Ar. We touge that he handrahle gentleman for his courtesy, but could not avail imself of the invitation just then. If supplementary estimates were brought in it had exaped his notice. He did not profess to be a walking index, but the circumstance proved the necessity of placing before mambers a reasonable time before discussing the papers he had referred to. If these papers had been in his possession, his attention would, no doubt, have been drawn to it, and he would have had an opportunity of accertaining doubt, have been drawn to it, and he would have had an opportunity of secertaining whether supplementary estimates had been brought down or not. He would hold the Hovernment to the promises they had made and would judge them by their own measures. They found fault with the late Government for the system of keeping secounts, and yet they come down here with accounts prepared exactly similar. He recollected it maxing been stated by a member of the then Opposition, now a prominent member of the fall set night, in which all sequited them-government, that for a Government to bor-loan is for three months or one day. As a matter of fact, however, the money, no doubt, was advanced long before the end of the year. They had formerly denounced the system of farment by cheque, and yet they had paid out by cheque, and yet they had paid out by cheque $119.657.24: the cost of new Legislative Buildings, $13.712.28 on Suspense Account and $150,000, repayment of Temporary Loans from Banks—in all $383.249.52 without warrant. It makes no difference that the $150,000 is merely a payment; it was a loan, and, being a loan, was a debt, and they had no mare right to pay that debt had gheque system than any other debt due by e annually set spart for the redemption of city at an early date. ace it, the Province will become bankrupt. twill be no excuse to say that the old government did not do it in 1882. If the law cannot be worked it should be repealed.

They had promised a better administration of the finances of the country than that of the finances of the country than that of siter of the Hon. Attorney General.

their predecessors, and they had failed to carry their promise out. He compared the administration of financial affairs for the fourteen months, ending Slat December last, with that of the year ending Slat October, 1882. Taking the revenues derived from egitimate sources during both periods, and saving out all borrowed monies, and applying that sevenue to ordinary running expen-ditures which must be incurred every year, and leaving out extraordinary expenditures, such as the cost of constructing the Legislative Buildings, the Government had failed by a long chalk to make both ends meet during the past year. The Public Accounts for the reading 31st October, 1882, upon account of Ordinary Revenue and Expenditure shows a control of Ordinary Revenue and Expenditure Account of Ordinary Revenue of Ord ment had to borrow from the Dominion $60.

Looking at the General Account they have brought down, the Government show a surplus of $25,227.60. During their administration they had to borrow $466,429.64, of which During their administration borrow $466.429 64, of which

Whether this would be a prudent expenditure or not he was not prepared to ray, but used it as an argument against the general policy of the government as outlined when they were in opposition. Last session their leader had promised to come back here and show a different state of affairs from those then existing. He charged that they came back here with unfulfilled promises and that the country was thousands of dollars worse of now their when they assumed power. One charge against the late administration was that the travelling expenses of its members were excessive. We find the Provincial Secretary now accounting for that item of expenditure during the past year, and excusing it on the ground that the travelling expenses of the present members of the Government bore about the same proportion as that of the last. Will the reform Qovernment shield itself behind the deeds of their predecessor? The Provincial Secretary had stated that the actual expenditure for the year had excusing it on the ground that the country were not in a better state, and resumed his seat amid applause.

If the House last session understood the Government to report the was not the promise in this represent the law of the implied itself behind the deeds of their predecessor?
