THE WESLEYAN, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1883.

OUR HOME CIRCLE

UNKNOWN HEROES.

······

We see them and we know them not So plain in garb and mien are they ; So lowly is their thankless lot, We hear not what they do or say.

And yet for weary months and years, Without a murmur, plaint or cry, Thousands who eat their bread in tears To daily duty pass us by.

A sickly mother, wan and worn, Be:eft of cheerfulness and light, From longed-tor rest and joy is torn, To work from early morn till night

To steal one hour from dreary fate, Or falter in the hardest tasks, Would make some home disconsolate And so no peace or joy she asks.

A little child, faint with its fears-A girl, untimely old and gray-A man bent cown by weight of years-All bravely go their bitter way,

We see them and we know them not, So plain in garb and mien are they So lowly is their thankless lot, We hear not what they do or say.

He ces unknown-through weary years They make no sign or outward cry, But eat their bread with bitter tears And we, in silence, pass them by.

GEORGE HUMISTON'S EXPERIENCE.

Whenever my business takes me through Buffalo, I always try to stop a few hours with George Humiston. George and I were school mates and cronies, and have continued our friendship to middle life. We have like tastes; we vote the same national ticket; our business, though not the same, leads us to take similar views of the tariff and an interest in the same market reports. We are fathers of growing families, consequently there was no lack of interesting topics of conversation, even before his conversion three years ago.

We are both inclined to be too relicent in regard to personal experience, but without that-and we did not quite leave that outthere was the general church thing." work, and missions, aud ministers to talk over; besides, we often held friendly discussions on the methods and customs of our respective denominations, for George followed his wife into the Presbyterian Church, while I honored

Methodist. About six weeks ago I was able time I was setting forth to myself to drop in on him unannounced to how my great grandfather had spend the night. They had just ney, did more church work, made made-well, a trying ordeal, and greater efforts to attend all the I own that I thought more of social meetings, and in time I them than I did of the One to but I could not pray, and that one little thing was the 'fly in the ointment. " I always thought you a happy, growing Christian." "Well, I was, on the whole, but there was always an unrestful, uncomfortable feeling some- not any family to pray with, but where in my heart so long as I will pray in chapel to-morrow there was one thing which I was, night.' 'So will I,' said I, al-fort was soon increased by the from my intentions; but we both conviction that Jones, the journey- held to it, and have ever since. man who boarded with us, was and God has blessed us in doing it, shielding himself behind my exam- abundantly." ple. Jones was a member of our church, a 'silent partner,' as he after the first time?

used to call the non-talkers. The words had a disagreeable sound to for a long time. I could not forme even when my own 'quiet' get the audience in the one Audiways were rather a source of tor whom I was seeking; but God pride to me than otherwise. Jones acknowledged every effort and worked for me for three dollars a blessed me, and there is, therefore. day, a part of which he returned for the privilege of a home. I valued him as a friend, and he was the most trusted hand in the shop, but I thought it would be a greater cross to pray before him than before any other man living, for prayer as you have, George?"

he had a critical mind and a sharp tongue. ed,-

" I suppose you brought yourself to a place where you were My oldest son already takes his willing to pray ?" " Yes."

"How did you do it ?" "I prayed.

"For help-yes, I see." "Oh, I'd prayed for that, off and on, for a year. I had prayed for strength for the duty, but the Lord knew I was not willing to use it. I had prayed to be willing, but of course God did not make me willing. The only way for me to do a thing is to do it. Praying about it when I don't mean to act, is worse than no-

"What led you to make a start ?"

"Nothing in particular. I was thinking it over as usual one Sunday night. It had become an ever present subject in my mind. and if I drove it out, as I often my bringing up by becoming a threatened to do, I found I could not growatall. For the thousand th came to speak oftener in them, whom the prayer was supposed to of the elite of Vienna, where a disbe addressed, but God accepted the tinguished lady of that city freeffort.

"We had half an hour's work of repairing at the shop that night, ing smart and rather uncourteous and I started out at once. Jones joined me at the gate and said quickly, 'Mr. Humiston, I have inquired his fair interrogator, not willing to do. This discom. though nothing had been farther "I suppose it was easy enough

"No, it was not. It was hard vours.' One of the most distinguished now no condemnation in my heart. I don't withhold anything or give anything grudgingly. I am a Christian man, John and Iknow it." "Do you think everyman would get such a blessing from public

"If it is the thing he hangs on, I do. Few men, probably, would George paused, and I suggest- halt at so small a thing. It was a return was a judicious mixture of family trait with me, but I hope truth and flattery : "Not so many I have stopped the entailment. part in our home and chapel service, and I trust James will when his time comes."-Zion's Herald.

-THE TIRED FOOT.

The potter stood at his daily work. One patient toot on the ground ; The other, with never slackening speed, Turning his swift wheel round. Silent we stood beside him there, Watching the restless knee, Till my friend said low, in pitying voice, How tired his foot must be!

The potter never paused in his work, Shaping the wondrous thing ; 'Twas only a common flower-pot, But perfect in fashioning. Slowly he rased his patient eyes, With homely truth inspired : "No, marn; it isn't the foot that kicks; The one that stands gets tired !" The Continent.

A ROLAND FOR AN OLIVER.

This term is so generally understood that any comment upon | " what do you mean by that?" it is almost superfluous. It is "Well, that's good," responded however, no slang phrase, but one the witness; " you must be a pretof the oldest of proverbial expres

On one occasion, an English gentleman, who possessed a keen quently amused herself and immediate circle of friends by saythings, evidently for the purpose of annoyance. "By the way." "how is it your countrymen speak French so imperfectly ? We Austrians use it with the same freedom as if it were our native tongue." "Madame," retorted the Englishman in the blandest manner, "I really can not say, unless it be that the French army have not been twice in our capital to teach it, as they have been in incidents of Zimmermann's life was the summons which he received to attend Frederick the Great in his last illness in 1786. One day the king said to this eminent physician : "You have. I presume sir, helped many a man into another world ?" Any ordinary person would doubtless have out. Although many know him been scared by so momentous an to be a stranger, yet no one exinquiry, and it was, in fact, a somewhat bitter pill for the doctor; but the dose he gave the king in as your majesty, nor with so much honor to myself."

As all classes of individuals, from the highest to the lowest, are of the hand, information about the liable at times to meet with a Roland for an Oliver, we must not even exempt those shrewd men of the world termed lawyers. members of the church in A seafaring man was called upon his welfare, at once decides his the stand as a witness. "Well, sir," said the lawyer, "do you know the plaintiff and defendant?" After a moment's hesita because the young men were tion, Jack declared his inability to comprehend the meaning of these words. "What! not know the meaning of plaintiff and detendant?" continued the energeticinquirer. "An intelligent fellow you must be to come here as a witness! Can you tell me where on board the vessel it was that that man struck the other one !" "Certainly I can," replied the sailor; "abaft the binnacle." "And pray," asked the lawyer, and the wild cayenne papaver and she knew no more till she wit, was at a brilliant assembly plant. In his efforts to devise a found herself stretched on a hos. way to support the children, he pital bed. turned to the cayenne. It was a weed, but he in it his opportunity. God does not send even a weed in vain. He experimented, succeeded in extracting the juice and in introducing it to the market without middle men. His wife and children helped him; the little family manufactory became famous, and its owner rich, while his neighbors grew gray in vain searches for Lafitte's spoils.

The real treasure trove lies before every man on some chance, and in his skill in developing that chance.

BE SOCIAL.

A young man comes to your church; he is a perfect stranger to the majority of those he meets; his home is far away; his church he has left behind. He listens attentively to the service, and is pleased and profited by what he hears. The service over he goes tends a friendly hand or in any manner notices him. He is somewhat discouraged, a little homesickness sterls over him, but he resolves to go there once more. He gees, with the same result. Discouraged he seeks another sanctuary where the warm grasp evening meeting, invitation about the Sunday-school, and the interests takon by the course. The result is, a zealous worker is gained by one church and lost by the other, and simply social.

Young men and young women of our churches, never let a stranger go away without notice, never let that chilling feeling of loneliness come over any person in the house of God. It should be your pleasure to make every stranger at home. Try it, and your reward wil be speedy .--Zion's Watchman.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS.

A LITTLE BOY'S TROUBLE. I thought when I learned my letters the ground," said James. That all my troubles were done, But I find myself much mistaken-They only have just begun. Learning to read was awful, But not like learning to write; I'd be sorry to have to tell it, But my copy-book is a sight! cular object. The ink gets over my fingers; The pen cuts all sorts of shines, And won't do at all as I bid it ; The letters won't stay on the lines, But go up and down and all over, As though they were dancing a jig-They are there in all shapes and sizes, Meaium, little and big.

perously for him but children, trampled her under their feet-

When the doctors came that night they knew that she could not live until morning. In the middle of the night, after she had been lying very still for a. long time, apparently asleep, she suddenly opened her eyes, and the nurse, bending over her heard ber whisper, while her face lighted up with a smile that had some of heaveu's own gladness in it :

"O Jesus, I have found you at last !"

Then the tiny lips were hushed, but the questioning spirit had received an answer.-Old Colony Herald.

YOUR EYE ON THE MARK.

A light snow had fallen, and the boys of L---- desired to make the most of it; and as it was too dry for snowballing and not deep enough for coasting, they thought it would do very well to make tracks in. Near by there was a large meadow, and it was proposed that they should go to a tree which stood near the centre of the meadow, and that each one should start from the tree to the boundaries of the meadow. The proposition was assented to, and hey were soon at the tree. They ranged themselves around the tree with their backs toward it, and started, each one retracing his steps to the tree. After they had returned, they each looked back to see how straight the tracks were. "Whose is the straightest ?"

said James Allison to Thomas Sanders, who was first at the tree. "Harry Armstrong's is the only one that is straight at all," said Thomas.

"Why," said Jacob Small, "how could we all contrive to go so crooked when the meadow is so smooth, and nothing to turn us out of the way?"

"How happened you to go so straight, Henry ?" said Thomas. "I fixed my everyon that tall pine-tree on the hill yonder, and never looked away from it till I reached the fence," answered Henry.

"I went as straight as I could without looking at anything but sciously of to the Lord and the O lessons, 1 or his wo unliterary he ordere eal, reque give his l tone." N tunity of Christ's n that he is all our te tion upon built; that to every h makesli ars teach needs no Christ's s -the grea sible expe and in his only pert Prayer tak only as th we we can only as b but also as Teacher, a its use. found its e Him, depe being a di necessity verging to Life." tion had l dry style o Sunday m pit, a slip with the to 21-" Sir own consci tion of t thought an solved by more clea he took to " Then w they saw men of hot ed Chinese tell us of th And now

us expect to young lady cessful in Christ, was secret of he was, "It I !

it is that / teach with some future

come Chri

as I so taug

became gre ly, I asked

sults. Sir

expectation

nothing but

HOW TO

Several y

ture given horse traine

he claimed

could be con

of the prop

I learned fr

more than

many years

York. Ra

follows: F

ness is all lines are of

to drive wit

to keep the

for any eme as you find arm jerk the

of the neck,

ing to the le

to jump. A ly jerk the side of the sition to the riage. Rep

strength an

the horse n

der this treat

him to proce

quickly, so

tostraighten

several times

Rarey's plan

ARRANGI

The Art R

useful : vie

ments expres

which mean

indeed. Stud

the combinat

of drapery, tures. Allow

ed. but let ev

of sociability.

mediately afte

have left it an around 1

" away, with

result in p

Mag,

THE

Get, ff po

mit to me

and verse

latter wh

clench a way, and

ed somet

which w

he was vi

statesman

word for v

of Bishop

told him.

Encura

bring a ve

definitely

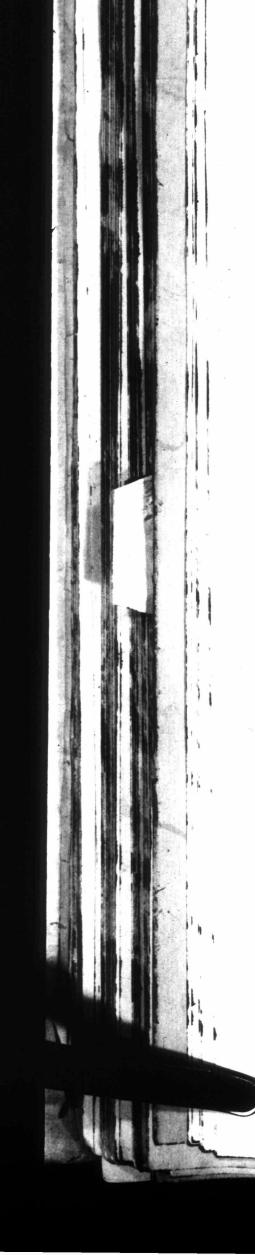

too, to g some littl

In all o

subject.

before,

indeed.

begun a quiet evening at home. but I received the welcome I counted on, and the usual round of talk commenced. I soon noticed a change in George. I do not know that he said anything that he might not have said every time I had seen him for the last three years; I don't know that he omitted anything-the change was indescribable; but he seemed to carry with him a presence, an atmosphere, a something which so impressed me with his character as a Christian man, that when we were left alone I ventured to speak io him about it.

"You have had some profound experience lately ?"

"Yes-thank you; I did not know you would notice it, but I feel it plainly enough."

I suppose I looked with inquiring interest, for he answered : "I don't know as I would mind telling you."

" I would like to hear."

" I mean, I think I would like to tell you. Perhaps you don't need the lesson, but you may know some one who does.

"When I was converted, there were things supposed to belong to a Christian life which I thought I could never do. I was willing to do all the negative duties, to refrain from all known sins; I was willing to give my money and my time, but I thought joining the church a sufficient confession. I could not talk and I could not pray it, and in deference to their judgment rather than to their wishes, I used to speak in social meetings occasionally, but it was little less than torture I knew we ought to have family prayer, but I thought I never could conduct it. About that time Uncle James came to live with us, and I proposed to have him officiate at the family altar. Both he and my wife opposed it, but when they found that I could not, or would not, do it, that arrangement was made, and when her uncle was gone Jenny prayed. I said 'would not,' but I was not conscious that when I spoke to my wife the blood liberally gave his louis-d'ors, he course, dug holes wherever four any will went against it; it seemed a perfect impossibility.

"We went on in this way two appetite for my supper. Praying The charming little damsel polite- have grown old and poor in seekyears, but I never felt comfortable. in the family is not the same ly courtesied, and immediately ing this visionary treasure. I always telt as if I was withhold- thing for me that it is for a man presented the plate again. ing something-not my best or who has only his wife and one or most useful gifts-but something. two small children in the house. amazement, "more ?"-"Yes siana planter, who, in the same her hand threw it into the street. my mind, and made it susceptible I was more exacting with myself Two well-grown boys and Ella, sire," said she, ' I now want somein other duties. I gave more mo- Jones and the domestic assistant, thing for the poor."

left the Quakers supposably cause the Spirit moved, or did not move, him to speak ; how my century. We are told that the nal. mother wanted to join the Metho-Emperor Charlemagne, in his exdists in her youth, but did not bepedition against the Saracens in cause she thought she never could 778, was accompanied by two go to class; how my grandfather pages, named Roland and Oliver would never join the church, and who were so excellent and Uncle John would not even profess religion, though everybody so equally matched, that the equality became proverbialbelieved him to be a Christian, all 'I'll give you a Roland for on account of that miserable selfconsciousness which I inheritedthe vulgar saying, "Tit for tat ;" when I turned round on myself that is: "I'll give you the same and said : 'I don't care what [generally in a retaliatory sense] my ancestors did : it is either my as you give me;" or the more duty to speak and pray, or it is classical one of Quid pro quo, to be not. It it is, I'll do it; if it is even with one. Its proper adapnot. I won't spend any more time tation, however, as understood discussing it. at the present day, will be much "You won't believe it took a better explained by a few humorwhole week to decide the point, ous illustrations. but it did. I argued that I had A very clever reply to a some-not been educated to it, which was what satirical remark was that true; neither had I been educatgiven to Louis XV., by Cardinal ed to giving away money. That Richelieu, who was a nobleman as I inherited a reluctance not only well as a priest. A celebrated for this, but for public speaking archbishop of Paris, Hardouin de generally, and for speaking at any Beaumont de Perefixe, was aptime of my most sacred feelings, pointed perceptor to his majesty. true too-but I inherited many One day he preached a notable propensities which I did not prosermon before the court of France pose to gratify; that it was too which touched principally upon late in life to begin-but that apthe duties of the notility. " Ah !' plied equally to my Christian life.

said the king to Richelieu, "the " At last I settled that I would preacher has thrown a vast quantake up this duty in the family if tity of stones into your garden to-I was not able to say anything day." "Yes, sire, answered the but 'Now I lay me down to cardinal; "and a few have fallen sleep,' and I would begin the very into the royal park." A courtly first time Uncle James went amount of etiquette of expression -aloud. My wite and pastor ar- away. Perhaps it was cowardly is observable in this answer, with gued with me a good deal about to put it upon that contingency, which we may presume that even but that is what I did, and withroyalty itself could in nowise be in three days he started unexpectoffended.

edly for Boston. When we were Equally as good is the followgetting ready for tea the night ing, in which we shall carefully after he went away, I said to Jenny: 'Would you like to have me different effects on different minds. conduct our devotions to-night ?' the Emperor Alexander of Ruswithout much show of interest. I Paris, was present at the anniverdon't suppose she thought I would sary of one of the hospitals Virginia. do it. Then I told her I thought Plates for contributions were passit was cowardly for me to put it ed round, and they were borne by on her, and if she wanted I should some of the patrons' wives and pray, I would do it if it killed daughters. The plate presented

Niagara, and 1 didn't have much | for your beautiful bright eyes."

y fellow to come here as a lawyer sions, dating apparently as far and don't know what abaft the back as the latter end of the eighth binnacle means."-Chambers' Jour-

TREASURE TROVE.

Even about the common place dollar of the United States there is already a shadow of romance. A dollar appeared last winter in your Oliver," being the same as Philadelphia, which created quite an excitement. It bore the date of 1804, and was held at two thousand dollars.

> Dollars of that date are so rare that each one has a pedigree or series of affidavits to prove it genuine. The reason for the scarcity of this coin is said to be that almost the whole silver coinage of that year was sent into Africa to defray the expenses of the United States expedition against Tripoli. Another statement is that it was sent to China to pay for a cargo of tea.

Whatever the reason may be, it is certain that if any boy should find one of these coins, he would have sufficient capital to pay for his education.

Other American coins are still more rare. Of the five-dollar gold piece struck in 1815, there is said to be but a single one in existence; this is owned by the king of Sweden. The Southern Confederacy had struck just four half dollars when the mint in New Orleans was seized. These coins are held at fabulous prices. A glamour of mystery of romance also hangs about certain husky voice, hopelessly : hoards of buried dollars along the coast. Kidd, the pirate, is supnote by the way that praise has posed to have buried large stores of coin, church-silver, etc., which have never been discovered, al-

Lafitte, another pirate, is believed to have buried his treasures in me. She just cried aloud for joy. to the emperor was held by an The negroes from the neighboring asked the woman : "You will think me a fool, but extremely pretty girl As he towns of New Iberia have, of thundered in my ears like a young | whispered : "Madmoiselle, this is | trees grew near together, and there | face her questioner, and in a tone

> An odd contrast to their course "What !' said the emperor in is offered in the story of a Louisterile acres. Nothing grew pros. The horses of a passing street-car and beautiful.-Henry Martin.

FOUND AT LAST.

A little girl stood by her mother's death-bed, and heard her last words: "Jessie, find Jesus,"

When her mother was baried her father took to drink, and Jessie was left to such care as a poor neighbor could give her.

One day she wandered off with a little basket in her hand, and trudged through one street after another, not knowing where she went. She had started out to find Jesus. At last she stopped, from utter weariness, in front of a saloon. A young man staggered out of the door and almost stumbled over her. He uttered the name of Him she was seeking. "Can you tell me where He is?"

she inquired. "What did you say ?" he asked.

"Will you please tell me where Jesus Christ is? for 1 must find him.'

The young man looked at her curiously for a minute without then he always felt happier in speaking; and then his face spending the rest; and I with to sobered, and he said in a broken,

"I don't know, child-I don't know where He is."

At length the little girl's wanderings brough her to a park. A woman, evidently a Jewess, was 'Yes, of course,' she answered, sia, during the occupation of though search has been made for leaning against the railing, lookthe stolen treasures from Maine to ing disconsolately at the green grass and the trees.

Jessie went up to her timidly. "Perhaps she can tell me where to go with them to Hrs. Perkins' Petite Ance Island in the centre He is," was the child's thought. dying child," who never sees a of a square formed by four trees. In a low, hesitating voice she

> " Do you know Jesus Christ ?" The Jewess turned fiercely to "Jesus Christ is dead !" Poor Jessie trudged on, but known to me before. I have soon a rude boy jostled against received what I suppose is a taste

"So did I," said another. "So did I," replied several voices at once. It appeared that no one but Henry had aimed at , any parti-They attempted to go straight.

without any definite aim, but they failed. Men cannot succeed in anything good without a definite aim. General purposes, general resolutions will not avail. You must do as Henry did-fix upon something distinct and definite as an object, and go steadily toward it .- Young Pilgrim.

THE FIRST STRAWBER. RIES.

A little girl once had a bed of strawberrles. Very anxious she was that they should ripen and be fit to eat. The time came. "Now for a feast !" said her brother to her one morning, as he picked up some beautiful ones for her to eat.

"I cannot eat these," said she, for they are the first ripe fruit." "Well," said her brother, "all the more reason for our making a feast, for they are the greater treat.'

"Yes; but they are the first ripe fruit."

"Well, what of that?" "Dear father told us that he used to give God the first out of all the money he made, and that give God the first of my strawberries, too."

"Ah! but," said her brother, "how can you give strawberries to God? And even if you could, he would not care for them." 'O, I have four d out a way," said, she. "Jesus said, 'Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me;' and I mean strawberry, they are so poor."- are many educated white men who of suppressed passion exclaimed : saving manner, painting, poetry;

and music have had charms unneighborhood cultivated a few Crying, she ran to pick it up. of impressions from the sublime

The Pansy.

