Last night, at the regular meeting of the London Sovereign Chapter of Rose Croix, 18 degrees, an interesting feature was the presentation of a parchment address to Ill. Bro. Alex. Findlay, 31 degrees, the Past Most Wise Sovereign of the Chapter from the Sovereign Princes, on the occasion Sovereign Prince J. S. Dewar, 18 degrees, made the presentation on behalf of the Chapter, and briefly referred to the valuable and disinterested services of Bro. Findlay during the period he has been a member of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite in London. He then read the address, which was beautifully engrossed. It bore high testimony to the faithfulness and ability of the illustrious brother, and expressed the highest wishes for his future welfare. It was signed by Ill. Bros. Dewar, John Callard and Daniel Spry. Ill. Bro. Findlay replied in a feeling manner, cordially thanking the members for this additional expression of their esteem and respect. He prized the address very highly, and would endeavor in the future to merit the best wishes of all connected Finding of the Coroner's Jury in

Mrs. Kelly's Case No Post-Mortem Necessary - The Jury and the Verdict.

The inquest in connection with the death of Mrs. John Kelly, whose body | Major McMillen, of Harrietsville. He was found on the extension of Victoria street yesterday morning, was held at the family residence last night before Coroner Flock. The jury included Messrs. Alex. Logan (foreman), Nathan Broadbent, Jas. Davis, J. S. Backhouse, Thomas Boyd, Samuel Mc- vice he was appointed captain of Lu-Dowell, John Taylor, Edward Hardy,

Wm. Warwick, Patrick Tierney, John McLaughlin, Thos. Wallace, Henry Scott and Richard Wilson. Coroner Flock, in addressing the jury, said one of the reasons why the inquest was held was the uncanny character of the place where the dead woman was found. He said one theory was that the woman might have been placed there, as her clothing was so totally undisturbed it might appear to some that it had been so arranged after death. Besides this, seven of the persons who first visited the body that norning were people who had been locked up on more than one-occasion, and in a conversation with the crown attorney they had concluded that an inquest was the proper thing to satisfy all doubt. He produced the book Mrs. Kelly had in the lapel of her coat, and also the money, amounting to $7 or $8. The last entries in the book were Willie Jeffries and Miss Breene, who subscribed small amounts to the building fund of the new church. Mr. Kelly, husband of deceased, and Bertha, the eldest daughter, were examined. They stated that Mrs. Kelly had often been away all night without saying where she was going. She had been in St. Thomas several times collecting. Neither of the witnesses knew her to go away and stay all night while she was in the city. She had been affected with heart trouble, and one day last week she nearly fell over while preparing breakfast. Her father and sister had died in a similar way. Mr. Kelly said he thought his wife had gone to her brother's for tea, and when she did not come home at 1 a.m. they had retired, thinking that she had gone out of the city. Bertha had not gone to bed at all. Henry Scott, of Oxford street, said the woman had been at his place of finding the body, that a post-mortem was necessary. Coroner Flock then left the case in the hands of the jury, who almost immediately returned a verdict "That death resulted from heart failure, and natural causes accelerated by the ex-
