

CONTENTS.

CHAPTER I.

Introductory remarks. Departure for the Lower Provinces. Description of the City of Quebec—its prominent characteristics—the citadel—a view of the surrounding country, &c. Beauport Asylum—its inmates—singular traits of insanity, &c. Description of the Falls of Montmorency—a fatal accident—a magnificent prospect, &c. Montmorency River—natural steps. Island of Orleans—strategies and defeat of Gen. Wolfe in his first attempts to take Quebec—his ingenious and effectual strategy. Capture of the city—remarks, &c.

CHAPTER II.

Embark on the steamer Arabian at Quebec. A run-a-way match—the pursuit, &c. Description of the river and scenery of the Lower St. Lawrence. The Gulf. Cape Rosier—a shipwreck—its horrors and consequences. Gaspé Head—a tragical occurrence. Gaspé Village, &c. Percy Rock. Bay of Chaleurs—singular appearance of the water at night, &c.

CHAPTER III.

My first sight of New Brunswick, and the singular objects that first attracted my attention. Town of Dalhousie, and surrounding scenery. Bay of Chaleur—its fish, &c.—appearance of the coast and country. Sail up the Miramichi river. Town of Chatham—a conspicuous character—a series of singular events. Newcastle. Burning of Miramichi—the fearful and fatal ravages of the fire, and the sufferings of the people, &c. Our passage through the Richibucto channel