INDIES.
Mr. Foster, the Dominion Minister of Finance, had a nice little trip to the West dadia Islands. He told the islanders that the took it for pleasure as well as for official Investigation, and no doubt a substantial sum will be drawn out of the public funds to defray the expenses of the tour. We regret to find, however, that there is little, L'any, chance of his offer of reciprocity to Lae islands being accepted by the southern colonies. This is the view of the leading newspaper in Jamaica; it is the conclusion by Sir N. Lubbock, chairman of the West India Committee, who, a day or two ago, sent the following letter to the London Times:

"With reference to the negotiations now pending between Canada and the West In-dies for reciprocal trade arrangements, would you allow me to make the position of the West Indies in the matter quite clear to your readers?

"It is quite true, as you have stated in your leading article, that the Canadian proposition is to reduce the duties upon sugar coming from the West Indies to the Dominion by 25 per cent.. such reduction Sugar coming from the West Indies to the Dominion by 25 per cent, sach reduction to apply exclusively to the West Indian augar. This, upon the face of it, would appear to be a very important concession to the West Indies, but when it is remembered that the consumption of sugar in Canada is about 120,000 tons, and the pro-duction of our West Indian colonies about 800,000 tons, it is obvious that the con-cession of duty will be of no benefit to the cession of duty will be of no benefit to the West Indies.

"On the other hand, the United States propose to abolish the whole of the present duty on all sugars up to No. 16 Dutch standduty on all sugars up to No. 16 Dutch standard—that is to say, on all such sugars as are produced by our West Indian colonies. This abolition, as we understand it, is not dependent upon any exceptionally favorable treatment of the United States. All that is stipulated is that the President of the United States shall be satisfied that the duties imposed on the products of the United States are not reciprocially unequal or unreasonable. It is not likely that the existing tariffs of our West Indian colonies would be looked upon in any sense as unreasonable or reciprocially unequal.

"If, however, the West Indies were to make a reciprocal arrangement with Can-

"If, however, the West Indies were to make a reciprocal arrangement with Canada, such as that proposed by Mr. Foster, it is almost certain that they would no donger be enabled to send their sugars duty free into the United States. Their position then would be that, whilst Canada would supply them with a market for one-third of their sugar, they would have the United States market practically closed to them for the other two-thirds, and they are seriously hampered in sending sugar to the English market in consequence of the continued free admission of bounty-fed sugars from the continuent.

tinued free admission of bounty-fed sugars from the continent.

"So long as England admits bounty-fed sugars on the same terms as sugar receiving no bounty, so long are our colonies placed in an unequal and unfair position in English markets to the advantage of the foreigner. Were it not for the existence of these European bounties, there would be nothing to prevent a reciprocal arrangement between our West Indian colonies and Canada, inasmuch as the surplus West Indian sugar beyond the requirements of Canada would find a satisfactory market in England.

correctness, West India reciprocity negotiations need not take long to end, for of two things the Canadian public may rest assured: however desirable it might be for us to control the West India trade, we cannot expect our fellow colonists to deprive themselves of a market for two-thirds of their products to secure sale for the remaining third. Neither is it among the possibilities that Great Britain will do any thing to prevent the European continental om taxing themselves to supply public with cheap sugar. The the British public with cheap sugar. people of continental "protectionist" nations are annually taxed many millions of dollars to pay bonuses to their sugar producers. sugar is gladly received by Great Britain, which is thus enabled to provide ugar for her big population at less than half the price it costs in Canada. More over, Britain is able to control the world's market for confections, preserves and other preparations into the production of which sugar largely enters. Many thousands of men and women bave found work in this sugar industry in the mother land since the continental nations inaugurated their policy of taxing themselves to supply Britain with cheap sugar, and the leaders of both political parties have again and again affirmed that the people like it so well and it is so profitable for the country as a whole, that under no circumstances will

The hunt for far-away markets having once more proved abortive, is it not about time that a government were placed in power that would re-establish intimate, meled, profitable trade between the States and Canada? An easy way to get cheap sugar is to reduce the enormous high tax at present imposed upon it by the Dominion Government. But we need the near market for our lumber, minerals, barley, beans, peas, horses, sheep, eggs and other products, besides many kinds of manufactures. Reciprocity with the States would bring us that. He is no lover of his country who is found on the side of the combines in opposition to the project for establishing complete reciprocal trade relations between Canada and the United States.

DOMINION ELECTIONS.

A Message to the Young Men of the

We ask the young men of Canada, who with ourselves, believe that by wise and careful government there can be built up in our Dominion a nation sufficiently great to inherit and put to the best use the natural resources of our common country, to give attention to the facts that, in view of the general election now pending, we desire to place before them.

We have been taunted with disloyalty, and to this we can but reply that we are loyal to o this we can but reply that we are loyal to landa first, and believe that in working or the freedom of trade we are striving for material prosperity that will go far toward inding together more closely the people of landa.

As Young Liberals want.
As Young Liberals we advocate and ask your assistance in advocating Unrestricted reciprocity.
The repeal of the Dominion franchise act.
The repeal of the gerrymander act.
The right to negotiate our own commercial treatries.

The right to negosiate out or reatries.

Manhood suffrage.
The reform of the Senate.
Honest competition for public contracts.
That our public lands and timber shall ne used as rewards for party services. Over 100,000 Young Men Disfranchised. By bringing on the elections on March 5, Sir John Macdonald has deprived 116,000 young men, between the ages of 21 and 23, of their right to vote.

Of the 116,000 there are 55,000 Ontario young men.
Of the 116,000 fully one-half are farmers of the 116,000 fully one-half are farmers sons.

The popular majority of the Conservatives at the Dominion election in 1887 was 5000. These disfranchised young men would have held dee balance of power twenty times over. And yet Sir John Macdonald has the audactity to say in his recent manifesto, "I appeal ..... to the young hope of the country, with whom rests its destinies for the future"!!

Another Iniquitous Result. Another Iniquitous Result.

There are about a million names on the Dominion voters' lists. At death rate of 25 per thousand the names of 50,000 dead men are on the rolls.

There will be in addition the names of at least 20,000 absentees.

This means that a wide door is opened for impersonation at the polls, in which the Conservative party managors have always shown themselves to be adepts.

A Practical Suggestion.
But these 116,000 young men, while disen-franchised, are not prevented from organiz-ing, in every polling division, with two definite objects in view:

First, of weeding out every dead man and every absentee from the voters' liste; watch the lists closely; be on hand at the polling booths from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., and thus prevent a single bogus vote from being cast. The aggregate result will prove your power, and perhaps turn the scale in many a constituency in favoriof the Liberal candidate. Second Place yourselves at the disposal of the secretaries of the polling sub-divisions with a view to assisting in getting out every Liberal vote. 116,000 extra votes polled through your exertions is the most practical finite objects in view:

through your exertions is the most practi way of expressing your indignation at your Unrestricted Reciprocity. The main issue in this contest is unrestrict placed in an unequal and unfair position in Rigilish markets to the advantage of the foreigner. Were it not for the existence of these European bounties, there would be nothing to prevent a reciprocal arrangement between our West Indian colonies and Canada, inasmuch as the surplus West Indian sugar beyond the requirements of Canada would find a satisfactory market in England.

"It may, however, be hoped that some other means may be found to draw closer the commercial ties between the West Indies and Canada, but they must be such as will not draw down upon the West Indies the hostility of their big cousin Jonathan."

This is no new view of the question, and our Finance Minister, if he had devoted any time whatever to the investigation of the condition of affairs, should have known all about it long before he set forth on his much-advertised, semi-pleasure, semi-business tour.

With the situation as recited in this let-With the situation as recited in this leternment; it was again the cry when we adopted decimal currency; it is the unwar ranted cry to-day; and is as dishonest am unjustifiable now as ever before.

Three things are necessary to the accumulation of national wealth. First, natural research the second the amplication of national wealth.

Three things are necessary to the accumulation of national wealth. First, natural resources; Second, the application of capital to the development theroot, and Third, a market in which to sell. We have greater mineral and ferest wealth than any country on the globe. But we lack capital and a market. Reciprocity, by supplying the latter, will attract the former. Canadians who have contributed largely to the rapid development of the United States only await equally favorable commercial relations to roturn and devote their capital and energies to their native land. Many of our young men are leaving us and taking up their residence across the line. This is the inevitable result of the National Policy.

England will not and does not oppose an enlargement of our trade relations with any country. Diplomatic questions of grave import are now perplexing British statesmen, and Canada is the cause of much friction between the Governments of Great Britain and the United States. The final annicable settlement of these difficulties, which would be effected by reciprocity, is more important to Britain than any alteration which might be made in our trade relations. Besides, British investments in this country to the extent of some eight hundred million dollars will share the common prosperity. These are considerations which weigh with the British mind and which should influence every voter.

Toronto, Feb. 12, 1891. A WORD TO THE FARMER.

The monopolist manufacturer who puts up the election boodle for Sir John has grown rich owing to the tariff having been made to suit him.

THIS IS TRUE!

The farmer has been growing poorer day by day, but the Tory Government has done nothing for him except to tax him.

How long shall this last?

While the gentlemen of the Red Parlor have been growing richer day by day the farmer has been going from bad to worse, until now he can no longer live on his farm and pay his way.

The mortgage and loan companies, and the taxes on the goods you have to buy just about swallow up all you can take off

Then, what is the remedy?

Free admission to the markets of the United States will give the farmer a better price for what he has to sell, and also enable him to buy many supplies cheaper than they can be got now.

Reciprocity will benefit the farmer, the villager, the workingman and all the industrial classes.

To appreciate this fact fully it is only necessary to say that five horses that trotted better than 2:20 last year were out of mares by Hambletonian. They are Stamboul, Greenlander, Henrietta, Stevie and Dawson—a better showing than performers out of mares by any other sire ever made in one season.

When a horses' shoe is to be taken off it must not be violently wrenched at the risk of splitting off a large piece of hoof with it. Let the clinched end of each nail be first turned back. Then the shoe may be carefully raised with the pincers far enough to withdraw the nails, so that their heads may be taken hold of by the pincers and each nail separately drawn out. The nails may also be drawn out one at a time, so as not to alter the position of the tip of the shoe, and a fast nail made to exactly fit the countersink in the shoe, and to pass through the same hole in the hoof, may be driven in its place.—[Southern Cultivator.
