

LYNCH LAW IN CANADA.

THREE MURDERERS SERVED UP IN BRITISH COLUMBIA.

A Clerk Killed by Highwayman at Seattle—Five Hungry Men Go to Summary Justice—The Sheriff's Report.

From the British Columbia papers which came to hand yesterday, it appears on Jan. 17, Geo. B. Reynolds, head clerk for D. A. Jennings of the town of Seattle, British Columbia, was waylaid and killed by two thieves.

The news spread as only such a terrible deed can be carried from one to another. The whole town was up in arms.

A VIOLATION COMMITTED.

Was formed at the engine house. The members were told off in pairs to patrol different parts of the city. They separated. At about 9 o'clock the men who were hanged for the crime were found by Messrs. Kellogg, Keenan, Reitz and Jones on Hartington & Smith's wharf, situated in the bay. They were taken before Justice Coombs and committed to the county jail. Shortly after this the door of the room where they were kept in charge of the officers was broken open by the vigilance committee and the men demanded. The officers refused to deliver the prisoners up; but Sheriff Wyckoff, chief of Police McGraw gave their words of honor that the prisoners should be in court the morning at nine o'clock. The shoes of the prisoners were then taken by the committee. By 9 o'clock a. m. Wednesday an overwhelming chain of evidence had been collected against the prisoners.

At about 9:30 Justice Coombs opened court in Yeelen's hall. W. H. White and Judge Jacobs appeared for the territory.

It was a strangely quiet meeting; the hall was crowded with men, their faces indicating that stern and swift justice should fall upon the men at the bar, should they be proven guilty.

The prisoners were brought into the hall at 10 o'clock. There being no witness for the prisoners (James Sullivan and Howard) Mr. Holcomb was appointed to defend them.

Overwhelming evidence having been adduced against the prisoners, after a brief consultation with his clients, their attorney said that they would not offer testimony, and Justice Coombs said he would commit the prisoners to the county jail.

THE WILD SHOOT AROUND.

The officers were seized and the prisoners escaped by a number of associates men as could be seen about them. Resistance was made by five hundred men being banded together to see that the law of justice be executed. They were hurried through the alley back of the pavilion to Occidental square, where heavy scouting had been placed between the links of the street near the Yeelen's sidewalk. One of them made some resistance in the alley, but in the twinkling he was thrown upon the ground and in another moment both men were underneath the bar, a rope already prepared was about the neck of each one, the other end thrown over the timber and in one minute from the time Justice Coombs remanded the prisoners to the custody of the officers, they were suspended between two poles without a word.

THE WORK WAS QUICKLY DONE.

Neither man said a word—or if anything was spoken, it was drowned in the roar of his indignation that carried them on. Judge Greene attempted to sever the rope that held one of the men with a knife. He was speaking about with much haste and rather roughly treated. When the men were raised to the timber over which the lines were passed, their heads came in violent contact with it. The smaller man, Howard, died at once, his neck being broken by the timber. The other man, Sullivan, was thrown upon the ground and the rope as he went up, but they at once fell loosely by his side. He gave no indication of life. Sullivan was undoubtedly strangled to death. His feet twitched and were several times drawn up. For a moment he was not extinct until the lapse of twenty minutes.

After Howard and Sullivan had been told that they were to be hanged and that nothing could save them from the gallows; that even as the last testimony was being given the rope had been procured and the timber from which they would shortly swing had been in its place, they admitted that they were the men who had murdered Geo. Reynolds last night.

MORE LYNCH LAW.

At about 11 o'clock the fire-bell gave three times three taps, calling the committee together again. The tapping of the bell carried to Benjamin Davis, the murderer of an indecisive policeman, who was shot down by Payne some months ago, his body about 500 men went to the scene of the crime, and facing on the south side and gained admission to the yard. The bolt was chopped out of the door casing, and the first door to the jail swung open. The second one was harder to conquer, but it yielded to the repeated blows of the sledges. But one door remained, and it required hard labor to get it open. It was literally battered to atoms, and gave admission to the determined men without a word. "Where's Payne?" were the first words spoken. The prisoners, who were in the corridor, where Payne was pointed, hid him out and he was seized. The committee brought him down to the square, where his feet were pointed to the gallows, and two forms suspended from a scantling with blackened faces and protruding tongues. He gave no sign of fear, except that his face was perfectly colorless. When the rope was about his neck and his hands tied, some one called out from the crowd of eight hundred or one thousand men standing about: "Did you fire the shot that killed Officer Street?" He cried out, "You hang me and you hang an innocent man. If I said anything further it could not be heard, for several hundred voices raised a shout that drowned all else, and his body took its place between the murderers of Reynolds. His legs twitched and drew up and his shoulders heaved convulsively for some moments. He evidently strangled to death. Finally his limbs straightened out and the trio hung upon for about forty minutes, when they were cut down and thrown into an express wagon, which was hauled by men around to Schillestad's undertaking establishment. We append hereto summoned by Acting Coroner Coombs. Its brevity and sentiment will commend itself to this community as a fitting and proper instrument. In each case the jury returned the following verdict:

We, the jury empaneled in the above case, find that (here his name) came to his death by hanging, but from the evidence furnished we are unable to find by whose hands. We are satisfied that in his death substantial and speedy justice has been served. C. D. Enory, (foreman, J. C. Jacobs, L. Diller, W. H. Reeves, J. C. Floyd, H. A. Atkins.

Thus we come to the close of one of the most eventful days ever transpiring in the history of Seattle.

The Seattle Post says: Let it be known to all the world that this was the work of no mob. It was the result of the uprising of an outraged and long-suffering community of law-abiding citizens, who felt in their sacred duty to thus show to the world and all mankind that forbearance and leniency and thieves had ceased to be a virtue in this community, and that the lives and property of respectable citizens shall and will be protected, and that outrages and atrocities will hereafter be dealt with in a manner they deserve, without fear or favor.

While Sullivan and Howard were still twitching, Judge Greene ran up and with his pen knife, attempted to cut the rope and let one down. The judge was taken hold of and hustled away from there pretty lively. He offered no further opposition to the citizens in their work.

TRICKETT'S DEPARTURE.

Off for England—Farewell to Canada—Bon Voyage.

A large number of citizens gathered at the G. W. railway station yesterday afternoon to witness the departure of the ex-champion for England. Mr. Trickett received a telegram from his brother, G. W. Lett, of London, Eng., requesting him to come over at once as a match had been arranged with Hanlan to take place immediately after the Hanlan-Bird race.

Trickett took with him a new cedar boat and two pair of sculls built by G. W. Lett, of Toronto. He says the shell is a beauty, weighing, rigged, 25 pounds.

The old champion leaves behind him a large number of enthusiastic friends and admirers, which he has won by his straight-forward manner. In speaking of his visit to Canada, he says he has been greatly impressed both by the people and climate, and has many memories to recall his pleasant sojourn among the Canadians. Bon voyage.

THE PARIS BOURSE.

A Demoralized Financial Centre—Attacking the Credit Establishments.

PARIS, Feb. 9.—The bourse is very bad to-day owing to sales on the part of overland buyers, who are completely discouraged; the bears are now directing operations against the credit establishments, whose shares are much affected. There is a complete absence of business in the outside market.

The fall on the bourse during the early part of the week was caused by unfavorable rumors concerning the credit establishments. The operations of the bears were principally directed against the credit foncier shares, which opened at 1200 francs, having closed at 1335 yesterday. The rumors proving groundless they recovered, closing at 1210. There is still practically no business in the outside market account. There were numerous defaults. Several fresh failures are expected.

THE PORTS REJECTS THE ARRANGEMENT OF THE FRONTIER AT ANAPOLIS, AS SETTLED BY THE COMMISSION.

It is declared in official circles that there has been no communication between Gen. Skeloff in favor of the proposed arrangement. Three passenger agitators from Russia were arrested at Jaroslaw yesterday. Russian cathedral has been searched by the police.

A warrant has been granted against the Marquis of Huntly for obtaining £2418 from Benj. Nicholson under false pretences.

The London Standard says the unfavorable rumors circulated yesterday regarding the position of the Vienna Lander bank are entirely unfounded.

Pistols at Washington.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 9.—A. M. Stoddard, clerk of the senate committee on railroads, and his brother, Charles, went to the office of the Republican to-night and demanded the return of certain statements in the paper from Charles Barton, the news editor. The latter told him to see George the chief editor. A free fight then ensued, in which pistols were hurriedly produced. Barton was shot twice so severely, that A. M. Stoddard was shot twice, and it is thought he will die. The affair is all mixed up, and it is impossible to give the correct version of the shooting to-night.

Great joy entered the household of Mrs. Harrigan, 172 E. One hundred and thirty second street, New York, when her little boy, who had been pronounced hopelessly incurable from half an hour's illness, was cured by the doctors, was entirely cured by a single bottle of St. Jacob's Oil, kindly brought by a friend interested in the case.

THE TRAIN AND TRACK.

The trunk line's executive committee yesterday resolved that the emigrant rates be restored to the old basis of $13 from New York to Chicago, commencing on Feb. 15.

The disagreement between the Boston and Albany railroad and the Central Vermont, which prevented the increased passenger rates going into effect, have been settled.

Hamilton Times: The following paragraph has been going the rounds and it is needless to say that it is thoroughly without foundation: It is stated upon pretty good authority that the Grand Trunk railway authorities intend if possible to get an entrance into Hamilton. The proposition is to acquire the Hamilton and Dundas railway property, the connection with the Grand Trunk system being made at Caledonia.

Montreal Gazette: Of the suits said to have been commenced against the Grand Trunk in connection with their Chicago and other lines, the company, it is ascertained on enquiry, have had no notice. The suits were said to be in the name of Mr. Allen, who has been conspicuous as a speculator in Grand Trunk securities, and it is thought that he is simply another of his moves to affect the price of the company's stocks and bonds.

ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.

The Twelve Jolly Bachelors were greeted with a very large and enthusiastic audience at the Royal last night. The music is very interesting and the singing far above the average comic opera companies. Miss Jennie Winston as Prince Cosmo, received a number of well-deserved encores; her singing and acting were both pleasing and effective. Miss Amy Gordon as Princess Florin was a decided success; her singing and acting fairly captivated the audience. Her duet in the second act with Miss Winston was rendered in an artistic style. It would be impossible for the bachelors to remain so after seeing the charming and sprightly Miss L. Bradley Doda, Miss M. Howard and Von Tausel, J. E. Raymond, kept the audience in merriment and laughter by their ludicrous jokes and dancing. The chorus were very good, the piece proving a decided success. The same piece will occupy the boards for the remainder of the week, with a matinee on Saturday.

THE STUDENTS UNION.

A meeting of students was held last night and a number of matters were discussed, such as the purchase of books, etc. It was decided to advertise for tenders for book-sellers to make special offers to the union. It was also decided to call on the different booksellers in the city and see what terms they would be prepared to make for large orders of fifty books and upwards. The next meeting will be held next Tuesday in St. Lawrence hall at 4 p. m., when other matters will be attended to and the date of the next meeting fixed.

THE TORONTO OPERA COMPANY'S FINALE.

The final meeting of the Toronto opera company was held in the Union hall last night. There a most agreeable and successful company present. The photographs of the entire company, tastefully arranged in an elegant frame, were presented to the company by the president, Mr. W. F. Baker, who was disposed of by being presented to Mr. A. J. Macdonnell. It was the unanimous feeling of the members that he was best entitled to it, and consequently the result was very satisfactory. The president in his report thanked the company for the tribute they had paid him.
