

MEN'S SUMMER SUITS, $5.75, $6.75, $8.50, $10 and upwards.
BOYS' SCHOOL SUITS, $2.25, $2.50, $3, $3.50 and upwards.
BEST ASSORTMENT EVER SHOWN IN VICTORIA + +

EASTERN TAILOR MADE SUITS, TO MEASURE, Fit and Finish Guaranteed.

B. WILLIAMS & Co.

Clothiers and Hatters,
 97 Johnson St.

LOCAL AND PROVINCIAL

News of the Day Selected from Monday's Evening Times.

Real Estate Sale.
 Lot 13, block 4, Viewfield farm, adjoining Mr. C. E. Pooty's premises on old Esquimaux road, containing 3.35-100 acres, was sold by auction to-day for $2900. Mr. Gregory, of Belyea & Gregory, was the purchaser.

Frisco Steamer.
 An unusually large number of passengers arrived from California by the steamer Walla Walla last evening. The trip was pleasant. The steamer brought 225 tons of freight for Victoria. The City of Puebla will sail for the South tomorrow.

Copper Plate Engraver.
 Richard Tarrant, a copper plate engraver, has arrived from the east to take a position with the Victoria Lithograph Company. The company will now be able to turn out a better class of work than has ever been done in the province.

Sell Like Hot Cakes.
 Simon Leiser has made arrangements with Hawaiian and Australian firms to handle large quantities of fruit for three months. The first consignment of the Mowera sold out the date of its arrival. The demand is large.

Bishop Perrin's Sermons.
 Bishop Perrin preached at Christ Church cathedral yesterday morning at St. Barnabas church in the evening. There was a very large attendance at St. Barnabas, many being unable to obtain seats. The bishop preached a very eloquent sermon.

A Freight Rate War.
 The general cut in class freight rates made by the Great Northern Railway has been followed by a similar reduction by the Northern Pacific, and the Union Pacific will most likely follow suit. Agent Blackwood has not yet been apprised of it by his road. The move will probably introduce a general fight.

Arrival of the Louise.
 The steamer Princess Louise, Captain Roberts, returned from the north early this morning. She brought the following passengers: Mrs. J. Carthy, Miss Rose, Rev. Hopkins, R. Bergoff, S. Munson, R. Daney, John Spence, A. C. Munson, J. Pettievire. Her freight consisted of lumber for 11,000 boxes for Fraser river canneries.

Return to Australia.
 The steamship Mowera will leave for the Hawaiian islands and Australia on Wednesday. The ship will have between 400 and 500 tons of freight and a few passengers. It was not expected that she would do so well. One of the C. P. R. officials said this afternoon that the line was much more satisfactory than the China line did.

Northern News.
 Four Indian houses were burned at Port Simpson several days ago, and another had to be torn down to prevent the fire spreading. The employees of McLeish's cannery were to have begun fishing to-day and work will be commenced on the Skeena on the 15th. The steamer Caledonia has already made two trips up the Skeena and will make the third when the Louise returns north.

Prosecuting His Storekeeper.
 The suit of S. Baxter of Seattle against Daniel Pullen, in Port Angeles, is up for trial and will occupy the attention of the court fully 30 days. Pullen, an manager of the Pullen store, in Quillayute, is alleged to have retained possession of over $18,000 since 1887 which belonged to Baxter. More than 40 witnesses have been subpoenaed. Baxter has attached all Pullen's property in Clallam county and the suit is being hotly contested. Both are well known in Victoria.

Militia for Vancouver.
 Victoria and Westminster companies of the Garrison artillery will camp at Vancouver on Dominion Day. Captain T. O. Towley, of Westminster, was here on Saturday and will make arrangements with the local corps. C battery band will probably accompany the Victoria artillery. The military party was here on Saturday and will help the formation of a corps at that town. Captain Towley, of Westminster, may be the captain of the proposed new Vancouver corps.

Things Promise Well.
 Superintendent of Police Police Hussey returned last night from a two weeks' trip in the Kootenay country. Mr. Hussey reports things prosperous. There are many miners in the Kootenay of the country. New claims are being discovered daily, and many of them are said to be rich. The snow is still on the higher elevations, and prospectors are waiting for it to melt before commencing operations. Kaslo is reported as holding its own, and the Victoria though wild is said to be law-abiding.

The Death of David Shelden.
 The following dispatches refer to a former resident of Victoria, who was once a member of the lacrosse team:

Windsor, June 3.—Edward Lappin, a milk dealer, came from a customer's house in Walkerville yesterday, saw a thief driving his horse away, and, yelled "Stop, thief!" all the way, chased him to Windsor, where the man left the rig and boarded a ferry boat. Detective Campbell caught the thief as he was climbing over the side into the river. The thief said he came from Woodstock and was wanted there for criminal assault. During the night he wound his suspenders around his neck and held on till he was strangled to death. Papers on him show that he was D. G. Shelden of Victoria.

Woodstock, June 3.—Shelden is a Woodstock boy. He worked at Victoria, but owing to dullness of trade had lived with his parents here all winter. He had been working for a week in Detroit. The assault story is wholly untrue.

The Raymond Party.
 A large Raymond excursion party arrived in the city on Saturday evening and spent yesterday viewing the town. They were at the Detford Hotel.

The party consisted of the following: Mrs. J. H. Thorndyke, Miss S. F. Richardson, Mrs. W. H. Hart, Duncan S. Merwin, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Turner, Mrs. J. Turner, Everett P. Turner, Howard C. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Warner, Mrs. Thomas Webster, Miss Mary Webster, Mrs. L. G. White, Rev. H. L. Edwards, of Boston, Miss M. S. H. Edwards, of Boston, of Chelsea, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hall, J. A. Hall, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Klittridge, Miss Charles, of Detroit, Miss J. A. Frisbie, of Brookline, Mass.; Mrs. N. A. Francis, Mrs. Mary H. F. Wood, Miss Mabel F.

Wood, of Cambridge, Mass.; Mrs. A. M. Sawyer, of Oakdale, Mass.; Miss Mary O. Pitman, of Fall River, Mass.; M. D. Lech, of Fall River, Mass.; Mr. and Mrs. R. Case, of Flemington, N.J.; Mrs. Edward Stern, of Brussels, Belgium; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cummings, of Philadelphia; Mrs. J. P. Foster, of Miss Alle Fortier, of Baltimore; Miss M. S. Barker, of Oakland, Cal.; O. E. Ganssen, of Cincinnati, Ohio; W. Thomas, Miss C. W. Thomas, Miss E. H. West, of King of Prussia, Pa.; Mrs. E. Worthington, Miss L. Worthington, of Buckingham, Pa.

Letter From Inspector Hutchinson.
 E. Hutchinson, of Ladner's Landing, inspector of fruit pests, has issued the following circular:

Sir,—I have the honor to call your attention to the act directed by the Horticultural Board Act, 1892, of the Province of British Columbia, and being now in force, to carry out the provisions of the law for which the board was created. As it is impossible for the inspector to visit every orchard or every locality, and not desiring to use up the appropriation by useless travel, we ask for your co-operation and kind assistance. It should be the pride of every orchardist to ever so small, to produce the best fruit possible, and in order to accomplish this, the grower must be careful not to infest his orchard. Should there be any pest-breeding orchards in your neighborhood, kindly ask you to inform me that I may visit the same and counsel with the owners as to the best method of treating the pests and restoring their orchards to health and vigor, thus redeeming the good fruit which they are capable of producing. I would especially call your attention to the fact that the act respecting trees, plants and fruit being imported into the province from outside the province, and being now in force, is being enforced before being distributed. Any assistance I can render you or information you may desire will be given.

(Signed) E. HUTCHINSON, Inspector.

Law Intelligence.
 Lorimer vs. Jensen.—The solicitor for the defendant consented to a writ of habeas corpus in the case of the inspection of the building and premises known as the Hotel Dallas, by the plaintiff, his solicitor, counsel and an architect at 10 o'clock.

Jackson vs. Jackson & Mylius.—Application was made by David Spencer for leave to discontinue the action in respect of the premises occupied by the firm of "Jackson & Mylius," or by defendants as representing that firm. Mr. Justice Drake granted leave to discontinue if the money is not paid into court within ten days.

Carmody vs. Sayward Mill and Lumber Company, Drum et al.—The mill of the defendant was refused an order to issue was refused and an order was made that $2000 be paid into court to the credit of the action, or that security satisfactory to the registrar be given.

The hearing of the application of the Union Steamship Company that further particulars be given in the statement of claim was adjourned until Saturday.

Russell vs. Russell.—An application of the defendant for permanent alimony, which was postponed until to-day, was adjourned sine die.

All proceedings have been stayed in Clarke vs. Ehlott on appeal.

Why Not Convert Them?

Rev. P. McF. Macleod, of Victoria, has been telling some of the eastern reporters some of the experiences. He was at a large Presbyterian congregation. When he opened the service the preacher had a large number of worshippers. He brought their Sunday morning newspapers into the church to read before the service, and he said that he had noticed no Bibles among the congregation. The elder replied "that there used to be some Bibles in the church before the Chinese came, but they had not been replaced." Mr. Macleod learned afterward that the church had been gutted by fire about four years previously, and since that time it had not been replaced. Mr. Macleod said that he had noticed no Bibles among the congregation, but he had noticed many of the Chinese people. He said that he had noticed many of the Chinese people, but he had noticed no Bibles among the congregation. He said that he had noticed many of the Chinese people, but he had noticed no Bibles among the congregation.

CHINAMEN AGAINST CHINAMEN

The Peculiar Mission of Two Victoria Celestials to San Francisco.
 Chin Ling Chong, otherwise known as Chin Ling Chong, and Chin Ling Chong, last night from San Francisco on the steamship Walla Walla, where they went on a somewhat peculiar mission. On the arrival of the City of Puebla at San Francisco seven Chinese, who had taken passage at Tacoma, were arrested by Collector Phelps and taken to the Treasury Agent C. J. Mulvey. The latter claimed that two of the Chinamen had smuggled the other five men across from Victoria to Tacoma, and he promised Collector Phelps that he would produce evidence from Victoria to prove his case. Charles and Song were the two witnesses sent for. They went to San Francisco, gave evidence against the seven men there, and are now here. The case against the alleged contraband was evidently not very strong, for they were discharged from custody. The case has been watched very closely by the Chinamen here, who strongly condemn the two Chinese who gave evidence against their celestial brothers, and there is much rejoicing that the seven Chinamen got away.

ANOTHER INCENDIARY FIRE.

Chemical and Hose Companies Quickly Suppress a Blaze in a Stable.
 An alarm from box 45 at 2:30 this morning called the fire department to a burning stable on Cook street, between Yates and Johnson streets. The chemical engine and No. 3 hose company made a quick run to the scene and in ten minutes the fire was extinguished. The stable was not scorched. Chin Deasy, accompanied by Sergeants Hawton and Levin, searched the building and found no person. An attempt to burn the place. The building belongs to S. L. Kelly and is insured for $400. Mr. Kelly says that a bomb was exploded near the stable last night and he thinks the same wretch fired the stable that made the attempt to wreck his house. The bomb was last night's fire. The amount of the investigation will be held to ascertain the origin of the fire.

"NEW AUSTRALIA."

A Curious Movement Started by People of Queensland.

A peculiar movement which has been set afoot in Queensland and has already made some progress, might at first sight seem to be associated with the industrial and financial troubles which have recently overtaken Australia. The central feature of it is the foundation of an operative settlement, which has received the name of New Australia. Most Canadians would, we venture to say, be puzzled not a little if they were asked to find the latitude and longitude of the country thus designated on the map of the world. As a rule, when colonists give the name of their motherland to the land of promise in which they have set up their penitents, the colonists thus affected are of a mind to yield the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics and the cereals of the temperate zones, to seek away from their native land, and to establish themselves and their children? And where are we likely to find a home so boundlessly favored by nature as this? Australia, before, in some part of the world more or less remote from the great island once called New Holland. But what can have tempted Australian colonists to seek a new home, yielding the rich fruits of the tropics