

General Business.

To Arrive this Week.

- 1 Case Golden Syrup.
- 1 Case Preserved Corn Beef.
- 1 Case Triples.
- 1 Case Sugar-Cured Ham.
- 1 Case Canned Apples.
- 1 Case Canned Peaches.
- 1 Case Canned Fruit.
- 1 Case Canned Tomatoes.
- 1 Case Canned Beans.
- 1 Case Canned Corn.
- 1 Case Canned Potatoes.
- 1 Case Canned Onions.
- 1 Case Canned Mushrooms.
- 1 Case Canned Spinach.
- 1 Case Canned Carrots.
- 1 Case Canned Celery.
- 1 Case Canned Parsnips.
- 1 Case Canned Turnips.
- 1 Case Canned Cauliflower.
- 1 Case Canned Broccoli.
- 1 Case Canned Asparagus.
- 1 Case Canned Artichokes.
- 1 Case Canned Kidney Beans.
- 1 Case Canned Lima Beans.
- 1 Case Canned Navy Beans.
- 1 Case Canned Pintos.
- 1 Case Canned Black Beans.
- 1 Case Canned Chickpeas.
- 1 Case Canned Lentils.
- 1 Case Canned Peas.
- 1 Case Canned Corned Beef.
- 1 Case Canned Corned Ham.
- 1 Case Canned Corned Tongue.
- 1 Case Canned Corned Beef.
- 1 Case Canned Corned Ham.
- 1 Case Canned Corned Tongue.

D. CHESMAN'S.

WATER STREET.

Chatham, Aug. 11, 1881.

JOHN HAVILAND,

HARNESS AND COLLAR

MAKER.

would announce to his former customers and the public that he has moved to his old stand, opposite the Masonic Hall, where he is prepared to manufacture Harness of every description.

Collar Making.

Having a practical experience of this branch of the Trade for THIRTY YEARS, he is prepared to turn out COLLARS which cannot be excelled in the Dominion.

The most difficult horse satisfactorily fitted.

CARRIAGE TRIMMING

executed in a tasteful and workman-like manner.

MONARCH

BILLIARD TABLES

We are agents for the Brunswick & Balls Co., celebrated Billiard Tables and Billiard Furniture generally. Our Billiard Tables are of the best material, and our Billiard Furniture is of the best quality. We have a large stock of Billiard Tables and Billiard Furniture on hand, and we are prepared to take orders for the same.

Persons about purchasing Billiard Tables for home or public use should write us for prices. Pool and Billiard Balls turned and colored. Every thing in the Billiard line supplied on short notice.

22 Charlotte St. St. John, N.B.

MACKENZIE & CO.

DRUGGISTS

AND APOTHECARIES.

Have received this week, a fresh lot of Drugs, Patent Medicines,

Toilet Articles, &c.

See Salt, Vegetables, Soap, Butter, Cream, Eggs, Fish, Fruit, and Wine. Quinine Wine and Iron. Extract of Meat, Fresh Fruit Salt. Spices, Sugar, Rice, Trusses, Suppositories, etc. Boyd's Malaria Bacteries for Rheumatism.

Prescriptions and family receipts carefully and accurately prepared at any hour of the day or night.

MACKENZIE & CO.

Dental Rooms up-stairs.

Chatham, Aug. 4, 1881.

Debentures Sale.

Tenders for the purchase of Kent County Debentures will be received at the office of the undersigned, until the 15th day of September, 1881. Particulars as to interest, terms of sale, calling of such Debentures, and any information relating thereto, can be had from the undersigned.

GEO. V. MEINERNEY, Secy.

Richibucto, N. B., Aug. 1st, 1881.

JUST THE THING!!

The Monitor Oil Stove.

No more ashes, smoke, dust or trouble.

This is a compact and durable stove burning ordinary coal oil. Perfectly safe, and free from smell. Can easily be carried from one room to another in a few seconds, handy for heating, cooking or preparing meals in hot weather. Just the thing for Hotels and Restaurants. 12,000 of these stoves have been sold in United States.

Single Stove, $5.00. Double Stove, $8.00.

H. F. MARQUIS, Correspondent.

Agent for Miramichi.

Chatham, June 25, 1881.

RECEIVED THIS DAY.

THIRD IMPORTATION:

LOUNGES,

CENTRE TABLES,

STUDENT CHAIRS,

BED ROOM SUITES,

OFFICE CHAIRS.

FOURTH IMPORTATION OF MATTRESSES, SHIP'S DO.

FEATHER AND FLOCK PIL-

LOWS, BOLSTERS ETC.

ALSO

Black Cashmeres, Special Value,

Black French Merinos, Black

Persian Cords, Lustre

Twills, Courtlaid's

Celebrated

Black Crape,

Black and Colored Josephine Kid

Gloves,

A full assortment of Small Wares.

All of which I am offering

At Lowest Prices.

The one Price Store.

JAMES O'FAREY.

Miramichi and the North

Shore, etc.

TEA SOIRE.—The Catholic of Richibucto Parish, are going to have a Tea Soiree, on the 6th September, to liquidate the balance due on the Public Hall.

AN UNKNOWN correspondent sends us a leading to certain affairs of one of the Chatham Churches. We do not publish it, lest, because the writer does not send his or her name and, 2nd, because the management of church affairs are best left in the hands of those properly entrusted with such duties. A newspaper may aggravate, but it cannot settle church disputes.

"KENNEDY".—The Kennedy family are to appear at Richibucto on Thursday evening next and will probably come to Chatham by special train. They will appear at Masonic Hall on Friday evening, 9th and again on Monday, 12th, resting here on Saturday and Sunday. They will appear at Newcastle on Tuesday, 13th, at Bathurst on 14th, and proceed North favoring both Dalhousie and Campbellton with performances.

THE REMATE.—The date of the proposed Miramichi Regatta has been fixed for Tuesday, 27th inst. It is desirable that all who intend taking part in the event should inform the Secretary or some member of the committee as soon as possible. The regular programme will be out in a few days. We understand that the Junior (under 16) may obtain a loan of some of the double scull boats to be used by the seniors for practice for the race of that class.

A Matter of Color.

We submit to Miramichi Conservatives who have a sense of self-respect, whether they think it right that a man should be held up to ridicule on account of his race or color, because he happens to accept employment in the regular way of his business. We refer particularly to the attacks made upon the caterer who has charge of preparing the dinner to be given to-morrow evening in honor of Mr. Blake, under the auspices of the Liberal-Reform party here. These attacks are all the more to be deprecated because they are made by persons who signed the party address presented to Sir Hector Langevin at Chatham, and therefore may be presumed to speak for the Conservatives of the County. It seems these gentlemen cannot find any honorable way of attacking those who are so creditably preparing to receive and do justice to Mr. Blake, but that they imagine they can promote their party ends by publishing the fact that a negro is employed as a caterer, and making unbecoming references to him. It would be a poor negro who could not give such men lessons in good manners and in the courtesy due to strangers, whether black or white.

Drowning Accident and Rescue

On Monday morning about half past one o'clock, Mr. Alexander Cameron who had just arrived from Black River, at a rafting lay at Black Brook, in charge of Mr. John Cameron, his brother, who slept on board, thought he heard cries of distress on the river, and after some little time, the cries continuing, both men got into a log canoe and followed the sound as it seemed to be recording down the river, until at last they made out there were men in the water shouting for help.

They immediately shouted for help to hold on, and were soon alongside a capsize boat to which two men were clinging at the last point of exhaustion.

They had then drifted down opposite Bathurst River. The men were speedily taken into the canoe, and brought up to Black Brook where dry clothes were given them from the raft. Their story was as follows: About midnight three of them, David Newman, colored steward, Jamaica, George Brown (cook), Boston, and G. Edwards (apprentice), Aberdeen, all belonging to the Bk. Glenora, Brown, from London, anchored off Black Brook, attempted to reach their ship from the shore by hauling for a boat. None coming, however, they got a small skiff somewhere near Mr. Rice's, but the boat leaked and subsequently capsize, all were thrown into the water. The steward Newman seized hold of the lad Edwards, and the two went to the bottom together, until Edwards after a struggle managed to shake Newman off, and coming to the surface, made for the capsize boat, to which he found Brown the cook, clinging. When the canoe manned by the Camerons was approaching, the two sailors had made up their minds they could hold on no longer, having been an hour and a half in the water. They then encouraged each other, and reserved themselves for one last shout, which was providentially answered by their rescuers, but in the absence of which, they would probably have been drowned with their shipmate.

Conversations held on Monday evening in St. Mary's Chapel Sunday School Room, under the auspices of the Rector assisted by ladies and gentlemen of the congregation. The room was carpeted and decorated handsomely with flags, flowers, evergreens, etc., converting it into a grand parlor just suited to such an occasion. The congregation was well represented by its adult members and there were some other honored guests, including the Rector of Newcastle and Mrs. Sweet and Mr. and Mrs. Snowball. There was no attempt at formality in the proceedings, everyone seeming to enjoy the occasion as their tastes suggested. In addition to the interchange of sentiment on various subjects, by the more elderly guests, there was some excellent music—vocal and instrumental—while some engaged in chess, draughts, or bagatelle. A large table, well provided with light refreshments also received due attention.

R. Carman, Esq., Church Warden, in a few well chosen remarks, and in the name of all present, expressed the satisfaction and pleasure it afforded him to welcome his Lordship among them, and he was certain that it was the cherished hope of all present, that as his Lordship had now a Coadjutor to share his labours, his visits to Chatham would be more frequent for a long time to come.

On the present occasion it was the happy duty of the Church people of this Parish to welcome among them, a bishop who had bravely performed the duties of his sacred office, and who intended to remain at his post until the end of life. He sincerely trusted that the day was far distant when his Lordship would be prevented by years or infirmity from discharging the duties of the office he had for so many years so completely adorned, and for his faithfulness in which he would undoubtedly receive the reward of all who do their duty in righteousness.

The Metropolitan replied in his Lordship's usual happy manner. It was a pleasure and privilege he highly prized to be present upon such an occasion, when everything he saw and heard was calculated to afford him satisfaction and happiness. It had always been a pleasure to him to come among them, and that pleasure was particularly grateful to him at the present time, when he saw such evidences of success in the work of the Church in this Parish. He was happy to congratulate them upon the satisfactory accomplishment of the important work just completed, by which they had now a free and unappropriated Church, wherein the rich and poor alike might receive the comfort of a place of worship. His Lordship referred to the great improvement which had taken place within the Diocese in the last few years, in the contributions to the various objects in connection with the church work. It was a pleasure for him to know that Chatham was no exception to the rest of the Diocese. He was gratulated then upon the very tasteful decoration of the building in which they were assembled, so handsome in itself that it was second to none in the Diocese.

His Lordship referred to Mr. Carman's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain at his post, and wished to say, that neither now nor hitherto had he any other intention than to remain faithful to that sacred office to which, he thanked God, he had been called. He had no thought of remaining at ease in Fredericton, as his Lordship's mention of his intention to remain