CROWDS ENJOY NEW PROGRAMME AT OPERA HOUSE

Has Many Highly Entertaining Features — Acrobatic Dancing and Clever Tumbling are Attractions.

The Opera House was, as usual, crowded last evening at the initial performance of the new week-end bill. The programme had a mint of comedy, some unusually clever acrobatic offerings, a dainty painting exhibit, clever dancing and good singing.

One of the most popular numbers on the bill was that of Dave and Lillian, who appeared in a blackface comedy singing and dancing skit. Their dancing was a feature and the male member with his acrobatic steps evoked prolonged applause.

The boys, in an artistic painting offering, were also well received. They are both talented in their line, and their work was greatly admired. They were accorded appreciative applause.

Mack O'Neill, with his character comedy songs and stories, was quite a favorite. He entertained with some Scotch and Irish songs and then told some amusing stories, which were real good. Sobel and Ross kept their audiences amused with singing, dancing, "nonsense," etc. Their singing was pleasing and their jokes very good.

The Florens Duo, in a comedy acrobatic offering, were well received. They are both good performers, but the male member is an exceptionally brilliant tumbler. His back and front flips were well executed and his work was thoroughly enjoyed by all.

In addition to the vaudeville programme, there was another feature of "Hidden Dangers," featuring Joe Ryan. This programme will be continued to night and again on Monday afternoon and evening.

Miss MacIntosh has been fortunate enough to secure a collection of curious old China such as rarely if ever have been seen in this country, and are of intense interest, both artistically and as a matter of history, such as, for example, as the following: A gorgeous robe once worn by a member of the royal family in the days of the monarchy; a Chinese embroidery and design; a mandarin's official badge, consisting of very finely carved ivory beads; models of various Chinese conveyances; a snuff bottle beautifully painted on the inside, though the neck would not admit an ordinary lead pencil; a piece of old examination system, no longer existing, in the form of a beautifully carved and filled nut washed in gold, the ancient equivalent of a diploma; and, in addition, some examples of wonderfully exact and minute embroidery work, so fine as to necessitate the use of a magnifying glass to examine in detail.
