him, chair and all, out of the door. John, his brother, cried shame on him. Prisoner said he would beat his father or any one else who would take his part. I did not see the old man struck either with fist or poker. I was frightened; thought I might be next sorry I was there, had no business there; said so to others; said that I thought that the old man would not be alive in the morning, and that we should be all brought up. I could not understand the old man, he appeared to be crying for help, let me alone or something else. Saw prisoner's wife strike deceased with a towel. Saw Car strike him with a leather waist belt. The towel would not have hurt him much—I would not have liked a blow with the belt. Deceased fended it off with his arm raised above his head. Saw him receive no other blows. Prisoner's language was very bad, gross and violent. When I left, the old man was near the door in his chair. Some of the company were in the room, some outside, making their escape, I believe.

Mary Adams and Harriet Pierce, wives of two of the preceding witnesses and James Roper were also examined, but their evidence only served to corroborate that already adduced.

Mary Bell—Besides about a mile from prisoner's house. Deceased was brought to her house by Isaac and John Henderson. He was in a very frail state, saw that he had sustained injury, had a tumor behind the cheek, just below the ear. It was very sore, put a bread and milk poultice to it—it softened and after a while broke, it discharged a great deal. Deceased did not seem alarmed about his fate, I thought he would get over it. I afterwards said to him that he would die. He once said that it would be a horrid thing to send an old man to his grave with two black eyes. When he first had the poultice on he said, who struck him. He was not sensible the day he died, he made no complaints after the Friday—he died the Saturday night.

Cross examined.—Was not absent at all up to the time he died; was absent a little bit on the Friday before he died; sent for Isaac on the Monday and on Friday night.

Dr. Hotkirk and Dr. M'Kenzie were severally called; but as the evidence given by both was essentially the same, we include them under one head. They held a post-mortem examination on the body of the deceased about the end of March. There were marks of violence on the body—on the knees, skin was scratched; traces of old bruises on the right side. There was a large abscess on the right side of the neck behind the angle of the jaw, near to the spinal column, and involved part of the tongue; appeared to have been caused by a severe contusion.

It was the opinion of both learned gentlemen, that the abscess had not arisen from natural causes, but from external injuries. Both attributed the death of the subject to the abscess. A discussion then ensued between the Court and Counsel for the prisoner, as to whether sufficient evidence had been adduced to convict the acts of the prisoner with the death of his father.

The objection was then followed up by the Counsel for the Prisoner, who contended that the Crown having failed to make out a prima facia case, inasmuch as it did not appear, that the violence which the evidence for the Crown had testified to, had in any manner caused, procured or hastened the death of the deceased, that the prisoner was entitled to be acquitted by the Jury under the direction of the Court. The Judges having consulted, decided upon letting the evidence go to the Jury on the point, as to whether or not they could find the injuries to the deceased, which had been given in evidence, to be so immediately connected with the death, as to have hastened or procured it. The Prisoner's Counsel in his address to the Jury, said, that the turn which the case had now taken, would very much facilitate the labours both of Jury and advocate, and also of the Court, he would forbear to comment upon the whole mass of evidence produced by the Crown, and would in effect cut short the case by merely confining himself to that evidence which in any degree bore upon the point, now immediately before the Jury, and so confident was he that he had no case to meet, and that there was no evidence on the part of the Crown which it was incumbent on the Prisoner to rebut, that he would call no witnesses whatever for the defence, although a great many were in attendance.

It was already in evidence, as testified by one of the Crown witnesses, James Adams, a witness too, who of all others, had spoken most harshly against the Prisoner, that on the night of the wedding, and before any disturbance took place, deceased had an abscess or swelling of some sort under his right jaw, that deceased had pointed it out to him and put his hand upon it, and that it was proved by the medical gentlemen who held the post mortem examination, that the death was attributed to that abscess and to no other cause in their opinion, here then the death was accounted for by other means than those connected with the prisoner.

The Counsel then dwelt at some length on the fact that there was no evidence that the prisoner at all interfered with, or struck that part of the face in the locality of the abscess, indeed this assumption was completely negatived by the Crown Witnesses, who all testified that it was in the upper region of the head that the prisoner struck or tapped the deceased, he deemed it therefore quite unnecessary to attempt to prove a negative, but without further evidence would leave the matter to the Jury under the direction and charge of their Lordships.

(For Haszard's Gazette.)

Mr. Editor:—It may interest some of your readers to notice how we of the country improve the passing hour and add one quota of enjoyment to the present grateful season of rural rest.

We were this day delighted with a visit paid to the beautiful grounds adjoining the Parish Church, where we found assembled above one hundred children belonging to the Sunday Schools of Crapaud and upper Westmoreland, to which the parson's amiable lady, together with several leading members of the congregation, had determined through their laudable exertions, to afford a day of innocent enjoyment. And such it was, if there is any virtue in creature comforts and youthful recreations. There were tables loaded with most palatable dainties, as we ourselves can testify, borne to us by gentle hands and welcoming hearts.

We were particularly pleased with the sweet voices of the children, when every half hour or so, they were called from their mirth, and ranged in a semi-circle round their Pastor, sung Psalms and Hymns and Spiritual Songs, happy and innocent as their rival songsters of the neighbouring woods. And we cannot refrain bearing witness to the ready and unhesitating obedience to their teachers and minister, which placed them in pleasing contrast with the schools in more populous vicinities.

Towards the conclusion of the day's festivities, several pleasing Addresses were delivered by Rev. Mr. Roach, Mr. Holland, Donald Palmer Esquire, and Mr. William Pearson; after which the National Anthem was sweetly sung by all, appropriate prayer offered, and the children dismissed, carrying to their homes the experience of a day well spent and long to be remembered.

We felt gratified to learn that it is the intention of the good people of Crapaud to hold a Public Tea Meeting, on the same grounds, on Wednesday the 27th inst.; for the purpose of enclosing the Parsonage frame, already erected. We wish them every success, and shall, if spared, make one of the number of guests, and trust that many of the elite of Charlottetown will favor Crapaud with their presence.

It may be well to add, for the encouragement of visitors to the Tea Meeting, that Crapaud abounds in beautiful scenery; perhaps more so than any other part of the Island; and at this present season presents a lovely landscape of all that tends to charm the eye and lure the sense; and better still, its inhabitants are of the right sort—real old fashioned open hearted Englishmen—who will "be careful to entertain strangers," we doubt not, provided they deposit their English Shillings to aid them in their good work.

Twelvetrees Brothers' Soap Powder

(an entirely new invention)

IS the cheapest, safest, best, and most effectual article for all washing purposes, a packet of which is equal to ten Pennyworth of Soap!

The saving of Time and Labour is so astonishingly great, that a WEEK'S WASH can be accomplished BEFORE BREAKFAST—no rubbing being required.

This wonderful Article is MORE SERVICEABLE THAN SOAP, as it produces a better and much quicker lather, and is adapted for purposes for which Soap cannot be safely or effectually used.

It will not injure the hands, or the most delicate material; but whilst it is incomparable for permanently whitening Linens, &c., after they have become discoloured by age, or injured by bad Washing, it is also unsurpassable for improving the colors of FLANNELS, BLANKETS, WOOLLENS, COLORED PRINTS, MUSLIN and LACE. For Sale by

S. A., to be given as Prizes; and would also draw attention to the Plan of the Art Union of Glasgow, which partakes of all the best features of the different systems now adopted by contemporary Associations; for while, on the one hand, a guarantee is afforded, from an experienced Committee purchasing the Pictures, that nothing but Works of Merit will be bought, the Subscribers, on the other hand, have all the advantages of Money Prizes, in having the privilege of selecting from the Works of Art purchased, according to the number of the Prize allotted to them, each Painting, or other Work of Art, as may be most pleasing to them.
