

(†) is used to indicate that a document has not been printed; an explanation of other editorial devices and principles will be found in the Introduction to that volume (p. XIX). No restrictions were placed on the publication of any document selected, but the names of individual persons have been removed from documents 912, 955, 958 and 983, and from the enclosure to document 985.

Some publications of interest to readers of this volume are mentioned in the footnotes and others will be found listed in the Introduction to Volume 9 (p. XIX, n. 1 and p. XXI). Since that volume appeared, the companion series on Newfoundland has been completed with the publication of Documents on relations between Canada and Newfoundland (Volume 2: 1940-1949, Confederation), edited by Paul Bridle (Ottawa, Minister of Supply and Services, 1984). Also now available is the relevant volume of the official history of the Royal Canadian Air Force, The creation of a National Air Force, by W. A. B. Douglas (Toronto: University of Toronto Press, 1986). Among other recently available works dealing with the period are The Shaping of Peace: Canada and the search for world order 1943-1957, by John W. Holmes (2 volumes, Toronto: University of Toronto Press, 1979 and 1982), and Canada and the Age of Conflict: A History of Canadian External Policies, (Volume 2: 1921-1948, The Mackenzie King Era) by C. P. Stacey (Toronto: University of Toronto Press, 1981). Of particular interest as well are two recent biographies: J. L. Granatstein, A Man of Influence: Norman A. Robertson and Canadian Statecraft 1929-68, (Ottawa: Deneau Publishers, 1981), and Claude Bissell, The Imperial Canadian: Vincent Massey in Office, (Toronto: University of Toronto Press, 1986).
