

Laws there being wisely enacted, and for the most Part justly executed, without any Partiality, as is too often practised in other Colonies, to the visible Prejudice of the Trade of this Kingdom, and the Settlement of its distant Colonies.

The Number of said foreign Protestants so transported and settled in Pensylvania only, since the Year 1728 until 1751, doth, at a moderate Computation, amount to 80,000 Persons and upwards, besides many Thousands who have settled in the Jerseys, New York, New England, &c. Which Number, considering the manifold
