

The Weekly Monitor.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 4th, 1884.

The loss of life thus far in 1884 from steamship accidents is simply appalling, and it is fair to best the ghastly record of previous years. There must be something radically wrong in a steamship in construction or material, that goes to the bottom with the awful suddenness that has characterized the loss of the City of Columbus, the Daniel Steinmann and the State of Florida. The patent bulkheads, for which so much has been claimed, were apparently of no use whatever. The primary cause of each disaster may be set down to carelessness on the part of the respective commanders. In the one case, it was to save a little time that induced him to venture too near Guy's Head Reef; in the next, ignorance was to blame in the first place, and then carelessness in not making perfectly sure of his vessel's whereabouts, or trying to, if it was impossible to ascertain, in the third case the disaster was apparently caused by a disregard of signals and an endeavor to save a few moments of time by crossing ahead of, instead as should have been done, astern of a barque. It is time legislators, marine boards, ship owners and others, were turning their attention and energies in the direction of securing as low a minimum of risk as possible in ocean navigation. At present, speed is apparently the desideratum, and the keenest of competition in this respect has no doubt had much to do with causing the disregard of the rules of the road and signals, that all too often bring their own punishment. Unhappily the punishment extends beyond those upon whom responsibility, and infinite sorrow has been brought to many a home, in the loss of dear ones, whose lives were sacrificed by the carelessness or ignorance of those who trusted. Ocean dangers at best are so great that no efforts should be spared to make the risk in the transportation of life as property as small as possible. The ways and means to bring about such an improved condition of affairs, we do not presume to suggest upon in anyway; thus we leave to more experienced heads than ours. That it can be done we fully believe, and the fullest cooperation of all concerned is the first step necessary.

The dynamite fields have renewed their villainous designs against life and property in England. On Friday night last an explosion took place in the London Yard (the police headquarters) in London. Considerable damage was done to buildings, and thirteen persons were badly injured—five are in a precarious condition. Of the number injured five are women. One bomb was exploded against the house of Sir Watkin Wynne, M.P., and produced a fracture in the wall four feet wide and three feet deep. Windows were also smashed and furniture damaged. The explosion does not make the details very clear, but it seems there was an unsuccessful attempt to blow up and overturn Nelson's monument. Had this been accomplished a fearful loss of life would have resulted, as that district is always largely crowded. The following column are a sample of the tone of the London press regarding the matter:—The Manchester Guardian says:—'Of this sort of open defiance, and open defiance paid for in the United States, can never be wholly exterminated while the Government and people of this country allow the propaganda against a friendly and kindred nation to be continued among them. The Telegraph says:—'It behooves the people to reflect whether further stern measures should not be taken to put a stop to the public peril and mischief which they are now exposed. Each fresh act of cruelty and malice will strengthen the resolve of Englishmen not to yield one inch to those who wish to dismember the Empire.' The Standard declares that 'no concession can be made to outrage; so far for the only result it has obtained has been failure and penal servitude. The nation is disgusted and annoyed, but not alarmed.' If the cause is not fully understood we could not answer for reprisals of the London populace.

O'Donovan Rossa and friends propose next to blow up the ship in Liverpool harbor between the fifteenth and nine teeth, and attack Windsor Castle by dynamite. Dire threats against the English navy are made by Rossa and coadjutors.

London, May 30.—Colonel Hignford, Inspector of explosives, examined the scene of the dynamite operations in Fall Mall late tonight. The house-keeper of the premises in question, a department agent that the second explosion in St. James Square was caused by a bomb which he saw lighted with a fuse a second or two before the explosion occurred. Another explosion in Scotland Yard was averted by failure of the fuse to burn. The police have found several boxes of dynamite in the vicinity. Nearly all the houses in St. James Square suffered from the explosion. A later search reveals a discovery of more explosive materials. Sixteen packets of dynamite, with fuse attached, were found in 10.30 tonight under the Nelson monument in Trafalgar Square.

For the coming elections in Cumberland the Liberal-Conservatives have nominated C. J. Townsend, Esq., for the House of Commons, and the Liberal Unionists, Wm. T. Phipps, Esq., for the Local Legislature. For the Local House Messrs. Wm. Oxley of Oxford and Chas. Smith of Port Greville have been nominated by the Liberals; the opponents have not been officially declared yet.

Our Annapolis correspondent sends us a graphic account of a destructive fire which occurred on Sunday morning last in his town, by which the old and well-known firm of Messrs. A. W. Corbett & Son suffered the total loss of their fine store, filled with goods, and the senior partner his dwelling house. We regret very much to hear of the severe loss thus sustained by this energetic and wide-awake firm, and are glad to notice that they intend to build again at once.

London dispatch says there is danger of a small-pox panic in the metropolis. The disease has become alarmingly prevalent, and cannot be checked. It first appeared last November in a mild form, but little notice was then taken of it. It is now spreading, and it has been constantly winning its way, in one district there are over 1000 cases. A movement is on foot to secure better hospital accommodation.

Fire at Annapolis.

(From our Correspondent.)

This old town was again aroused to battle with the fire fiend shortly after two o'clock on Saturday morning last. We had boasted almost of being overlooked in the periodical attack of this monster, for, since the unfortunate burning of Messrs. DeLap & Whitman's mill, a year and a half since, we have a record much cleaner in this respect. "Fire! Fire!" shouted under your windows in the still of the night is sufficient to arouse the ordinary sleeper, but to an old fireman, who has served a full apprenticeship and holds a parchment of the freedom of an adjoining city, it recalls battles were fought, living and several encounters often were called into requisition. Our town, like many other towns, is without a proper water supply for fire purposes. One hand engine, which is much to rely upon to extinguish even an ordinary fire, is probably plenty, though, when not called to action for a year or more, all the while insurance companies are growing rampant at our expense. We not only pay in the course of a year a community, three times the amount required to bring the water to our doors, but we have to pay and survive without it all the same.

Well, this time fire was discovered on Messrs. A. W. Corbett & Son's premises, the largest and one of the oldest mercantile stores in the town. It is doing business with many parts of the world, and in whose general store almost everything could be obtained for man or beast, save King Alcohol. The first was discovered in the rear of the main store, and spread with lightning rapidity to all parts of the building. It was not until the fire had fully gained, and soon got their engines in motion, drawing water from the tide (which luckily was at the flood) in the rear of the fire. Dense volumes of smoke poured from the burning windows, filling the building to suffocation. Men tried in determination to enter the rooms of the Nova Scotia Steamship Company, which was on the second floor in the front, but not a book was saved. The Western Union Telegraph Office, on the same floor, suffered the same fate, as not an instrument could be reached, so fast had the fire spread. Immediately adjoining to the northward was a large two-story dwelling owned and occupied by Mr. W. Corbett. This soon took fire, and added fuel to the flames. A large portion of the furniture was saved, but the building was so completely consumed, that there was but a light wind, but what there was carried the burning cinders far into the air and over the buildings on the opposite side of the street; and had not the people worked with much determination in carrying up pails of water to the roof, and the houses, and covering them with damp carpets, the fire would undoubtedly have swept everything before it for at least two blocks. Never has your informant seen better work done by the little engine. Now the "bats" would be directed into the windows of the burning building or over the roofs of the adjoining ones, or the stream would be aimed at the front of the burning mass from behind barricades, thus descending the street, and a glass at the front of the houses opposite, with paint blistered and scorched and windows broken, reveals what was a hard-fought and well fought battle, which for over two hours was of the most exciting and doubtful character.

Messrs. Corbett & Son's loss, including buildings and stock, is estimated at $40,000, about one half of which is covered by insurance. The firm will resume business immediately.

Local and Other Matter.

The following have been appointed members of the Board of Health in the town of Annapolis:—Russell Withers, M.D., R. J. Unicoik, W. J. Shannon, Chas. McCormick, and Miles McKillop, Esq.

Quite an excitement was caused in the town on Sunday last. A two year old child of Mr. John McLean's, proprietor of Murdoch's Tannery, was reported missing, and a search was instituted by quite a number of young men. The little fellow was found at last safely in the residence of George Murdoch, Esq., three quarters of a mile from home.

New TIME TABLE.—A new time-table went into force on the Windsor & Annapolis Railway on Monday morning last. Express trains going west leave Halifax (railway standard time) at 7.30 A.M., Bridgetown 12.25, and arrive at Annapolis at 1.00 P.M. Going east, will leave Annapolis at 1.45 P.M., Bridgetown 2.25, and arrive at Halifax 7.25. Freight trains going west leave Richmond Station at 3.30 A.M., Bridgetown 4.32, and arrive at Annapolis at 5.50, going east, will leave Annapolis at 5.30 A.M., Bridgetown 6.25, and arrive at Halifax 2.55 P.M. One hour added will give Halifax time.

Last Wednesday, on the W. & A. express Sheriff Morse arrested a mulatto named Tymont, who hails from Virginia, on a charge of stealing money, the property of a man named James States, from a private dwelling house in Hantsport. On being taken to the station, the money was found on his person, and he was committed to the jail.

The cash deed was supposed to have been committed in a moment of temporary insanity by hanging himself on a small tree in a field near his home on Sunday morning last. When found he was in a sitting posture, his hands resting on the ground, and his body and head bent forward.
