SOLDIERS AND RUSSIAN BRIDES COMING TO U.S.

Members of Siberian Force Who Married Are Being Brought Home.

UNABLE TO FIND HOMES IN THE PHILIPPINES

So Army Authorities Arranged to Have Them Stationed in Homeland.

(Copyright, 1920, by Public Ledger Company.)
Manila, P. I., June 11.—Paternalistic military authorities of the United States Government are sending home to the United States soldiers and the brides they brought with them in recent weeks from Siberia, and behind this order, which will send several hundred Russian wives, there is more than a touch of the semi-comic. The order applies to soldiers who depend solely on their pay.
When developments in Siberia two months ago brought about the announcement from Washington, that American military intervention in Siberia was at an end and that the two regiments composing the American expeditionary forces must be brought back to their old stations in the Philippines, joy swept over the men of the Twenty-seventh and Thirty-first Infantry doughboys in one grand surge. They were "fed up" on patrol duty in frozen wastes. Nearly every soldier had a sweetheart, and many of them had been legally married.

300 Russian Accompanying Husbands.
Nearly 300, on various transports, came to Manila with their lawfully wedded husbands. In some cases there were some last-minute weddings in Vladivostok. With food scarce, fuel still more so, living high, the country in a turmoil, many of the girls deprived of kith and kin by events of the last year or so at home, they filled their bosoms as the transports set sail for Manila. These brides, from every station in life—from the lowliest peasant girl in the frozen interior to the college graduate and erstwhile society belle of the old regime. Mighty was the sigh of relief as they stepped from their hearts when, finally, they were on their way to the Philippines.

Some of the girls abandoned by their protectors, dressed in attire and shipped as stowaways, so determined were they to get here. These stowaways, turned over to authorities in Manila, were in the group of being deported to Vladivostok when soldiers of the American forces came to their rescue and married them at the dock. This eleventh-hour ceremony being sufficient to prevent their shipment home.

On the arrival of the last transport, reports say, one stowaway, when taken to the dock in custody of the authorities, made an attractive picture—betwixt and between. She was dressed with a wealth of golden hair streaming down her back and glistening in the bright tropical sunshine, she shied and blushed for a man to marry her and holding aloft 150,000 rubles which she offered to the man who would marry her and save her from being sent back to Siberia. "And I'll make you just as good a wife as any American girl, too," she said. But there were no takers, and so she was sent back to Siberia.

There were the few, the isolated instances, however. For the most part the doughboys' brides came in as second-cabin passengers and, with eyes shining with eagerness and anticipation, gazed upon the attractive panorama of beautiful Manila, modernized since the American occupation. Here was to be their Arcady; here a honeymoon, started under difficulties, was to reach its fulfillment. Strong but tender hands helped them ashore, looked after their baggage, and smiling husbands cheered and encouraged them as the start for house-hunting began.

Red Cross Aids.
The Cross workers stepped quickly to the front and found a home in one large house for many of the girls whose husbands pay, as private, of $2 a month would not go far toward feeding or clothing a family, let alone paying a grasping landlord. But visiting a wife once a week or so in a common room with a group of her fellow-doughboys, and cooing newlyweds, or holding hands for a brief half hour in a dark corner of the front yard and having one's wife under restrictions as to when to be home and what time to go to bed, certainly is not an American doughboy's idea of a "wonderful time." And this scheme, grateful as both husband and wife are to the Red Cross for timely aid, has not given general satisfaction.

Many of these brides are pretty, all of them life willing to work; in fact, anxious to work. But few of them speak more than a word or two of English, and what firm wants to employ a clerk or stenographer or stenographer whose vocabulary can be summed up in these phrases, learned, of course, from hubby: "I'll tell the world," "Oh, boy, I'll say so," "I'm sittin' on the world" and possibly "I love you." Most of the husbands have learned enough Russian to get by, and both bride and groom are teaching each other as they go along, although it must be admitted that the doughboys, at the moment, are far in the lead. When it comes to domestic services, the war brides were even more greatly handicapped, since first-class "muchachos," or houseboys, can be employed from among the natives here for remuneration so insignificant that it would hardly keep these girls of a fairer race in hair ribbons.

Send Brides and Grooms Home.
Since the European war, the American army has become a great deal more "human" than it ever was before. Certainly, it has lost none of its efficiency, and no one who sees the 10,000 or more soldiers over here on drill during a tropical sun several hours a day and then finding them after football, baseball, boxing and countless other equally strenuous diversions at forward, could accuse it of becoming

EVACUATION OF KIEV HAS BEEN COMPLETED

Bolshevik North of Kiev, Are Endeavoring to Cut Korosten-Kiev Railroad—Fight for Kiev Not Ended.

Warsaw, June 13.—(By The Associated Press)—The evacuation of Kiev has been completed, the Poles withdrawing in the region of Zhitomir. News of the evacuation of Kiev reached Warsaw Saturday night, which was the first report from Kiev in several days. Just prior to the cutting off of communication by the Bolsheviks, General Rydzinski, the commander at Kiev, sent a despatch that he would make a stand unless otherwise ordered. With difficulty the Poles got through a personal order from General Plehinski, the commander in chief, to the Kiev commander to evacuate immediately.

General Suddeny, the Russian commander who fought against Denekine, bringing up reinforcements, the despatches say, but the military authorities assert that the fight for Kiev is not yet ended by any means.

North of Kiev the Poles are battling against the Bolsheviks, who are endeavoring to cut the Korosten-Kiev railroad to join forces with the cavalry of General Budenny, which is striking northward from the region southwest of Kiev. Fighting is general all along the Berdichev-Pastova-Kiev railroad. According to latest reports the territory in this region is changing hands daily.

In the dash to the northwest the cavalry of General Budenny passed Berdichev, killing peasants enroute. It proceeded as far as Zhitomir where it is alleged the cavalry killed several wounded Poles in a hospital.

Fighting on the northern front has brought victory to the Poles who have ousted the Bolsheviks from territory gained in the recent offensive. The Poles are consolidating their lines from the Dvina southward along the Beretina.

DUTY TO LOOK WELL

"Why should a woman, if she is a Christian, go and make a scarecrow of herself?" asked the Rev. Dinsdale Young, speaking at Weybridge, England. "Christian women ought to dress as prettily as they could, so long as the clothes are paid for."

"Soft." But it now has a department devoted to morale, and this department, aided by the intelligence office, kept busy, and investigating conditions learned that, with few exceptions, every one of the Russian war brides would be more contented, and therefore, more valuable to the army in the same place, if the machinery of the army was put in motion, and by the time this article reaches the United States most of the Russian brides and their husbands will be on the high seas enroute to the States. Only those will be permitted to remain who have ample resources and some special reason for desiring to stay in the Philippines.

U. S. NAMES ARBITER IN TESCHEN DISPUTE

Frederic Dolbeare, Secretary to Berlin Embassy, Chosen for Plebiscite Area.

Berlin, June 12.—Frederic Dolbeare, secretary of embassy attached to the American Diplomatic Commission in Berlin, has been appointed American commissioner to the Teschen plebiscite area, whose ownership is in dispute between Poland and Czechoslovakia. Mr. Dolbeare has gone to Paris to receive instructions before proceeding to his post, in a part of the plebiscite area, which presents one of the most ticklish problems on the new map of Europe.

Poland and Czechoslovakia are almost ready to go to war over its ownership. It has been reported repeatedly, and erroneously, that they suspended diplomatic relations owing to the acerbity of the dispute and much blood has already been shed in collisions between Polish and Czech residents in the ancient duchy. So the American representative to whom will fall the roll of arbiter in the conflict will have a delicate and difficult mission.

President Wilson's decision to send a representative to Teschen is apparently out of harmony with the general lines of American executive policy, which is now to abstain from official participation in institutions created by the peace conference until the treaties have been ratified. But it is understood that both Poland and Czechoslovakia have indicated a particular desire to have America as a disinterested and unprejudiced party represented in this area. Mr. Dolbeare's mission may be regarded as the result of a request from two friendly powers rather than as a mandate under the American Peace Commission in Paris and has had opportunity to study conditions in the "new Balkans" to the east and south of Germany.

WHERE WOMEN ARE SILENT

Japan has its communities of silent female residents. There is a convent at a place called Yakuwaka, about seven miles from Hakodate. A majority of some fifty wives, president, and her instructions are implicitly obeyed. The women are all young, ranging from sixteen to twenty-seven. A few of them are described as very beautiful. The building stands in a farm of some 350 acres, but the women do not engage in any agricultural work. They spend most of their time indoors, and they observe a strict rule of silence.

U. S. COURT QUASHES MANY INDICTMENTS
Returned Against Woolen Companies and Managers Charged With Profiteering.
New York, June 11.—Indictments charging profiteering against the American Woolen Companies of New York and Massachusetts and William W. Wood, President of the corporations, were quashed today by Federal Judge Mack.
Judge Mack sustained a demurrer interposed by Charles E. Hughes, special counsel for the defence, which held that Woolen goods did not constitute wearing apparel, and therefore did not come within the meaning of the Lever Act. He said Congress by its amendment of October 22, 1919 to the original Lever Act did not broaden the true meaning of the term "wearing apparel" to include a bolt of cloth and he was unable to find any meaning in the Act other than the general trade use of the term.
American woolen shares became active in the stock market on announcement that indictments against the company and its officials had been quashed. The stock showed an extreme gain of four points at noon.
