

OLD ALBION'S CHIMES.

An old Poem made its Appearance as an Entirely New Popular Song - A Case of Flagitancy.

In the year 1840 there appeared in the New York Churchman, a poem written by Bishop Cox, of Western New York, titled "The Chimes of England." The poem ran...

These verses attracted considerable notice at the time of publication, and were by many Canadians treasured as a graceful tribute to the mother country from a native-born American. The poem was published in book form along with a collection of Bishop Cox's ballads and circulated widely in England and America.

To the surprise of numerous Canadian admirers of the bishop's writings, he supplemented to the April number of Bow Bells contained the exact words of his poem set to music under the title "The Chimes of England." The fact that the outer page of the musical supplement bears the legend, "Words by Augustus Greville, Esq.," aroused the suspicions of a gentleman living in the city, who at once communicated with Rev. Dr. Cox, forwarding a copy of the song. In reply the Bishop states, "The poem has been included in my published volumes here and in England for more than forty years. It might be well to enquire who and where is Augustus Greville, Esq. I fancy he is of Utopia and wrote poetry in the Greek Kalends of A. M. 20,000. In the 'chimes' as published in Bow Bells, one single word is altered. All the rest is identically my own. If the name be not merely made up because an American has no right to sing of England as a son, the whole thing is unaccountable. It would appear from the statement of the Bishop that Mr. John Dick, publisher of Bow Bells, has been imposed on by a gentleman possessed of more ambition than originality.

A Modern Maple Sugar Grove. A very touching description of a modern maple sugar camp appeared some weeks ago in the columns of the Free Press. The writer was disappointed at finding the sap gathered in patent buckets instead of in the old-fashioned trough and boiled in a patent evaporator set on a brick furnace instead of in the old black iron kettle of huge dimensions bubbling over a great hickory fire. The writer must have been an old fogey indeed, for the so-called modern camp he speaks of has long since given way to the still more recent methods of making maple sugar. One of the finest maple sugar camps of the west is situated right here in Detroit. The camp, which when first started, occupied one room in the basement, has now extended over the entire underground floor of a large building. A report on visiting the maple grove, found the horny-handed farmers hard at work sugaring off. Great barrels of the poorest sort of Cuba sugar, damp, dark and clammy, stood in the cellar, like execrable Cubans with their heads off. Shallow copper tanks simmered over coal fires on a snappetted off twig in his lump of maple sugar.

"Yes," said the bronzed agriculturist, "now is our busy season. We use up several barrels of Muscovada sugar a day. We dump the sugar into the pans and stir it up with hot water. Then we add the sand and ground leaf and twigs."

"I don't twig," said the reporter. "What is that?" "Oh, we get maple leaves and break 'em up. Nothing pleases a man so much as to find a bit of maple leaf or a snappetted off twig in his lump of maple sugar."

"And the sand?" "Oh, well, sand is cheap enough and helps big in weighing out the chunks. People are sort of educated up to expecting sand in their sugar."

"You use real maple sugar to give the flavor, I suppose?" "Bless you, no; that's the old-fashioned way and it's expensive. Now we have flavoring extract in them carboys, and we can turn out any brand of maple sugar that's called for."

The boy was laddling out the dark-looking fluid into molds that held about a pound each, some molds held five lbs. Another poured the more liquid stuff into cans labeled: "Pure Vermont Maple Syrup - Beware of imitations." "I suppose you sell the most of it in the city here?"

"No, very little. The greater part goes to farmers in the country, who bring it in again in farm wagons and sell it around the streets at homes where the people will only have the pure article, and who don't buy from the regular store."

This is the real old-fashioned maple sugar camp. None other are genuine. [Detroit Free Press]

A Man for the Doctor. Is generally the first thing in case of an injury, but a doctor cannot always respond to the call. If you have Hagyard's Yellow Oil at hand, you have a reliable remedy for all wounds, injuries and pain. It has saved life when even doctors had abandoned hope. Keep it ready for use.

No; she lingered and suffered all day, spinning all the time for years. The doctor doing her no good, and at last she was "cared by this Holy Bitters" the papers say so much about. Indeed! indeed! "how thankful we should be for that 'medicine'."

Fever, colic, unnatural appetite, fretfulness, weakness, and convulsions, are some of the effects of worms in children; destroy the worms with Dr. Low's Worm Syrup.

Freeman's Worm Powders destroy and remove worms without injury to adult or infant.

Good Breeding.

"To do justice and judgment is more acceptable to the Lord than sacrifices," says an old Jewish proverb. Men heed this wise saying when they violate the laws of the law in order to exult in their spirit. A lady responds to it as often as she breaks a rule of etiquette, that she may obey the higher law of kindness. The lady who presides over a certain aristocratic family in Washington is famed for her perfect manners and strict observance of social etiquette. Her dinners are faultless for their dainty and exquisite style, and a great guest always feels a glow of pleasure when he is invited to dine at Mrs. L's.

Once upon a time a distant relative of the lady, a young man unaccustomed to the ways of society, received an invitation to a dinner party at the grand house. He was bashful and awkward and made more than one blunder before the dinner hour arrived. But when the guests were seated at the table he thought his trials were over, as each guest would be too busy with the serious business of eating to observe him.

Soup was served, as usual, and he was actively plying his spoon, when, to his dismay, he heard the young man sitting next to him whisper, as he nudged him: "Don't drink your soup from the end of your spoon! Drink from the side of it as I do!"

The hostess was sitting directly across the table from her rustic relative, and as he dropped his spoon in confusion at his neighbor's rebuke, she gracefully lifted her spoon, and, to the intense relief of the youth, put the end of the spoon to her lips!

He had the wit to turn to the discomfited young man who had so openly rebuked him, and, in a whisper loud enough to be heard across the table, exclaimed: "You may use your spoon as you please! I shall follow the example of the hostess!"

For once in that house a rule of etiquette was set aside for the sake of good breeding. [Washington letter.]

What To Do. If troubled with an unhealthy, slow-healing sore use McGregors' Painless Carbolic Cream. You will find it invaluable for healing, cleansing and completely removing your trouble. If the blood is out of order, take with it a few doses of McGregors' Speedy Cure from Rhynds drug store.

Franks of the Tornado. A signboard, marked "six miles to Montgomery, Ala.," was found in the mountains after the tornado, 250 miles from Montgomery.

A gentleman of Birmingham, Ind., sat with a child upon each knee during the recent cyclone. The house was demolished and the man killed, but neither of the children were injured.

Daniel Watson, of Rockingham, N.C., kept his gun near the head of his bed. When he was found after the storm, his gun had been discharged and the entire charge had passed through his body.

Next Indianapolis a horse and buggy, containing two men going in the face of the storm were separated, the buggy being blown through a fence, leaving the horse in the street. Neither the men nor the animal was injured.

A chest lodged in the yard of Mrs. Charles Fitters, near Wheeling, W. Va., which, among other things, contained many letters that had been written while the writer was in the army, and were addressed to his sweetheart (now his wife). The owner of the chest lived in industry.

Robert Wilson had just retired to bed when the wind struck his home at Rockingham, N.C. His clothing lay upon a chair, and in his vest was a gold watch. He was blown out into the garden, and his watch was found hanging by the chain in the top of a high tree near by. It was still going.

Danger Signals. Reader, if you are troubled with pain, weakness, weariness and a dragging feeling in the small of the back, thin, thin, colored - slimy urine, then you have alarming signals of danger, and should resort to Burdock Blood Bitters, the grand kidney regulator and blood and liver cleansing tonic.

Pain banished as if by magic. Polson's Nerve Tonic is a positive and almost instantaneous remedy for external, internal or local pains. The most active remedy hitherto known falls far short of Nerve Tonic for potent power in the relief of nerve pain. Good for internal or external use. Buy a 10 cent sample bottle at J. Wilson's. Large bottles 25 cents.

A Handy Surgeon.

As a dressing for all manner of flesh wounds there is nothing better than Hagyard's Yellow Oil. It cleanses, allays pain, subdues inflammation and heals without a scar or stiffness of the parts involved. It is equally valuable as a pain remedy for internal use.

Adopting Mr. Mackenzie's Plan.

One by one the slanders circulated by Tories against Mr. Mackenzie's Government, and charges of mismanagement hurled against the late Premier, have been thoroughly exposed and refuted by Sandford Fleming in his evidence before the Pacific Railway Commission. The "water crotchets" have been adopted by the present Government, and now Sir Hector Langverin has been forced to confess that the Lake Superior port of the Canadian Pacific Railway is to be at Fort William, and that a portion of the money voted for Port Arthur pier is to be spent in dredging the bar at the mouth of the Kaministiquia River. Time brings its revenges, and now Mr. Mackenzie has the satisfaction not only of seeing the charges that were made against his Administration thoroughly refuted, but his opponents have been forced to adopt and carry out his policy in all important respects. [Globe.]

Field Lightning. There are but few that have never suffered almost intolerable pain from Toothache, Neuralgia, or like acute pains. To them such an instant relief as Fluid Lightning is an ungodly blessing in time of trouble. No lingering, offensive medicines to be taken for days. One application of Fluid Lightning cures. Sold at Rhynds drug store.

Crowned with Success. Success has current value the wide world over. It breaks down every barrier and holds the key that unlocks every door. Prejudice, the result of many failures, and the memory of painful experiences melt away like mist before the convincing merit of Putnam's Painless Corn Extractor, and now when thousands are willing and glad to testify to its wonderful efficiency, it goes forth crowned with the success that only real merit attains. Beware of imitations. N. C. Polson & Co., proprietors, Kingston.

Merit Proven.

Dollar upon dollar is frequently spent on the faith of recommendations for articles entirely worthless. Not so with McGregors' Speedy Cure; you are not asked to purchase it until its merits are proven. Call on Rhynds drug store and get a free trial bottle and if not convinced it will cure you of the worst forms of Urinary Troubles, etc., no matter of how long standing, it costs you nothing. Sold in 50c. and $1 bottles. See testimonials from persons in your own town.

Failure Impossible.

When Polson's Nerve Tonic is used for pain. It matters not of how long standing it may be, or how often other remedies have failed to afford relief. Nerve Tonic, the great pain cure, does its work promptly. Buy a 10 cent sample bottle, and try it for internal or external pain. You will be convinced of its extraordinary power in relieving pain. Ten cent bottles at Jas. Wilson's. Large bottles 25 cents.

WASHINGTON, D.C. May 15th, 1886.

GENTLEMEN - Having been a sufferer for a long time from nervous prostration and general debility, I was advised to try Hop Bitters. I have taken one bottle, and I have been rapidly getting better ever since, and I think it the best medicine I ever used. I am now gaining strength and appetite, which all I got, and I was in despair until I tried your Bitters. I am now well, able to go about and do my own work. Before taking it I was completely prostrated. MRS. MARY STUART.

A Laughing Devil. "There was a laughing devil in his sneer," and consumption in his cough. Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam could cure the cough, but nothing the devil. This Balsam possesses wonderful properties for the cure of all kinds of lung and throat diseases. L. A. Miles, of Burleigh, Ont., had been troubled with a bad cough for six months, and could find nothing to relieve it until he got a bottle of Dr. Wilson's Pulmonary Cherry Balsam, and the second left him entirely cured.

A BANKER'S TESTIMONY. - For a Cough, Cold or any Bronchial affection, "Pectoria," in my opinion, is just the thing. I have used it in my family for Coughs and Colds for the past four years with the most unvaried success, and to-day my opinion of it is that I continue to think still more of that which I began thinking well of.
