

AN VETERAN JUDGE.—Yesterday the Hon. Henry W. Blodgett, Judge of the National District Court and one of the Justices of the Circuit Court of Appeal, celebrated his seventieth anniversary. Judge Blodgett received his commission from President Grant in 1871. His judicial service having covered a period of twenty years, the law gives him, at the age of seventy, the privilege of retiring on full pay. But Judge Blodgett will not avail himself of that privilege. His health is good; indeed, he never has been better equipped, mentally or physically, for the judicial service than he is now. Every secular day he makes a journey of seventy miles by rail, arriving in the city by 9 a.m. and departing for his home in Waukegan at 5 p.m., holding his court in the meantime four or five hours. It is said with truth that he is the most industrious Judge in Chicago. And yet, at the age of seventy, he realizes no need of the two or three months' vacation every summer that is necessary to enable the younger judges of the State courts to recuperate their exhausted energies. It is in this life of active occupation that the distinguished jurist finds his chief enjoyment. "I don't see how I could get on without my routine work," he says. "and the fact that I have gained the threescore and ten will not change my course at all."—Chicago Legal Advertiser.

This notice is designed to afford necessary information to Students-at-Law and Articled Clerks, and those intending to become such, in regard to their course of study and examinations. They are, however, also recommended to read carefully in connection herewith the Rules of the Law Society, copies of which may be obtained from Principal of the Law School, Osgoode Hall, Toronto.

Those Students-at-Law and Articled Clerks, who, under the Rules, are required to attend the Law School during all the three terms of the School Course, will pass all their examinations in the School, and are governed by the School Curriculum only. Those who are entirely exempt from attendance in the School will pass all their examinations under the existing Curriculum of The Law Society Examinations as heretofore. Those who are required to attend the School during one term or two terms only will pass the School Examination for such term or terms, and their other Examination or Examinations at the usual Law Society Examinations under the existing Curriculum.

Provision will be made for Law Society Examinations under the existing Curriculum as formerly for those students and clerks who are wholly or partially exempt from attendance in the Law School.

Each Curriculum is therefore published herein accompanied by those directions which appear to be most necessary for the guidance of the student.
