PRISONER LING DISCHARGED

Mrs. Hartley. BRANTFORD, Ont.; June 29.—The trial of Mrs. Maria Hartley and Henry Ling was resumed at the police court's yesterday. Isaac Haight, George Morgan and James Peterson were in the witness box, but the evidence produced was much the same as Peterson were in the witness box, but the evidence produced was much the same as that at the soroner's inquest.

There being no criminating evidence against Henry Ling, he was discharged with the consent of the crown.

Henry Ling was then put in the witness box and testified that improper relations existed between Mrs. Hartley and himself on the day Caleb Hartley went to Hamilton. Mrs. Hartley told him, Ling, she had given Caleb a big dose of Rough on Rats in rhubarb pis. She intended to do it three years ago and offered him, Ling, one thousand dollars to keep quiet. She wanted the insurance and was going to have it. Ling refused to keep the secret and told Mrs. Hartley that if he had known that, he never would have worked there. She, Mrs. Hartley, said she could have any young man of twenty around New Durham. She had been giving him, Caleb Hartley, the poison all along. She said instead of giving the powders the doctors ordered she threw them out and gave the poison instead. The Saturday before Caleb Hartley died Mrs. Hartley told Ling she had given him a big dose of the poison and never expected to see him return from Hamilton alive. Mrs. Hartley put Elsie Conkwright out to watch that Caleb Hartley did not come home when he, Ling, was in the room with her. This closed the examination.

Lawyer Kelly, counsel for Ling, went into the room where the crown witnesses were and was ejected by a policeman. When Ling went into the witness box Kelly tried to induce Ling to refuse to give evidence, but without avail.

The police magistrate committed Mrs. Hartley for trial at the fall assizes on the charge of murder. FIGURED IN THE REBELLION.

During the rebellion of 1887 he was on duty at Amhersburg and other points along the Detroit river, and later on was in command of the military at Kingston. He was also in charge of the forces when Von Schultz, one of the leaders of the rebellion, was hanged. While chief clerk in the quarter-master general's office at Montreal he was accused of being connected with the conspiracy to burn the Parliament Buildings and was forced to retire from the service.

Some years later it was shown that he had been unjustly accused, and he was given a civil service position in the Customs Department.

After quitting the military service Captain Les turned his attention to theatricals, and for five years travelled with E.

The Canadian delegates are Mr. Mackenzie Bowell, Sir Adolphe Caron, Mr. Goo.

E. Foster and Mr. Sandford Fleming.

The delegates assembled in the Senate Chamber at half-past ten o'clock, and Lord Aberdeen delivered the opening address. Sir John Thompson followed, and his Excellency then called upon the Earlof Jersey and a delegate from each of the colonies represented to make an address. The Governor-General, in welcoming the delegates, said they had come together to discuss matters which were of great importance to the empire as a whole. The objects of the meeting were well defined. The programme of work was large and important. Australian trade for Canada might be very large and great things also might be expected from South Africa.

Sir John Thompson said that Canada realized that while there were many ties of fraternialism and patriotism, than matters of hard, matter-of-fact trade, it was to consider these matters that the conference had been summoned. Many years of good government had proved to the colonies that British connection was best; that the presperity of the colonies depended upon maintaining the tie that bound them to the mother land.

The Earl of Jersey said there was no precedent for such a gathering. Some 70 years had elapsed since the first colonial conference was held in London. It was unfortunate in one sense that the representation of Great Britain had fallen upon conference was held in London. It was unfortunate in one sense that the respesentation of Great Britain had fallen upon one who was not a member of the Government. He could assure his hearers though that his best would be done. The Earl closed with a eulogy of the Canadian people who had made the conference possible. Canada had linked two great occaus with courage and skill. She had become the hospitable half way house of the empire. He was sure that the conference would result in the strengthening of ties batween the mother country and the colonies.

ties between the mother country and the colonies.

The Hon. Nicholas Fitzgerald of Tasmania, hoped that the conference would not only result beneficially to the colonies and to the mother country, but that many more such conferences might be held with the same object as this one in view.

Hon. F. B. Satton, of New South Wales, who followed, hoped the conference would cement the union of the colonies and redound to the prosperity of the colonies and the Empire.

Sir Henry Devilliers, representing Cape Colony, declared the results of the conference would be most important and touched on the responsibilities that lay on the delegates.

Hon. Thos. Playtord, South Australia, who is a gentleman of ample bulk, created a laugh by locularly saying though he represented almost the smallest colony, he himself was the largest specimen of humanity in the Chamber. He dealt with himself was the largest specimen of hu-manity in the Chamber. He dealt with the trade question which the conference was to consider. He said there was no sentiment in trade. It was a matter of pounds, shillings, and was a matter of sentiment in trade. It was a matter of pounds, shillings and pence. Australia would not send over anything unless she got something in return. Canada was the same as regards Australia. However, he felt a trade could be built up. He paid Canada a compliment on its federation and said he believed when the delegates went back to Australia and told of Canada's success and saisfaction with confederation they would be able to forward the movement towards the unity of the Australian colonies.

ment towards the unity of the Australian colonies.

Mr. Alfred Lee-Smith, of New Zealand, followed with appropriate expressions of approval of the objects of the conference.

Hon. Simon Fraser, of Victoria, said the antipodes wondered at the success of the great Dominion. He congratulated Canada on its confederation, and declared that the conference, even if it did not produce any immediate results, the seeds of closer trade relations at least would be sown,

DOMINION PARLIAMENT

OTTAWA, June 26.—In the House Mr. Mulock once more brought to the attention of Parliament the question of freight rates charged upon cattle from the port of Montreal and the necessity for legislation to remedy this will.

He regretted that it was impossible for his bill being again reached this session, since the Government had taken all the days of the week for its own business. He want on to say that there was a combination among vessel owners to keep up rates, and this combination had the effect of injuring not only cattle buyers, but the farmers of the country. If the manufacturing industry was injured in this way the Government would not have hesitated to grapple with the grievance. The cattle trade was equally as important.

Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper danied that

A large batch of Government bills of an unimportant character was elsered from the order paper, and a few hours were spent on the estimates.

Orrawa, June 27.—The House of Commons devoted the whole day to a discussion of the salaries of Judges of the Supreme and Erchequer Courta. This discussion arcse on a motion of Sir John Thompson to make provision whereby a Judge of the Supreme Court, who had spent five years on that bench and who had been for fifteen years a judge of a Superiors such could, after he had reached the age of 40 years of age, retire on his own option—on the salary he was then drawing. The Premier, held that this would have the effect of strengthening the court, since it would allow a judge whose vigor was gone retiring without any diminuation of salary when probably it would be difficult for him to do so on the reduced allowance. It was also necessary to improve the positions of the last than any the heads as as to make them.

It was also necessary to improve the positions on the bench so as to make ther more attractive and lucrative for leading men at the bar to aspire to the same.

Hon. Wilfred Laurier strongly opposed the change. Several Liberals also spoke against. Among those was Mr. Tarte. The latter went on to speak of the corruption that prevailed among judges in the brovince of Quebec. He said that Judge Bosse, who s.t on the celebrated McGreevy case, had received a cheque signed in plank from Hon. Thomas McGreevy. At any rate the latter said sor. He would have brought up certain charges in the Hones against the judiciary in Quebec, but his witnesses, who were lawyers, were afraid it would injure their cases afterwards.

moved that when it adjourned at high it would stand adjourned until to-morrow. This, he said, was done principally on account of the opening of the intercolonial conference. It might, however, as well be done on the ground that the day was the anniversary of the coronation of her Majesty. The conference of delegates from Australia and the sister colonies would assemble in the city and the Government intended to give them a warm welcome. To give an opportunity to the members of Parliament joining with them in doing this he moved that the House would not sit to transact business. Hon. Wilfrid Laurier said that the reason that it was coronation day was not a valid one for the House adjourning this year more than any year in the past. He, however, cordially agreed to the adjournment for the purpose of giving a welcome to the representatives of the Imperial Government and the representatives of the opinion of the members of the House was that Parliament should not sit on Canada's natal day.

to the representatives of the Imperial Government and the representatives of the different colonies to the conference. The motion was then carried.

Two or three Government bills were advanced a stage and the balance of the evening was taken up in supply.

OTTAWA, "une 30.—The House of Commons has decided not to meet on Monday, which is to be observed as Dominion day. Although the session is already a long one. The Premier thought that that the general opinion of the members of the House was that Parliament should not sit on Canada's natal day.

Hon, Wilfrid Laurier agreed to this, but impressed upon the Government the necessity of calling Parliament seather in the future earlier than the month of March. The universal idea was that Parliament should always be summoned in January.

The house sat in concurrence for a couple of hours so as to finally pass enough of the estimates to put in a partial supply bill to enable the Government to carry on the affair of the country until such time as proregation comes, as the fiscal year closes to-day. In concurrence Mr. Mulcok made a strong attack against the Kingston Military College, which since its establishment a few years ago has cost nearly one million and a quarter dollars. There were only to-day service of the Dominion, For this expenditure he accused the Government of keeping the college for the dispositing of patronage to its political favorites to the prejudice of the militia and the great loss of the country.

Hon. Mr. Sutton, of Queensland, moved, and Sir Charles Mills, of Cape of Good Hope, seconded, a resolution that loyal and congratulatory addresses be presented to Her Majesty, which was adopted, after which the ceremonies closed with the singing of God Save the Queen.

There were upwards of 300 guests in the Russell last night to the Tuperial and Colonial delegates by the Canadian Conference. Hon.
