sufice to enlighten the world on this subject. When, at the suggestion of the British Government, all the nations concerned were requested to suspend their military preparations and take part in a series of negotiations with London, on July 31, 1914, France and Russia adhered to this proposal. Peace could have been maintained even at this very critical hour if Germany had been willing to accept his idea. But Germany disrupted the situation. On the 1st of August she declared war on Russia, and made recourse to arms on Russia, and made recourse to annuavoidable. And if it is a fact that Germany diplomatically crushed this possibility of peace in its inception the reason is that for more than forty years she has been indefatigably pursuing her object, which has been the crushing of France in order to effect the ensiavement of the world.
"All these revelations are made before the court of history, where there is no place for corruption, and insomuch as France and her allies, in spite of their love of peace, have been constrained to submit to war, they will make war to the end.

France Determined. "Faithful to the signature that she attached to the treaty of September 4, 1914, and to which she pledged he honor, that is to say her life. France, acting in accord with her allies, will not sheath her sword until after taking vengeance for outraged right; until she has united for all time to the French fatherland the provinces ravished from her by force; restored heroic Belgium to the fulness of her material life and ner political independence, and until Prussian militarism has been crushed, to the end that it be possible to reconstruct, on a basis of justice, a Europe, finally regenerated.

We have inherited the There is great rejoicing in Russia over greatest burden of glory that any people can carry. Already the country has agreed to make every sacrifice that this duty entails. 'If this contest is the most gigantic ever recorded in history it is not because the people are hurling themselves into warfare to conquer the territory to win enlargement of material life and emonomic and political advantages, but because they are struggling to determine the fate of the world.

"Nothing better has ever appeared before the vision of man. Against barbarity and despotism; against the system of provocations and methodical enaces which Germany called peace against the system of murder and pil lage which Germany called war; against the insolent hegemony of a military caste which loosed the scourge, France the emancipator, France the vengeful, at the side of her allies, arose and advanced to the fray.

"That is the stake. It is greater than our lives. Let us continue then
