Making a Success With Apples

An Ohio orchard company produced 3,500 barrels of apples last year from a young orchard growing on a hill land that is selling unplanted at $60 per acre. The varieties grown are Ben Davis, Rome Beauty, Grimes Golden, Yellow Transparent, Jonathan and Baldwin. Over $200 was realized from plums grown as fillers between the apple trees. The apples are graded and packed in boxes and barrels, labeled with the name of the variety, the growers' name and their guarantee, with the motto, "Same All Through—U C Top U C All". Particular attention is given to the marketing. The manager says, "The selling end is fully one-half of the business of fruit growing." Most of the crop is put in cold storage in the city until Spring, when it is placed on the market and disposed of at a good price. This year a hillside storage house will be built on the farm and the apples kept there until ready for market. It is also planned to build a reservoir on one of the hills to provide water for irrigating the trees during dry weather. This reservoir will be kept filled by the use of a hydraulic ram. The apple trees are kept mulched with manure and straw, much of the manure being hauled from town, a mile and a half away. About five pounds of nitrate of soda is scattered around each tree each season. And of course, they are kept pruned and sprayed. The junior member of the company is a former student of the College of Agriculture, Ohio State University.—Ex.

MINARD'S LINIMENT CO., LIMITED

Dear Sirs,—While in the country last summer I was badly bitten by mosquitoes, so badly that I thought I would be disabled for a couple of weeks. I was advised to try your Liniment to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected, a few applications completely curing the irritation, and preventing the bites from becoming sore. MINARD'S LINIMENT is also a good article to keep off the mosquitoes.

Yours truly,
W. A. V. R.

Miss Coldwell May Be in Provinces

Relatives and friends of Miss Elta H. Coldwell, the attractive young assistant in the Brookline Public Library who has been missing nearly a week, base their last hopes that she has not met with foul play upon the possibility that she may have gone to visit relatives in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick.

They have communicated with her relatives in those provinces and are awaiting a reply in the hope that it will bring news of the young woman. They are still positive that no secret love affair figures in her strange absence, but the fear she may have met with foul play has become more disturbing.

When Miss Coldwell took her annual vacation, she visited her aged grandmother in Kings county, Nova Scotia, and this circumstance has led to the hope that she may have gone there again.—Ex.

Red Hot

It was a very hot day. The dust arose in clouds with every breath of air, yet that was better than the intense heat when the wind did not blow.

Georgie sat at the window, holding a great palm-leaf fan, and trying to keep his temper as well as his body cool.

A great fly came buzzing in at the door that Kate had left open, and Georgie knew that mamma did not allow flies in the house.

So he watched him cautiously until he was still for a moment, then grasped him quickly.

O! he gasped, letting him go again. That fly is red hot, mamma O, how he burned. The fly is as a bee!—The Little ones.
