Queens are invariably exempt from the mystery that veils the age of women, and they can never abate a day from the cold calculation of the calendar. Wil-helmina, Queen of the Low Countries, helmina, Queen of the Low Countries, was twenty-seven the other day, and has reigned for nearly seventeen years, the first eight of which was under the guidance of her mother, a Princess of Waldeck Pyrmont, and sister of the Duchess deck Pyrmont, and sister of the Duchess of Albany. CAT-LIKE MAN

How He Does Love to Play With a Joke.

Joke.

The problem whether women have any sense of humor has vexed mankind for gengrations, says a well-known raconteur. It is upfortunately true that they seldom laugh readily at our jokes, and are, inclined to tell us not to 'be silly' when we play airly with a subject.

But this may be due to a too 'keen sense of humor. We may not be up to their form. Our jokes (forsooth!) may not be good enough for them (Ha! ha! Not good enough! But no motter!) We revenge ourselves for this by telling women that they do not know a good thing when they see one, and that, though, when pain and auguish rack the brow they may be ministering angels, they are not the audience we should choose for our finest flights of whimsicality.

A writer in a monthly magazine, himself a humorist, extra sec, of wide reputation, thinks that he sees signs of an improvement in this state of affairs. "Women's sense of humor." he says, "has imprended in event years. They see jokes more readily than they look their best when they are smilling." There is hope in these words. There is no reason whatever why humorists should not be welcome in every drawing-room. Men capable of telling a good story, or working up to a pleasant epigram, will be the centre of attraction. The military, the muscialna and the Gibson-men will be among the also rans.

native Indian tribes," said Charles C.
Lesseuer, of New Orleans.
"These aborigines are mostly of warlike mould and as brave fighters as any of the human race. I was especially impressed with the Inhabitants of the Copan and Gracias districts. They are the best fighting stock in all Latin America.
Three or four hundred of them will often
defeat an army of thrice their size.
They are ever eager for battle, and reck nothing of heavy adverse odds. They are nothing of heavy adverse odds. They are supposed to be Christians, but from what saw and learned from other's I came to the belief that they practise heathen rites and ceremonies. They are excel-lent friends, but terrible enemies, and if defeated in battle are apt to visit their wrath on their unfortunate officers. "These Indians cling to their primitive customs and do most of their hunting with bows and arrows. The way they use the bow is rather unique. They sight their game, calculate the distance, and then shoot their arrows into the air, whereupon the weapon falls upon the mark, whether bird of beast, seven times out of ten, with fatal effect. The country they inhabit is quite cold, and often in the morning I have seen a thin coat of ice over the jar of water placed on my table. Again, when shivering under two or three blankets, I have looked with envy at my meszo (servant) who, stripped to the skin, and wrapped only in a thin cotton sheet, slept as comfortably as though in a steam heated apartment.—Baltimore American.

WINDING A WATCH.

sons Why It'is Better Done in the Morning Rather Than at Night.

"You wouldn't think," said a watchmaker, "that it would make any difference whether a watch is wound up in the morning or at night, but it does make considerable difference.
"When a watch is wound up at night,
coming out of a warm pocket, and laid down or hung up in a cool place, the mainspring will contract by the cooling off of the metals. Being wound up tightly all chance of contracting has been shut eff and the epring is bound to

If, however, the watch is wound up in the morning, having partly run down through the night, there is room enough left in the barrel to contract. Another reason why it should be wound up in the morning is that the spring will then have more power and thus will be in a better condition to resist the disturbing movements of the bearer during the daytime. "Being generally in a horizontal position during the night and running with less power, the horizontal position, in which the balance runs more freely, will operate to make the length of the swing of the balance wheel during the night as nearly as possible the same as in the daytime."
