

minutes the length of time it would take you to halter the colt and learn him to lead.

THE KIND OF HALTER.

Never use a rope halter. The cords of the rope are hard and appear to aggravate and excite distrust rather than confidence, but by all means procure a leather halter, made of bridle leather, so it will feel soft and pliable to the touch, and to fit tolerably tight on the head so as not to feel uncomfortable. Faucher, Elwanger, Powell, and numerous others have had their mode of taming horses, but the true theory, we think has at last been discovered, and the great victory achieved for the domestication of the horse by the most simple process, and entirely void of danger to the life and limbs of the animal.