura Nangle, Lucan, Ont.; Hannah Kildea, Fingal, Ont.; Annie Hopper, New York; Lucy McIlhargey, Lucan, Ont.; Connie Jell, Wardsville, Ont.; Fannie Secord, Chicago, Ill.

The green ribbons to Misses Elise Weger, Detroit, Mich.; Laura MacAdams, Hamilton, Ont.; Mary Hanley, Ailemole, D. C.; Eilish Greig, London, Ont. The pink ribbons to Misses Mary Leach, Detroit, Mich.; Alice Geary, London, Ont.; Annie MacAdams, Hamilton, Ont.; Mary Coffey, London, Ont.

The red ribbons to Misses Eveline Brown, London, Ont.; Rhoda Warden, London, Ont.; Angeline Leach, Detroit, Mich.

EXEMPLARY CONDUCT.
Premium, Miss Mary Skelly, Paris, Ont.
Accessit, Miss Maria Killoran, Seaford, Ont.; Miss Scanlan.
Premium, Miss Maria Killoran.
Accessit, Ada Carr, London, Ont.
PREMIUMS PECULIAR TO EACH CLASS.
MISS MARIA KILLORAN—First premium for diligence, grammar and recitation; accessit to premiums for English composition and penmanship, in French, premiums for diligence and translation; accessit to premium for grammar.
MISS MARY SKELLY—First premium for catechism, epistolary style, English composition; accessit to premium for diligence.
MISS NETTIE DU HAMEL—Premium for French conversation, translation and ornamental writing; accessit to the first premium for English grammar, epistolary style, algebra, and penmanship.
MISS LIZZIE SCANLAN—Premium for polite deportment and five accessits; algebra, book-keeping, ornamental writing, epistolary style, needle and fancy work.
MISS MINNIE MURRAY—Premium for polite deportment and five accessits; universal history, recitation, grammar, writing and fancy work.
MISS ADA CARR—2nd premium for diligence, ancient history, and geography; recitation, epistolary style, in French, accessit to the premium for reading.
MISS ANNIE CHRISTOPHER, INGERSOLL, ONT.—Premium of five accessits; ancient history, English composition, recitation, epistolary style, writing.
MISS KATE BEATTIE, St. Mary's, Ont.—Premium for French and Italian reading, French grammar.
MISS ANAETHA WEHRLY, Washington, D. C.—Premiums for penmanship, German, and five accessits; recitation, diligence, ancient history and geography, epistolary style, writing.
MISS ISA PENWARDEN—Premiums for diligence, epistolary style, and five accessits; English history, grammar, recitation, reading, and in French accessit to 3rd premium for diligence.
MISS ALYRA EMMH, Woodstock, Ont.—

Premium for English history, accessit to the premiums for geography, reading arithmetic, translation.
MISS JOSEPHINE HEIMANN, La Salette, Ont.—Premium for English grammar, geography, epistolary style.
MISS LAURA NANGLE—Premiums for English recitation, book-keeping, French reading, accessit to 3rd premium for English grammar, diligence and reading.
MISS HANNAH KILDEA, Fingal, Ont.—Accessit to the premiums for diligence, geography, in French, for diligence.
MISS GERTRUDE OWENS, Washington, D. C.—Premiums for modern geography, translation, and French conversation; accessit to premiums for algebra, book-keeping, English history, and reading.
MISS LUCY McILHARGEY—Premium for five accessits; diligence, English history, recitation, reading and algebra.
MISS JESSIE FISHER, Hyde Park, Ont.—Premium for neatness and order; accessit to the premium for recitation and arithmetic.
MISS NELLIE FURLONG, Ottaville, Ont.—Accessit to the premium for French reading, and mental arithmetic.
MISS ANNE LEE, London, Ont.—Premiums for penmanship, and needle-work; accessit to the premium for English grammar.
MISS FANNIE SECORD—Premiums for arithmetic, reading, needle-work. In English, accessit to premiums for epistolary style and penmanship, in French, for diligence.
MISS JULIA COYTE, Toronto, Ont.—Premium for fancy work; accessit to the premium for diligence in French and English.
MISS MINNIE MASURET, London, Ont.—Premium for recitation; accessit to the premium for epistolary style.
MISS ELISE WEGER—Premiums for epistolary style, and penmanship; accessit to the premiums for catechism, and in French, for diligence.
MISS LOUISE MASURET—Accessit for recitation and reading.
MISS ARCHAMBAULT, Montreal—Premium for neatness and order; accessit to diligence and penmanship.
MISS MARY HANLEY—Premium for five accessits; penmanship, recitation, Canadian history, arithmetic, and in French, for reading.
MISS MARY BROTHERSOK, New York—Accessit to premiums for French, reading and German.
MISS CONSTANCE JELL—Premium for Canadian history; accessit to the premiums for English grammar, geography and translation.
MISS ANNETTE CASEY, Fingal, Ont.—Accessit to the premium for diligence in English.
MISS KATE McCLARY, London, Ont.—Premium for arithmetic.
MISS LAURA MACADAMS—Premiums for diligence and catechism, accessit to the premium for English grammar, recitation, Canadian history and needle-work. In French, premium for diligence.
MISS ELLA DEWAN, Stratford, Ont.—Premiums for geography and needle-work; accessit to premiums for reading, recitation, diligence, translation.
MISS DAISY EMERH, Woodstock, Ont.—Premium for English grammar. Accessit for Italian reading.
MISS MARY O'KEEFE, Stratford, Ont.—Premium for arithmetic. Accessit to premium for reading.
MISS MINNIE KANAHAN, London, Ont.—Accessit to the premium for French reading.
MISS MELISSA BROWN, London, Ont.—Premium for orthography. Accessit to premiums for diligence, grammar and geography.
MISS EDITH GREIG—Premiums for English reading, and for five accessits; grammar, orthography, arithmetic. In French, diligence and reading.
MISS SARAH FLANN, London, Ont.—Accessit to premium, for modern Geography, in French, for diligence.
MISS ALICE GEARY—Accessit to premiums for reading and translation.
MISS ADELAIDE CARY, Chicago, Ill.—Premiums for arithmetic, and English grammar; accessit to premiums for orthography, diligence and needle-work; in French, premium for orthography.
MISS LILLA BEATOS, London, Ont.—In French, premium for diligence; accessit to premium for English reading.
MISS ANNE MACADAMS—Premiums for diligence; accessit to geography, needle work, and translation.
MISS MARY COFFEY—Accessit to premiums for arithmetic, grammar, and English and French reading.
MISS CLARA WUETTER, London, Ont.—Accessit to the premium for English grammar.
MISS LETTIE HARPER, London, Ont.—Premium for catechism.
MISS HATTIE CARR, London, Ont.—Premium for reading.
MISS MARY LEACH—Premiums for neatness and order.
MISS MINNIE HARLEY, London, Ont.—Premium for arithmetic.
PREMIUMS FOR ENCOURAGEMENT—Misses Susan Blackburn, London, Ont.; Angeline Leach, Annie Masuret, Eveline Brown, Maud Cruekshanks, London, Ont.; and Rhoda Warden.

A WISE DEACON.
"Deacon Wilder, I want you to tell me how you kept yourself and family so well the past season, when all the rest of us have been sick so much, and have had the doctors rubbing to us so long."
"Bro. Taylor, the answer is very easy. I used Hop Bitters in time a d kept my family well and saved large doctor bills. Three dollars' worth of it kept us all well and able to work all the time, and I will warrant it has cost you and most of the neighbors one or two hundred dollars apiece to keep sick the same time. I guess you'll take my medicine hereafter."

MISS NETTIE DU HAMEL—Premium for French conversation, translation and ornamental writing; accessit to the first premium for English grammar, epistolary style, algebra, and penmanship.
MISS LIZZIE SCANLAN—Premium for polite deportment and five accessits; algebra, book-keeping, ornamental writing, epistolary style, needle and fancy work.
MISS MINNIE MURRAY—Premium for polite deportment and five accessits; universal history, recitation, grammar, writing and fancy work.
MISS ADA CARR—2nd premium for diligence, ancient history, and geography; recitation, epistolary style, in French, accessit to the premium for reading.
MISS ANNIE CHRISTOPHER, INGERSOLL, ONT.—Premium of five accessits; ancient history, English composition, recitation, epistolary style, writing.
MISS KATE BEATTIE, St. Mary's, Ont.—Premiums for French and Italian reading, French grammar.
MISS ANAETHA WEHRLY, Washington, D. C.—Premiums for penmanship, German, and five accessits; recitation, diligence, ancient history and geography, epistolary style, writing.
MISS ISA PENWARDEN—Premiums for diligence, epistolary style, and five accessits; English history, grammar, recitation, reading, and in French accessit to 3rd premium for diligence.
MISS ALYRA EMMH, Woodstock, Ont.—