KING'S RAPID RECOVERY SURPRISES

Passed a Fairly Comfortable Day and Has Maintained His Strength—There Has Been Some Return of Pain in the Wound.

TOOK FOOD AT NIGHT AND SMOKED A CIGAR

Personally Wrote Several Telegrams and Notes—Queen Watched at His Bedside All Evening Till He Fell Into a Peaceful Sleep.

London, June 27.—(12.15 a.m.)—Buckingham Palace was closed up for the night rather later than usual. It is understood, however, that the King's strength and progress are maintained, and it is not generally expected that any further improvement will be made before half past ten this morning.

MAINTAINS STRENGTH.
London, June 26.—The following bulletin was posted at Buckingham Palace at 11 o'clock to-night:

"The King has passed a fairly comfortable day and has maintained his strength. There has been some return of the pain in the wound." (Signed) Treves, Laking, Barlow.

TEMPERATURE NORMAL.
London, June 26.—The following bulletin was posted at Buckingham Palace at 6.15 p.m.:

"His Majesty passed a good day and has taken nourishment well, and his temperature is now normal." (Signed) Lister, Treves, Smith, Laking, Barlow.

MOST ENCOURAGING.
London, June 26.—(10.04 a.m.)—The Duke of Connaught called at Buckingham Palace this morning at 9.30 o'clock. Later he said concerning the King's recovery:

"The news is most encouraging. The King's pulse and temperature are normal and his condition on the whole is most satisfactory."

EVERYDAY IMPROVED.
London, June 26.—The official bulletin on the condition of King Edward issued at 10.15 o'clock this morning, is as follows:

"His Majesty has had a better night and has had some refreshing sleep. He has improved in all respects. His constitutional condition is quite favorable and the state of his wound also satisfactory." (Signed) Lister, Treves, Smith, Laking, Barlow.

London, June 26.—(Midnight)—Those around King Edward continue to be astonished at his rapid recovery. The slightly annoying symptoms mentioned in the bulletin issued at 11 o'clock to-night are quite inconsequential compared to the fact, which the Associated Press has learned, that His Majesty again took food to-night and was afterwards allowed to smoke a cigar.

Queen Alexandra sat with her husband all the evening, and only left him after he had fallen into peaceful sleep.

Mention by the King's doctors of the care with which food is administered to the royal patient, and of the return of the pain in the wound, can safely be taken as merely an instance of their conscientious intention to make public the slightest adverse symptom, however unimportant.

The King's courage and good temper are remarkable, and to-day he personally wrote several telegrams and one or two notes.

INSPECTED HONOR LIST.
As evidence of the King's persistent refusal to efface himself from his connection with state affairs, and in corroboration of the statement that the physicians are satisfied with their patient's condition, the Associated Press learns that, besides personally opening telegrams Wednesday evening, King Edward then insisted upon a final inspection of the honor list. There was an appointment of considerable importance which had not been definitely decided at that time. The King approved this nomination, and gave the final order to the department.

Thus saving one of the recipients of honor from severe disappointment.

BETTER THAN EVER.
To-night King Edward is better in every way than he was last night or this morning. The return of pain in his wound is not accompanied by any appreciable increase of temperature.

In fact, King Edward's doctors are inclined to regard the patient's pain and his appetite as healthy symptoms. To these hopes of a favorable issue of the King's illness, the Queen gives encouragement.

Writing to the Lord Mayor of London, Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, to-day, to thank him for his expressions of sympathy of the city of London, Queen Alexandra writes, thru her secretary:

"The Queen relates to think that the bulletin of this morning gives a favorable report of the King."

THE KING'S WISH.
Following the expressed desire of the Prince of Wales, the arrangements for illuminating the city, which involved the costly erection of net poles for electric and gas lights, will be allowed to remain, and will be utilized immediately. It is authoritatively announced that the King is out of danger.

By the King's personal desire, the royal pardons of offences in the army will go into effect just as if the coronation had occurred. This last intimation suitably brings to a close the day which was to have been notable in English history.

PRAYERS FOR THE KING.

Services Held in St. Paul's Cathedral and Throughout the Empire.

London, June 26.—At the hour when the King should have been crowned, a great and distinguished gathering, almost identical with that which would have sat in Westminster Abbey, gathered in St. Paul's Cathedral. The apperance of the Duke of Cambridge, ambassador of the United States to the coronation; J. Pierpont Morgan, Jr., and the leading members of the House of Commons, all in the Westminister Abbey ticket holders, were present.

The Duke of Cambridge, who presided, opened the service with a prayer for the King's recovery, and the Duke of Devonshire, who acted as chan- cellor, read the opening sentences of the Litany, chanted by four of the cathedral choir.

The Duke of Devonshire, who presided, opened the service with a prayer for the King's recovery, and the Duke of Devonshire, who acted as chan- cellor, read the opening sentences of the Litany, chanted by four of the cathedral choir.

BURIED UNDER TONNALS JOSHUA SANDEFLOVES

Paris Well Digger Able to Communicate With His Rescuers by Tapping on the Wall of His Living Tomb While He Hears Them Working.

SECOND CAVE-IN SILENCED HIM FOR A TIME

Four Hours After He Again Made Himself Heard and the Excavators Redoubled Their Efforts—Man's Father Arrives From Galt Learning of His Plight.

Paris, June 27.—(3 a.m.)—Joshua Sandefloves still lives, and with chances of release considerably brighter than at any time since the well caved in on Tuesday afternoon.

At noon yesterday, the earth over the unfortunate man sank considerably, and all hopes of rescuing him alive were abandoned. Some time after, however, he began working again, and work proceeded more vigorously than ever to effect his release. He now taps on the brick wall of the old well, instead of on the pipe, as formerly, and can be heard quite distinctly by those at the bottom of the tunnel, thru which, it is hoped, he will be brought.

At 10 o'clock last night, it was thought they were about to penetrate the place he occupies, and preparations were made to penetrate the old well, which is about three feet from the vertical tunnel just dug. While these preparations were being made, his voice was heard, but so indistinctly that it was not gathered of what he was trying to say.

Heard His Voice Faintly.
After a little more digging, the words "Oh! Oh!" were feebly heard, as they were whispered. Still nearer dug his rescuers, and at midnight he was able to say that he was still alive, but he implored them to be quick. It is thought at the time of writing that about four feet will have to be taken out of the bottom of the tunnel before it will be prudent to penetrate the old well, but it is hoped before many hours he will be rescued. Hundreds of people have been on the scene all day, and during the evening the road was lined for half a mile on each side with vehicles. Silence seizes the entire crowd whenever an announcement is to be made, and news is eagerly waited for.

Hundreds Visit the Scene.
The vicinity drove out to the Skelly farm yesterday to watch the proceedings. The liverymen did a rushing business, and all sorts of vehicles were brought out to convey the curious crowds. At 8 o'clock Thursday morning it was reported that the diggers had reached a point on the level with the imprisoned man, and that in two or three hours a tunnel would be excavated thru to him. This caused great excitement in the town, and scores of people hurried out to the farm to be on the ground when Sandefloves was taken out. It was, however, found that Sandefloves was still farther down.

Man's Father Visits the Scene.
Mr. Penman, who has charge of the work, has provided accommodations for the excavators. A large tarpaulin was erected over the well to keep the rain from the workers. On Wednesday night the tarpaulin was soaked, and there was a heavy downpour, and the men engaged in the task were soaked, but the tarpaulin makes the work more pleasant. There are a large number of volunteers. The excavating is under the direction of Engineers Jones of Brantford and Pearson of Toronto. Jarot Mot of Mount Vernon, an experienced well digger, is also present giving advice.

ENORMOUS LOSS ENTAILED.
Rough Estimate Places It at One Million Pounds.

London, June 26.—Now that the first effects of the paralyzing blow have worn away it is possible to get some idea of the tremendous loss which the postponement of the coronation entailed.

A rough estimate of the losses that can be calculated upon with some accuracy makes the appalling total £1,000,000, and this does not include what has been spent for robes, jewels, coaches and horses, and for decorating and renovating houses by the nobility.

In the first place, Lloyd's, underwriters, lose, at a conservative estimate, £200,000 on policies which covered the risk that the festivities would not take place on Thursday and Friday, June 25 and 26.

They stand to lose also on those policies which covered the risk that the coronation would not take place on Thursday and Friday, June 25 and 26.

Next come the stock speculators. In many cases the loss is enormous. In some cases the loss is £100,000. Now, the expenditure of at least £500,000 on the part of the King and the Queen for the coronation, and the expenditure of at least £1,000,000 on the part of the nobility for robes, jewels, coaches and horses, and for decorating and renovating houses by the nobility.

The loss is made up of several items, the two main ones being the cost of constructing the stands and hiring the premises.

In several cases—large premises—more than £200,000 was paid for the right to build stands. Seats were erected altogether for nearly six hundred thousand persons.

Tradesmen who let out their own premises and did not employ agents also lose heavily.

Many shops have thrown themselves out of gear for months preparing for the coronation visitors. Little credit has been done, and the result has been a loss of business.

These enterprises in turn repudiate their contracts for supplies, so the loss is divided between three classes, namely:—

1. Those who have lost their deposits of pocket and unaccounted for.

2. Those who have lost their deposits of pocket and unaccounted for.

3. Those who have lost their deposits of pocket and unaccounted for.

4. Those who have lost their deposits of pocket and unaccounted for.

5. Those who have lost their deposits of pocket and unaccounted for.

6. Those who have lost their deposits of pocket and unaccounted for.

7. Those who have lost their deposits of pocket and unaccounted for.

8. Those who have lost their deposits of pocket and unaccounted for.

9. Those who have lost their deposits of pocket and unaccounted for.

10. Those who have lost their deposits of pocket and unaccounted for.

CONFERENCE TO GO ON.
Colonial Premiers Held an Organization Meeting Yesterday.

London, June 26.—Despite the illness of the King, the preparations for the Colonial Conference are being proceeded. It can be easily understood that a meeting of the colonial states in conjunction with the imperial home advisers of His Majesty is not presently being held.

Therefore, the meeting is being held at the Hotel Laurier, which is felt to be the best advantage.

Accordingly, this afternoon the colonial premiers had a preliminary meeting at the Hotel Laurier, which is felt to be the best advantage.
