Young's New Axle Cutter.

Patented in the United States and Dominion of Canada. We would call the attention of alll owners of carriages or waggons to this Machine and the benefits derived from its use. All waggon axles after being two or more years in use become worn till they become loose, requiring the use of leather washers to take up the lateral play; the washers soon filling with sand, cause the axles to wear much faster, until the axle is soon ruined, or nearly so.

THE REMEDY.

By the aid of this very simple machine, the shoulder for the axle nut is cut back and the thread extended, allowing the nut to be screwed farther on, causing the wheel to run as evenly as when new. Give us a call before purchasing elsewhere. A Paint shop is in connection with the Factory.
Orders respectfully solicited and atisfaction guaranteed.

DREAMS THAT CAME TRUE.

A belief in the truth of dream warning has lingered even in our own day. It was yet more prevalent in past centuries. Macaulay has ridiculed Archbishop Laud for the care with which he recorded his dreams in his diary; but the prelate was no more superstitious in this respect than were many of his contemporaries. The mediæval historians generally note some dream prophecy before any great event took place. A pious monk dreamt of the fatal accident that should befall the Red King. Henry IV., of France, was oppressed by evil dreams the night preceding his assassination. It is an undisputed fact that, in the present century, a murder was discovered from the circumstance of one of the parents of the victim dreaming where the body was concealed.

Bishop Hall relates a curious story of a cure effected by means of a dream; a cripple dreamt that he bathed in a certain well in Cornwall and was restored to health. Acting on this visionary prescription he recovered the use of his limbs. The bishop attributes this dream to "a good angel." Probably, as Lord Byron says of prophecies, people note the fulfillments of dreams and forget the failures—pass over the ninety nine baseless visions, but record the hundredth that happens to be verified.

Authors, artists and musicians have carried on their work in their dreams, sometimes with more success than in their waking hours. Tartini, an Italian composer, dreamt that he heard a fiend play an elaborate solo on the violin. He attempted to reproduce it when awake; but, though the "Devil's Sonata" is ranked among his finest productions, the composer declared that it was so inferior to the music of his dream that he could have broken his instrument with vexation at his failure to reproduce that beautiful melody. Condorcet and Franklin worked out elaborate calculations in their sleep, and remembered them on waking. Lord Thurlow is said to have composed part of a Latin poem in a dream; and Sir J. Herschell has left a verse which occurred to him in similar circumstances. Goethe records that his dreams often assisted him in his composition.

The Editor of the STAR knows an old man in Newfoundland named "Dick English," Forty years ago English lived in a wild and wooded place, and spirits he says visited him in his lonely cabin. One night there arose upon the breeze sounds of the most delicious music, and going to his half door, he heard it ring through the woods round about his cabin. He was in great fear but the next morning he took his flute and began to play the tune which haunted his memory through the night. Often has the writer heard him play that tune, and he calls it "the Spirit's Reel."

UNKNOWN ALASKA.

When the late Mr Seward purchased Alaska from the Czar he was not aware of the fact that he was getting with his countless furseals, fisheries, mines and icebergs one of the greatest rivers in the world, and now almost demonstrated to be of greater volume than the Mississippi. Such is the Yukon. The vast region it waters remains almost as much a terra incognita as the Congo. In fact, while the latter has been once explored—by Stanley—from the point where Livingstone turned back down to the Atlantic ocean, and by Livingstone from its extreme sources to where Stanley's exploration began, no traveler has ever yet seen the upper water of Yukon, or has been able to enlighten the world as to its length or its source, or the region it drains. Here, then, is an opening for enterprise and ambition, more fruitful of promise than anything as yet unrevealed in Africa or the Arctic sea, and probably less dangerous. That the country contains mines of gold and silver, we may readily conjecture from the fact that such mines exist on all sides of it. The river is navigable for hundreds of miles. It is free of ice from June to September. Its banks are flanked below with Indian villages. Its waters are filled with fish for the support of human life and its woods with game. The mountains in which it rises are unknown to white men, but, as they are generally believed to be stored with that sort of treasure which led to the rapid settlement of California and to the expansion of commerce on the south and Central Pacific, there is the strongest sort of temptation on the part of thousands to see them, test them and dig them up, if the treasure can be found. The government has many vessels lying idle and uselessly rotting for the want of action. Why not fit one of them up for a two or three year's cruise on this great unexplored river of the north? The discovery of gold mines there would lead instantly to a large migration from all parts of the world, and in a few years contribute millions to the commerce of the South Pacific States and Territories.

A CANADIAN GOOSE STORY.

A Stone Ridge farmer lost a goose. Two weeks afterward he happened to visit a neighboring saw mill. While there he heard a goose and started in pursuit. After a long search guided by the noise he came to a hole in the ground, and looking down he saw the head and part of the neck of his bird. It appeared the goose had fallen into the hole, which, being too small to allow of a spread of its wings, the poor bird could not fly out. While kept a prisoner thus the snow had melted and run into the hole. As fast as it reached the bottom of the hole away from the sun it had frozen, and, running, it had continued to freeze until the entire bird, with the exception of its head about two inches of its neck, was encased in an armor of ice. The owner procured an axe, and cut out a chunk of ice, goose and all, which he deposited on the ground and picked away until the goose was released from its confinement, and marched home in search of its first meal in two weeks.

TERRORS OF THE SIMOOM.

The "simoom," or poison wind, of Arabia is a serious affair to the travellers caught in it. The center of the column of wind is composed of a poisonous gas, to breathe which is death. Round this center there eddy violent gusts of of heated and impregnated air, like that of a furnace, It approaches slowly, amid the whirl of air currents that precedes it for some distance. During its presence the only chance of preserving life is found in covering the face with cloth, and lying prone on the sand, inhaling what little pure air may be found next the earth. Meanwhile, the feeling of the chest is that of suffocation, and that in the limbs as if molten iron was being poured over them. Camels instinctively bury their nozzles in the sand; but horses do not possess the same preservatory instincts, and often perish in consequence.
