JANUARY COTTON and LINEN SALE

Concerning Cottons, and, Incidentally, Our Sale Prices

You've heard a good deal during the last three years or more of advancing prices on cottons. You've noticed that the favorite weaves that you used to buy at 15c, 20c, 25c and so on, are now about fifty per cent. higher. Of course you're properly pa triotic, and you accept these advanced prices as one of the misfortunes of war, and, if you're of the thinking kind, you realize that we in Canada are touched very highly by the world conflict. But now we are confronted by another phase of the situation in the cotton market, and we think it only fair to make the facts

Recent communications from long-established cotton manufacturers assure us that the greater scarcity of their pro-ducts is as sure as fate. We quote one instance in which a arge order placed with the representative of a large cotton firm could not be filled even in part, though the agent had taken the order in good faith, The letter stating that the merchandise would not be forth-coming stated further that all cotton prices changed from day

All of which points strongly to the advisability of your sharing in the exceptional values that are now offered daily in our cotton goods section.

Our advice to you is—Buy to the limit of all the cotton materials that you are likely to need for some time to come There's no legislation against "hoarding" such things, you know, and every yard of cotton fabric that you buy at our January Sale prices will prove to be an admirable investment. Captured jewels sold at high price n London the other day. About fifteen hundred carats of unset brilliants from the cargoes of six captured German steamers were put up at auction, and resulted in some spirited hidding among the vari-ous diamond merchants attending the sale. The average price realised was forty collars a carat, about double the German invoiced price. One Blue-white brilliant, weighing 2.98 carats, brought the unusual price of five hundred dollars a carat, while a feedback carata. while a necklace of forty-nine stones sold for fifteen hundred dollars.

Women operators are to be utilized in the telephone exchanges back of the American lines in France, the War Department announced the other day in prescribing the privileges and allowances that will be given the one hundred and fity guid who are to be sent abroad. A plete system of telephone commu-cation has been provided the Ame-can expeditionary force. The pr-ileges and allowances to the te-phone operators are similar to the extended to army nurses.
