JUNE WEDDINGS

McLellan-Williams

A very interesting event took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Williams of Long Settlement on Wednesday June 25 at 3 o'clock, when their daughter Mildred Iva became the bride of Mr. Karl Ezra McLellan of Oakville.

The bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father, by whom she was given in marriage, gowned in white georgette over white satin with bridal veil and orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and maiden hair fern.

The bride was attended by her little niece, Miss Mildred McIntyre, who acted as ring bearer, dressed in pink silk.

The marriage ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Rees Jones, rector of Centreville, the bridal party standing under an arch of green and white, the double ring service being used.

Mendelssohn's Wedding March was rendered by Miss Hazel Margison.

A large number of relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony, after which the guests repaired to the dining room where a sumptuous supper was served.

The dining room was prettily decorated with yellow and white crepe paper and cut flowers.

The bride was the recipient of many beautiful presents, including silver, cut glass, china and money. From the groom she received a beautiful neck lace of la tuesca pearls; to the ring bearer, he gave a gold locket and chain.

The happy couple left by auto amid showers of confetti for their future home at Oakville bearing with them the good wishes of their many friends.

DeLong-DeLong

One of the prettiest of June home weddings was that solemnized on Wednesday, June 25, at 3 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bradford DeLong, Avondale, when their daughter Edith was united in marriage to Hilston DeLong of Brookville.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. C. N. Barton, the bridal party standing beneath a beautiful arch of roses and ferns. The bridal march was played by Mrs. Barton. The bride's gown was a very pretty one of white silk with lace and beaded trimmings. She wore a bridal veil caught with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of maiden-hair fern and white roses. She was attended by her sister, Miss Gertrude DeLong, wearing a gown of white silk. Little Miss Lottie DeLong looked very sweet as flower girl dressed in pink silk. After the ceremony and congratulations luncheon was served to about 80 guests, and following the bride and groom motored to their home at Brookville. A number of valuable wedding gifts were received testifying of good will and high esteem. The groom's gift to the bride was a beautiful gold necklace and to the bridesmaid a gold pendant.

RED HOT JULY DAYS HARD ON THE BABY

July—the month of oppressive heat; red hot days and sweltering nights, is extremely hard on little ones. Diarrhoea, dysentery, colic and cholera infantum carry off thousands of precious little lives every summer. The mother must be constantly on her guard to prevent these troubles, or if they come on suddenly to fight them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot summer as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach, and an occasional dose given to the well child will prevent summer complaint, or if the troubles do come suddenly will banish it. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cts., a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

"BEST MEDICINE FOR WOMEN"

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did For Ohio Woman.

Portsmouth, Ohio.—"I suffered from irregularities, pains in my side and was so weak at times I could hardly get around to do my work, and as I had four in my family and three boarders it made it very hard for me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. I took it and it has restored my health. It is certainly the best medicine for women's ailments I ever saw."—Mrs. SARA SHAW, R. No. 1, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Mrs. Shaw proved the merit of this medicine and wrote this letter in order that other suffering women may find relief as she did.

Women who are suffering as she was should not drag along from day to day without giving this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a trial. ### John McDougall

The whole community was shocked to hear of the sudden death of John McDougall which took place at his home in East Glasville on June 10 after an illness of only 24 hours. He had been troubled with stomach trouble for some time but had always been able to attend to his work until the night previous to his death, when after working all day on the hay press he was taken violently ill and medical aid proving of no avail he passed away Tuesday night.

Deceased was 63 years of age, and was born in Scotland, coming to this country with his parents when young. He married Margaret Lamont of West Glasville who died eight years ago. His eldest son Archibald made the supreme sacrifice three years ago. Three children survive: William, Lillian and Harold all of this place. He leaves one sister Mrs. Sarah McFay of Cedar Rapids, whom he visited a few weeks before his death.

Mr. McDougall was of a jovial disposition with a cheerful word for all. He will be greatly missed by everyone and much sympathy is expressed for the family.

AN IDEAL GENERAL

Late Gen. Lipsett Idolized by His Men.

Appropos the discussion of Canadian high commanders arising out of Sir Sam Hughes' charges in Parliament, Maj.-Gen. Louis James Lipsett, C.B.E., C.M.G., B.S.O., commander of the Third Canadian Division, who was killed just before the armistice, was about as splendid an example of the ideal general officer as could be found. He commanded the division for nearly three years, and in that time won the affection and sincere esteem of tens of thousands of Canadians.

Gen. Lipsett won his way into the hearts of his men by two means: his personal bravery, and his personal interest in the men.

It was not only before battles that Gen. Lipsett was to be found in the front line. He was an indefatigable "straffer," and in order to keep his twelve battalions up to concert pitch all the time, he spent every hour he could spare from his command and the machinery of administration, up in the line, striving the ground, circulating on raids, and keeping in touch with the spirit of the troops. In the infernal mud and corruption of the Somme, he was an ever-present visitor in the heart of the fight. In the impenetrably filthy trenches in which the corps spent the winter of 1916-1917, around Neuville St. Vaast, Gen. Lipsett braved the mud three and four times a week to cheer the troops with his shy smile. And at Amiens, in August, 1918, no third division man will ever forget the sight of Gen. Lipsett, with his orderlies, galloping cheerily along the shell-swept roads and over the green fields, not more than a thousand yards from the front of the battle.

He was a practical believer in the army regulation that staff officers should be personally acquainted with the ground and the progress of their battle. And as he walked around the shell-swept battle ground, the fact that his bravery was too big for a soldier of the third division felt they could not spare "Louis" Lipsett, and it was with trepidation that the troops watched him striding about the countryside. In fact, it was a common saying among the men that Gen. Lipsett was bound to "get it" sooner or later. Alas, he "got it" only a few days before the finish of the great war in which he had played so noble a part.

Quite unexpectedly, after the battle of Arras in August, 1918, word came that Gen. Lipsett was to leave the Third Division of Canadians and go to take command of the Fifth Imperial Division. Of course, it was intended as a boost for Gen. Lipsett, as he would be having command of a force in the British army, which was his life's profession. But neither the Third Division nor Gen. Lipsett could see it that way. He came up early in September to the neighborhood of Vis en Artois, where his battalions were in rest, and called for battalion parades. He visited the battalions in turn, and there were tears in his eyes and in his men's, too, as he made a typically shy, bashful speech to them in farewell.

"For three years," he said, "I have done all in my power to command you as efficiently as you responded to command. It has been a great privilege to command you splendid men, and I desire to thank you with all my heart for the honor you have bestowed upon me as your commander."

And the battalions, formed up in hollow squares, presented arms, and then cheered themselves hoarse, remembering how this shy, brave young general had spent his days in eliminating all chance out of the men's way.

He had a great memory for names and faces, and knew even the newer lieutenants by name, and many of the old non-coms.

Gen. Lipsett was only 44 when he was killed. He was a professional soldier, born in Wales, and belonged to the Royal Irish Regiment. He came out to Canada in 1911 as a staff officer on the Canadian permanent force with the rank of major. At the outbreak of the war he raised the 8th Battalion, "Black Devils," in Winnipeg, and commanded them in France through the Canadians' first battle at Ypres.

It is said that he would certainly have been chosen corps commander after Byng if he had been Canadian-born.

The Third Division has the one big regret that "Louis" Lipsett, the fair-haired and blue-eyed young man who made the division one of the finest in the whole British army, was not with them when the came home.

It Helps Others Will Help Me

With This Belief Many Thousands Have Learned the Exceptional Value of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

You hear people talking about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. You read about it in the newspapers. You wonder if it would benefit you. And while you are hesitating others are using it to great advantage.

This treatment for the restoration of the blood and nerves is so different to most medicines that you may not realize why you can be so certain of benefit from its use. In order to maintain the vigor of the nervous system an abundance of pure, rich blood is necessary. When the nervous system becomes exhausted and you are easily tired and suffer from headaches, dizziness, instability of indulgence, it is because the blood is failing to supply proper nutrition to the nervous system.

By forming a rich blood, Dr. Chase's Nerve Food naturally and certainly restores the vigor of the nerves. Since it works hand-in-hand with nature, it cannot fail to be of benefit, and there is no reason why it will not help you just as it has the writer of this letter.

Mrs. Stephen G. Thwaites, Box 205, Jordan, Ont., writes: "For about a year I was troubled with nervousness, and took doctor's medicine, but it did not seem to relieve me. I could not sleep nor concentrate myself to do anything. I had severe headaches, was tired all the time, and afraid to stay alone. I also had several nerve medicines until almost discouraged. At last I discovered Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and found relief in this. I had only taken one bottle when I began to feel better. I continued using this treatment until my nerves were restored to perfect health. I think the Nerve Food splendid for nervous troubles of any kind, and cannot recommend it too highly."

(Rev. J. P. Brennan, Vincennes, Ont., states: "This is to certify that I know Mrs. Thwaites, and her statements are correct.")
