AND CHRONICLE. Saturday, July 3, 1869 THE great problem of Reciprocity between the United States and Canada, is soon likely to be solved. The pressure brought to bear on the Government at Washington is too persistent, and involves too many important interests to be long withstood. The builders and carpenters in the present time of financial depression are unable lumber; shipbuilding is paralysed from the same cause. Labor is scantily employed and very poorly remunerated ployed and very ployed and very ployed and very ployed ployed ployed and very ployed plo in proportion to the price for necessaries. Complaints from these classes must always be heard in the United States, and will doubtless have their due meed of attention. There are also other voices hardly less potent; there Bushell. Loewen & Lovett, B P Griffin, W are thousands of men who make a profitable calling of fishing in the waters that properly belong to Canada, and there is every likelihood of their being excluded from those waters should the treaty of Reciprocity fail. Then, again, there is a body gradually rising into said he did the best he sould with them. importance in the Republic, known as the Free Trade League; they have general principles. Mr. Courtney for apbeen agitating various questions of late and amongst the rest, Reciprocity with the League (as in England) is composed of mercantile men, than whom no class is more powerful at the White House Still another element adds its weight to the mass that is now forcing itself on the attention of statesmen at Was ... ington, and that is composed of the carrying trade in the States; they demand the free navigation of the St. Lawrence to enable them to compete with the Canadian carriers, who are continually diverting a portion of American traffic, in consequence of the low rates of freight ruling on the Canadian routes. SUDDEN DEATH .- On Wednesday morning, Mr. Julius Mitchell, who kept a store on Mill street, was found dead in his bed. Deceased had been complaining for some time of having pains in his head, but nothing serious was suticipated. On the morning in question he complained to a friend that he was very weak, and wished something to eat. While the meal was being prepared, a party etepped in to see him, but found life extinct. > DESERTERS ESCAPED .- Three sailors b longing to the U.S. S. Newbern, which coal irons for some offense they had committed on the passage up. While the steamer lay at Nansimo, they managed to get away and hid in the woods; the officers followed, and after the fellows had relieved themselves of the irons they ventured out upon the road, when they were fired at by one of the officers three times with a revolver. Fortunately none of the shots took effect, and the fellows plunged into the depths of the forest, and remained concealed until the ship had sailed, when they emerged from their hiding place and have since taken ship for a foreign shore.
