The advantages of being connected with Savings, Loan and Building Associations are only becoming known. The business is getting on firmer ground and former objectors have been converted to admit the superior advantages of the system, properly worked out, over every other form of mutual investment. The uniformly high class of men who are now identifying themselves with Building and Loan Associations gives added assurance of good results. The system is commanding general attention, and appreciation is evidenced by the rapidity with which such institutions are being organized. Responsible agents wanted throughout the country. Liberal terms given to good men.
