GEMS OF THOUGHT.

Education is an ornament in prosperity and a refuge in adversity.

Those who follow after others in sinning are in danger of following them in suffering.

Happiness lies concealed in our duties which, when fulfilled, give it forth as the opening rose gives forth fragrance.

Life to be worthy of a rational being must always be in progression; and we must always propose to do more or better than in time past.

There are two sorts of content. One is connected with exertion the other with habits of indolence. The first is a virtue; the other a vice.

The next best thing to being happy one-self is to be able to make others so. Perhaps that may be the sort of happiness they have in the next world.

There is no true happiness outside of love and self-sacrifice, or rather outside of love, for it includes the other. That is gold, and all the rest is gilt.

The very conscientiousness of trying for real excellence in anything is a great support. It takes the sting from failure and doubles the joy of success.

Cold words freeze people, hot words scorch them, bitter words make them bitter, wrathful words make them wrathful. Kind words produce their own image on men's souls; and a beautiful image it is.

Reason tells us that the virtue of prosperity is temperance and the virtue of adversity is fortitude; but it depends upon ourselves whether we get these and other virtuous fruits from either of those plants.

Conscience is like a sundial. If you let truth shine upon it it will point you right; but you may cover it over so that the truth can fall upon it, and then it will lead you astray if you follow its guidance.

Some say that the age of chivalry is past. The age of chivalry is never past as long as there is a wrong left unredressed on earth, and a man or woman left to say, "I will redress that wrong, or spend my life in the attempt."

For the earnest man or woman there is no end to efforts. One sin reached and its difficulties surmounted, another will quickly present itself to the aspiring spirit; and before that is reached other difficulties must again be met.

Faithful prayer always implies correlative exertion; and no man can ask honestly and hopefully to be delivered from temptation, unless he has himself honestly and firmly determined to do the best he can to keep out of it.

GOOD RULES TO GO BY.

Never obtrude any advice unasked. Aim at cheerfulness without levity. Never dispute if you can fairly avoid it.
Never show levity when people are engaged in worship.
Never judge a woman's character by external appearances.
Say as little as possible of yourself and those who are near you.
Never affect to be witty, or jest so as to wound the feelings of another.
Never court the favor of the rich by flattering either their vanities or vices.
Never dispute with a man more than 70 years of age, nor a woman, nor an enthusiast.
Never ridicule sacred things, or what others may esteem to be such, however absurd they appear to be.

Never think the worse of another on account of his differing with you in politics or religious opinions.
Always take the part of an absent person who is censured in company, so far as truth and propriety will allow.
Never resent a supposed injury till you know the views and motives of the author of it, nor seek any occasion to retaliate.

Guests will not take out 'em bricks in the mattress.
If it rains through that hole overhead you'll find an umbrella under the bed.
The rate won't hurt you if they do chase each other across your face.
Two men in a room must put up with one chair.
Please don't empty the sawdust out of the pillars.
If there's no towel handy use a piece of the carpet.

HOW TO SHARPEN A KNIFE.

It is a fact well known by dealers in cutlery, that not one man in fifty knows how to sharpen a pocket knife. A razor must be laid flat on the hone, being hollow-ground, and requiring a fine edge. The pocket knife, however, requires a stiff edge, and the moment it is laid flat on a stone so as to touch the polished side, its edge is ruined. The blade must be held at an angle of 20 or 25 degrees, and have an edge similar to a chisel. This is called the "camel," and is marked on all "sw" knives by a fine white line, which does not remove or touch the polished surface.

CAN YOU AFFORD IT?

When tempted to go out with the boys for a lark,
Think! Can you afford it?
The most of their money is spent after dark.
Think! Can you afford it?
You may sit round the tables where cards are dealt out.
Or pat on the town red on a rollicking bout.
In the end you're both money and character out.
Think! Can you afford it?
Oh! Can you afford it?
Think! Can you afford it?
If you see every dime they'll be dollars in time.
Think! Can you afford it?
You'd like to be dandish and sporting new clothes.
Think! Can you afford it?
How they're to be paid for nobody knows.
Think! Can you afford it?
It's all very well to keep decent and clean.
And when with the boys not appear very mean.
But your bank account's much better fat than this lean.
Think! Can you afford it?
Chorus:
A wife is a good thing to have in a house.
Think! Can you afford it?
She'll keep you at home and stop many a cause.
Think! Can you afford it?
She's a luxury, sure, and if you would try
To keep her you'll find, perhaps with a sigh,
That women, like the hats they wear now, come high.
Think! Can you afford it?

MY NATIVE LAND.

I love the land of Canada—
The dear land of my birth,
I deem my native country
The fairest place on earth.
I love her lakes and rivers,
Her forests, grand and high,
And every charm that brightens
The landscape to the eye.
I love the slender tamarac,
The tall and stately pine,
The bonnie birch and Kingly oak,
With clinging ivy vine,
So beautiful, so glorious,
In their autumn splendor dressed,
I love them all, but oh! I love
The maple tree the best.
Old England has her royal rose,
The thistle Scotland's pride,
While many a brave and gallant men
For Erin's shamrock died,
But I will keep my maple leaf—
And they may keep the rest—
Our country's precious emblem,
The dearest and the best.
We'll take the red and queenly rose,
The maple's glossy leaf,
The shamrock and the thistle,
And twine them in a wreath,
We'll take those well-loved emblems,
And weave them in a garland
For our dear and gentle Queen.
Oh! lovely land of Canada,
May joy and peace be thine,
May the sun of bright prosperity
O'er thy Dominion shine;
May thy sons be brave and noble,
Thy daughters true and kind,
And the love of Queen and country
Our hearts in friendship bind.
—Marie Jossely.

AN IDEAL HUSBAND.

At a gathering of young ladies one evening last week one of them proposed that the party draw up in a circle, and each give her opinion as to the qualities that she ideal husband. It was immediately agreed to, says the Milwaukee Wisconsin, and oh! the diversity of prerequisites would cause a man to fear and tremble as to his acceptableness even were he an angel's wings. One wanted a rich man, one a famous one, another a handsome one, some wanted a man who should not them wanted all these things combined.

At last it came the turn of a sweet, sunny little creature in pink and white. For a moment her face grew serious, and then came her verdict: "He must be moral, well-bred and have some fixed and honorable method of making a living."

What! not one word about his being titled, rich or handsome? "The man I marry must be my other self. He must be sympathetic with me in my tastes and pursuits. When he comes I shall know him, and all the love I have will give shall be his, and I shall expect love in return for love. Of course, if he is young, and rich and handsome so much the better, but I should not love him less were he none of these things."

True womanly sentiments! Would that they could be met in every woman's heart. The number of unhappy marriages would be lessened, and divorce unknown. Many, fascinated by the glitter of the world, rush headlong into matrimony, and too late find that the tastes and inclinations of husband and wife differ as widely as night and day. It is a pity that a more liberal and fond of retirement, the other despises literature and is inclined to society; each will naturally seek the society and conversation of those whose tastes and opinions coincide with his own. The consequence is an estrangement of husband and wife in things that the world will not understand, but which, in reality, decide their happiness; and each would find it easy to sacrifice all the other charms for the one charm not there, namely, a responsive heart in all things.

WHAT A WOMAN CAN DO.

She can come to a conclusion without the slightest trouble of reasoning on it and no sane man can do that.
Six of them can talk at once and get along first rate, and no two men can do that.
She can safely stick 60 pins in her dress, while he is getting one under his thumbnail.
She is cool as a cucumber in half a dozen tight dresses and skirts, while a man will fret and fume and growl in one loose shirt.
She can talk as sweet as peaches and cream to the woman she hates, while two men would be punching each other's head before they had exchanged ten words.
She can say "no" in such a low voice that it means "yes."
She can dance all night in a pair of shoes two sizes too small for her, and enjoy every minute of the time.
She can appreciate a kiss from her husband 75 years after the marriage ceremony is performed.
She can go to church and afterward tell you what ever woman in the congregation had on, and in some rare instances can give you some faint idea of what the text was.
She can walk bare the night with a colicky baby in her arms without once expressing the desire of murthering the infant.
She can—but what's the use? A woman can do anything or everything, and do it well.
She can get up in a minute than a man can do in an hour, and do it better.
She can drive a man crazy for 24 hours and then bring him back to paradise in two seconds by simply tickling him under the chin, and there does not live that mortal son of Adam's race that can do it.

KNOW WHAT HE WANTED.

"Is there anything I can do for you?" asked Mrs. Cumso, tenderly, when her husband was suffering from seasickness. "What do you want?" "I want the earth," gasped Cumso, as he again leaned over the rail.
