ONE LESS FOR THE FOOL KILLER

NIAGARA FALLS, Oct. 22. Before the eyes of a score of sightseers at Prospect Point, late this afternoon, a man climbed over the railing, waded out into the river and was carried over the American Falls. Too astonished to move, spectators stood by while the man drifted to the brink waving his hand and shouting, "Here's where I leave you, goodbye." In a black derby, found near the place where the man climbed the railing, was found a piece of paper on which was written "this hat belongs to Carl A. Ellis, of Hamburg N.Y." A description of the suicid corresponds to that of Ellis, who could not be located in Hamburg tonight. The owner of a souvening stand near the Falls, told the police that the man approached him and Coal Queries. | laughingly said well to over laughingly said "well I can't vote for the Falls.'

CLEANING THE FURNACE.

Last night Pa said to Ma: "My dear, it's gettin' on to Fall, It's time I did a little job I do not like at all; wisht 'at I was rich enough to hire

The dirty work around this house an' clean the furnace out."

Then he carted out the ashes in a basket an' a pail, An' from cellar door to alley he just left an ashy trail.

Then he pulled apart the chimney, an' 'twas full of something black,

An' he skinner most all his knockles when he tried to put it back. We could hear him talkin' awful, an' Ma looked at us an' said: think it would be better if you chil-dren went to bed."

When he came up from the cellar there was ashes in his hair,
There were ashes in his eyebrows—
but he didn't seem to care,
There were ashes in his inoustache, there were ashes in his cyes, An' we never would have known him if he'd took us by surprise. "Well, I got it clean," he sputtered, An' Ma said: "I guess that's true. nce the dirt was in the farnace, bu now most of it's on you."

London, Oct. 18 .- One effect of the coal strike upon financial London has been the weakening of the pound sterling, which has dropped to 3.44 on buying orders to cover a tual and prospective coal shipments from the United States to Europe. The effect has already been seen of continental exchanges, all of which moved against Great Britain lat last week and which were again slightly weaker to-day.

Where the Gold Goes.

Russia owes Great Britain and the English financiers nearly four billion dollars and the Britishers are rather anxious to have a return of business relations between the two countries. But if it is based upon a complete repudiation by Russia of all its obligations, industrial England will see Russia go to the rack first. A bloody slate cannot be a clean one. Russia seems to have some gold available for Lenine's propaganda, but none for the payment of debts.-Los Angeles
