The Evening Chit-Chat

By RUTH CAMERON

An' I'll have tomatoes and cucumbers and lettuce in the bed behind the barn and some beans in the one, and Bennie Martin is going to help me weed on shares, an' I just know I can sell everything down to the provision store 'cause the storeman bought Billy Loomis' father's vegetables last summer and said he wished he had more—an'—an' —I'm going to save the dollar grandma gave me Christmas for seeds and all the money I get doing errands, and mama, please, please can't I have this spring rag money.

With this final breathless query Philip, who had been teetering frantically back and forth from one foot to another in front of his mother, flung himself into a chair beside her and gazed up at her with an eagerness that it seemed to me must draw consent from a heart of stone.

Evidently there is some substance harder than stone for this was what Phillip got for an answer:

"No, you can't, Phillip, not for any such nonsense. I know just what it would mean. You'd have a whole lot of dirty boys around here tracking in dirt and losing all our garden tools and then you'd get tired of it and you'd forget all about weeding and it wouldn't come to anything at all. You help your father with the flower beds and I guess that's all the gardening you'll want. And now you go right out and wipe your feet. You've tracked in a lot of snow."

Were you ever all at once conscious of a cloud passing over the sun on a beautiful bright day by the sudden wiping out of the sunlight in the room or the landscape?

Well, that's just the way the beautiful light of enthusiasm that had been shining in Phillip's eager little face went out—just as if it had been suddenly blotted out.

I should think that Phillip's mother would have wanted to cry when she saw it.

But she didn't show the slightest sign of any such desire. Instead she turned to me and remarked impatiently:

"I never saw such a boy for crazy schemes. Half a dozen times a day I have to nip some such foolishness in the bud."

Think of it. Half a dozen times in a day that wonderful, eager enthusiasm that made Phillip's snub nosed freckled little face almost beautiful, was roughly blotted out.

And yet there's nothing on earth Phillip's mother cares so much for as her children.

Queer way to show it, isn't it?

And yet a pretty common way?

On the whole I guess there's more wet blanket mothers than the other kind.

It's so painfully easy when you've left the land of wonderful possibilities and crossed the bourne into the commonplace city of grown-up-ness, to forget how you felt when you lived in that other land.

It is so very much easier to discourage impracticable plans that may mean much bother to you than to encourage and direct them.

But is the easier way usually sure to be the best?

Does the road to success in motherhood or in life usually follow the line of least resistance?

Oh, yes, I know just what you poor overworked mothers are saying, that it's easy enough to talk but that anyone who has as much to do as you have and knows as much about children's crazy schemes and how much work they make and how they pester would feel just as you do.

I don't doubt it. I don't blame you for feeling that way. But isn't it a feeling worth overcoming?

The most blessed birthright of youth is the same, sweet, impractical enthusiasm, this same blissful incapability of seeing obstacles, this same golden belief in its own capabilities.

You know how soon the boy will tire of his new delight. It is one of the sad grey lessons that you learned in the city of grown-up-ness.

But wouldn't you, if you could, unlearn that lesson, have again the impractical and sweet enthusiasms, practical and sweet enthusiasms of youth?

"Know again the goal is glorious
Be again but frank and twenty?"

And will you by being a wet blanket, force that lesson on your children one moment before they have to learn it?

Silence!

The instinct of modesty natural to every woman is often a great hindrance to the cure of womanly diseases. Women shrink from the personal questions of the local physician which seem indelicate. The thought of examination is abhorrent to them, and so they endure in silence a condition of disease which surely progresses from bad to worse.

It has been Dr. Pierce's privilege to cure a great many women who have found a refuge for modesty in his offer of FREE consultation by letter. All correspondence is held as sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription restores and regulates the womanly functions, abolishes pain and builds up and puts the finishing touch of health on every weak woman who gives it a fair trial.

It Makes Weak Women Strong, Sick Women Well.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic medicine of KNOWN COMPOSITION.

Household Notes.

The sediment from javelle water is excellent for scouring.

Any piece of woollen wrung out in gasoline makes a good duster.

French chalk will remove practically all grease spots from dress material.

Never use soap on window panes. Use either alcohol or ammonia to make them shine.

Coal soot is easily removed from tin articles or porcelain if they are first coated with kerosene.

Cream cheese, mixed with canned currants or jellied cranberries, makes a good sandwich filling.

The flavor of a cup of cocoa is often made more delicate if the least bit of vanilla is placed in it.

To keep insects away, wipe the floors of closets after they are scrubbed with gasoline or benzine.

To remove inkstains from the hands rub the juice of ripe tomatoes over them and rinse in water water.

An eggshell or two or, better still an oyster shell, should be kept in every teakettle. Then no rust will appear.

Instead of sewing hangers to towels make small buttonholes. They will last as long as the towel and can't wear off.

If you cannot get into the deep recesses of a refrigerator with a scrub brush, try using a small, stiff paint brush.

If your corn does not pop well it may be that it is too old. Soak in cold water for 15 minutes, drain and try again.

A good cleaner for hardwood is to wash it with a clean flannel wet in turpentine, and rub lightly afterward with linseed oil.

To remove rust from kettles fill them with hay, packed tightly, fill in with boiling water and let boil for several hours.

If six to ten drops of spirits of camphor are taken on a lump of sugar when starts a bad cold may be averted.

The darkest stain on a mirror or window pane can generally be routed by rubbing with a flannel wet in spirits of camphor.

Figs and dates chopped with diced apples make a delicious combination for a salad with mayonnaise. Serve on lettuce leaves.

When serving poached eggs instead of the usual slice of toast place the eggs on rounds of bread cut thin and sauted in butter.

The juice of stewed cranberries with the addition of lemon and sugar to taste, makes a delicious drink, diluted with cold water.

Paint the inside woodwork of bedsteads with corrosive sublimate and turpentine: five cents worth of the former to a pint of the latter.

Bric-a-brac should be carefully dusted before being washed in hot borax water or soapsuds in which a little ammonia has been dissolved.

Cover plaster of paris figures with a thick coating of starch and water; let it dry on the surface, and the dirt will brush off with the powder.

Most modern brassware is lacquered and needs only to be wiped off with a damp cloth. Work quickly and do not let the surface get wet.

Never darn knitted underwear with wool, as it will shrink and make a hole larger than the original one. Use loosely twisted knitting silk.

To prevent hard-boiled eggs from turning dark, place them in cold water for a few minutes as soon as they are are taken from the boiling water.

When finger-nails show a tendency to brittleness, soak them in warm olive oil and let it stay on overnight. Petroleum ointment is nearly as good.

Unlacquered brass can be washed in warm soapsuds, then rubbed with salt and vinegar, put on with a piece of flannel. Polish with dry whiting.

Don't rinse laces in blued water under a mistaken notion that it will improve the color. Rinse in skimmed milk, which will give a soft, creamy color.

If the cake flavoring has been forgotten when making the batter, try sprinkling the required amount over the cake as it stands in the pan before baking.

For hurts of scalds, nothing is more soothing than the white of egg which may be poured over the wound. It is softer as a varnish for a burn than collodion.

Cold-boiled potatoes, diced and added to an equal quantity of canned salmon and a few chopped olives make a foundation for a tasty salad. Serve with mayonnaise.

A debtor examined in the London Bankruptcy Court ascribed his insolvency to the hobble skirt. He was a petticoat manufacturer, but said that when women hobbled themselves they abandoned petticoats, and consequently his trade vanished.

Why Cough Ask your doctor about coughs. Ask him if your own is necessary. If not, then why cough? Does he recommend Ayer's Cherry Pectoral? Ask him, and let his answer be final. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.
