

Our Children's Corner.

Evening Prayer. I come to thee to-night, In my lone closet, where no eye can see And dare to crave an interview with thee,

If I this day have striven With thy blest Spirit, or have bowed the knee To aught of earth, in weak idolatry, I pray to be forgiven.

If in my heart has been An unforgiven thought, or word, or look, Though deep the malice which I scarce could

Wash me from the dark sin. If I have turned away

From grief or suffering which I might relieve, Careless the cup of water e'en to give, Forgive me, Lord, I pray.

And teach me how to feel My sinful wanderings with a deeper smart, And more of mercy and of grace impart,

Would I these blessings of thy love implore, But for each penitent the wide earth o'er. Whom thou hast called thine own.

And for my heart's best friends; Whose steadfast kindness o'er my painful years

My warmest prayers ascend.

Should o'er their path decline The light of gladness, or of hope, or health, Be thou their solace, and their joy and wealth, As they have long been mine.

And now, O Father, take The heart I cast with humble faith on thee, And cleanse its depths from each impurity,

For my Redeemer's sake. [HYMNS OF THE AGES.

The Acorn.

"When will my training begin?" said th acorn to itself, as it unfolded its delicately-carved cup and saucer on the branch of an old oak on the edge of a forest. "I understand I am to be an oak one day, like my father. All the acorns say that is what we are to be, but there certainly seems little chance of it at present. I have been sitting here for no one knows how many days, begin ?" and I feel no change, except that I look less pre than I did when I was young and green, finest buds and begin to feel rather dry, and shriveled, and old.
