harm in everybody knowing just Mr. Tweedie's acceptance of office in "Those who content themselves with saying that nothing can be done must only expect the fate of men whose memory, after they are gone, emphasises the doctrine of the survival of the fittest. When everybedy knows what ought to be done it is easy for almost anybody to do it, but those who would preserve the loyalty of friends and challenge the approval of their opponents must rise superior to the crowd and show themselves equal to the emergency they have helped to create. New Brunswick, through the stumpage policy of its governments of the past ten years, is losing its lumber trade. There ought to be such a trimming of sails as will meet the emergency."

how the "deal," as it is called, was brought about. A good many rumors have been current on the subject and many of them are, of course, only the inventions of wags on both sides, and it is well to set these at rest by a plain statement. On the day after polling a number of gentlemen, some of whom had supported the Government, and some of whom had supported the Government has made his seat in the Assembly vacant, for, under the law, he must return to the County and ask the electors' approval of his action. The Writ for the election is issued and the Sheriff's proclamation published, fixing nomination for Thursday next, polling-day being the 20th. It is reasonable to assume that no opposition will be offered to his return. When the oppositi "Those who content themselves with how the "deal," as it is called, was the Government has made his seal them met and had interviews with Mr. | allow him to be returned unopposed, "The local government has, no doubt, een made sensible of the fact that it has the limit of the fact that the limit of the limit of the limit of the limit of the fact that it has the limit of the limit "The local government has, no doubt, been made sensible of the fact that it has passed the limits of justice, prudence and good policy in making its lumber regulations. Our northern members are mainly Government supporters, and will, dcubtless, continue to be so, unless they can see their way clear to the securing of a reduction of stumpage by officing opposition.

It will, thus, be seen chat in our view, at least, an attitude of opposition might, under certain circumstances, be the best road to what we all so much desired, viz.—stumpage reduction. At that time, we hardly domain in this province, since confederation—and even before that time—has been so directed as to work injustice to the northern counties, and, while it is, perhaps, too much to believe that what has been unfairly taken from us will ever be restored, we may, in, dulge the hope that, under present acuse for dissatisfaction hereafter, as in the past the post of the opposition, which is now reduced to opposition, which is now reduced to opposition, which is now reduced to opposition. opposition, which is now reduced to twelve members in a house of forty-one
