The Spice of Life,

A young girl who was paying a visit to an aunt, came to tea very late one afternoon. "Where in the world have you been?" asked her aunt.

"In the hammock all the afternoon," replied the girl, "with my beloved Robert Browning."

The aunt eyed her sternly. "If I hear of any more such scandalous proceedings," she said, "I shall certainly write to your mother !"

HIGH SPEED.

The old mountaineer, who was standing on the corner of the main street in a certain little Kentucky town, had never seen an automobile.

When a good-sized touring - car came rushing up the street at about thirty miles an hour and slowed down just enough to take the corner on two wheels. his astonishment was extreme.

The old fellow watched the disappearing car with bulging eyes and open mouth. Then, turning to a bystander, he remarked solemnly:

"The horses must sho'ly ha' been travelling some when they got loose from that gen'leman's carriage !"

POOR POODLE.

In a saloon railway carriage sat an extravagantly-dressed young woman, tenderly holding a very small poodle. "Madam," said the ticket inspector, "I am very sorry, but you can't have your dog here. It's against the rules." shall hold him in my lap all the way," she replied, "and he will disturb no one." 'That makes no difference," said the inspector. "Dogs must ride in the luggage-van. I'll fasten him up all right for you." "Bon't you touch my dog, sir!" said the young woman excitedly. "I will trust him to no one !"-and, with indignant mien, she went to the luggage-van, tied up her dog, and returned. An hour later, when the inspector came along again, she asked him, "Will you tell me if my dog is all right?" "I am very sorry," said the man politely, "but you tied him to a trunk, and he was thrown out with it at the last stopping-place !"

In the "upper end" of Pike County, Pennsylvania, there is a man who is so noted for his conversational abilities, says a writer in the Boston Herald, that his acquaintances avoid giving him unnecessary opportunities to talk.

One cold morning this man rode up te a hotel in the neighborhood just as the guests were finishing breakfast. He dismounted, walked in, saluted the landlord in his usual loud tones, and declared that he was so cold that he could hardly talk.

Just then a nervous traveller who was present stepped up to the landlord, and taking him by the coat, said:

"Mr. L., have my horse brought as soon as possible." "What is the matter, my dear sir?"

inquired the anxious landlord. "Has anything happened?"

Nothing, nothing! Only I want to get away from here before that man thaws."

THE POET'S PLEA. It was all over. They were in the carriage at last, man and wife, driving back to the wedding breakfast. But suddenly, without warning, the youthful bride burst into heartrending sobs.

"Oh-o !" she cried. "Oh-o ! Oh-o !"
"My dearest dear !" breathed the newmade hubby. "Why does my pet weep so on her wedding-day? Tell her hubsiewubsie all about it, then !"

And, with her head on his shoulder, the little wife faltered out at last: "Marmaduke, I've hidden something from you, I've not told you all. Alas!

What shall I do?" Marmaduke's heart stood still for what seemed to him a century, but was, in reality, a second; then:

"Tell me"-and his voice was hoarse-'tell me what you mean at once! . I cannot bear the suspense !"

"I c-cannot c-cook!" sobbed the little wife.

"Oh, lovey, is that all?" the young man cried, as his heart-beats slowed to normal time. 'You frightened me ! But worry not, I am a poet, and there will be precious little to cook !"
