

But we want to make sure, and this is the whole purpose of the review of our foreign policy; we want to make sure that whatever we do is understood by Canadians, whatever we do is justified in terms of the political decisions we have made, whatever we do is a result of honest men in government looking for the best ways in which they cannot only protect Canadian sovereignty but contribute to peace in the world.

S/C