MISCELLANEOUS.

AN UNDENIABLE APPARITION.

At a town in the west of England was held a club of twenty-four people, which assembled once a week to drink punch, smoke tobacco, and talk politics. Like Ruben's academy at Antwerp, each member had his peculiar chair, and the President's was more exalted than the rest.—One of the members had been in a dying state for some time: of course his chair, while he was absent, remained vacent.

The club being met on their usual night, enquiries were naturally made after their associates. As he lived in the adjoining house, a particular friend went himself to enquire for him, and returned with the dismal tidings, that he could not possible survive the night. This threw a gloom on conversation from the sad subject before them were ineffectual.

About midnight, the time, by long prescription, appropriated for the walking of spectres, the door opened, and the form, in white, of the dying, or rather of the dead man, walked into the room, and took his seat on the accustomed chair; where he remained in silence, gazed at by the others. The apparition continued a sufficient time in the chair, to assure all present of the reality of the vision: at length he rose and stalked towards the door, which he opened as if living, went out and then shut the door after him.

After a long pause, some one at last had the resolution to say:

If only one of us had seen this he would not have been believed, but it is impossible that so many persons can be deceived.

The company by degrees recovered their speech, and the whole conversation, as may be imagined, was upon the dreadful object which had engaged their attention. They broke up and went home.

In the morning enquiry was made after their sick friend; it was answered by an account of his death, which happened nearly at the time of his appearing in the club. There could be little doubt before, but now nothing could be more certain than the reality of the apparition, which had been seen by so many persons together.

It is needless to say that such a story spread over the country, and found credit even from the infidels; for, in this case, all reason was superfluous when opposed to a plain fact asserted by three-and-twenty witnesses. To assert the doctrine of the fixed laws of nature was rediculous, when there are so many people of credit to prove that they might be unfixed.

Years rolled on; the story ceased to engage attention, and it was forgotten, unless when occasionally produced to silence an unbeliever.

One of the club was an apothecary. In the course of his practice he was called to an old woman whose profession was attending sick persons. She told him that she could leave the world with a quiet conscience but for one thing which lay on her mind.

"Do you remember Mr.———, whose ghost has been so much talked about? I was his nurse. The night he died I left the room for something I wanted; I am sure I had not been absent long, but at my return I found the bed without my patient. He was delirious, and I feared he had thrown himself out of the window. I was so frightened that I had no power to stir; but after some time, to my great astonishment, he entered the room, shivering and his teeth chattering, lay down on his bed and died. Considering myself as the cause of his death, I kept this a secret, for fear of what might be done to me—Though I could contradict all the story of the ghost, I dared not do it. I knew by what had happened, that it was he himself who had been in the club room (perhaps recollecting that it was the night of meeting;) but I hope God and the poor gentleman's friends will forgive me, and I shall die contented!"

PICKING THE EAR.—A horrible death recently occurred in Paris from a common practice with many persons. A gentleman, feeling a slight itching in his ear, took up a friction match in order to dispell it. In the ardour of a conversation he was sustaining he introduced the sulphrous end; the contact soon produced ignition, and the downy lining of the ear caught fire; a portion of the sulphur adhered to the flesh, and burnt there persistently. The unfortunate man never spoke again. His sufferings were so agonizing that his tongue became powerless; and, after two days' torment and unavailing efforts of the surgeons, he died.

When your wife begins to scold, let her have it out. Put your feet cosily over the fender—loll back in your chair—and let the storm rage on. Say nothing.

Dr. Franklin said—"Where I see a house well-furnished with books and newspapers, there I see intelligent and well-informed children; but if there are no books or papers, the children are ignorant, if not profligate.

Why is a four-quart jug like a lady's side-saddle? Because it holds a gall-on? Why is a woman living up two pair of stairs like a godess? Because she is a second Flora. Why is a man half asleep like twice six? Because he's a "doze-in."

A gambler was brought up, and the court asked:—"Did you not aid and abet this affair?" "I would aid in a bet any time with a chance of winning, whether it was fair or not."

Madam, said a cross tempered physician to a patient, if women were admitted to Paradise, their tongues would make it a purgatory,' 'and some physicians, if allowed to practise there,' replied the lady, 'would soon make it a desert.'

His present assortment consists of PIANOS AND MELODEONS.

VETERINARY PRACTICE,

Under the Patronage of His Excellency Sir ALEXANDER BANNERMAN, Knight.

GEORGE LORD, begs leave respectfully to intimate to his friends and the public in general, that he has resumed his practice in the VETERINARY LINE, under the patronage of His Excellency Sir ALEXANDER BANNERMAN, Knight.

After a successful practice of 27 years—14 in England and 13 in America—in the course of which he has been directly instrumental, through his skill, in saving, for their owners, the lives of many valuable HORSES and COWS; he hopes that, in now soliciting a renewal of PUBLIC PATRONAGE, he may be permitted to say that he considers himself to be as well qualified to prescribe MEDICINES and perform OPERATIONS, in the capacity of a HORSE and COW DOCTOR, as any individual who has ever practised in that line in this Colony; and he, therefore, presumes that he may confidently look forward to a renewal of that patronage which he formerly enjoyed in this Island.

RESIDENCE—Next door to the Victoria Hotel, Water Street, Charlottetown.

There being no well-understood place in St. John where those having Horses, and those wanting Horses, know where to find each other, M. A. C. flatters himself that a HORSE BAZAAR, or Sale Stable, properly conducted, may in some measure supply a want often felt by the public; while from the knowledge of horses derived from his profession, he may be able at times to give useful advice both to seller and purchaser.
