Refutation of McGrath's Calumnies.

Yesterday, McGrath afforded the public a means of convincing themselves of his utter unscrupulousness in the fabrication of false charges. The proof is simple but conclusive. We pass by the insult. Here it is. Yesterday the Herald had this: "The Telegram's smeltion gleefully proclaimed that he was going to Brigus, next week with Coaker, apparently unconscious that in the past 'going to Brigus' was a polite term for a real big 'drunk'." The idea insinuated here is that we proclaimed with glee that we were "going to Brigus," and that we ignorantly used a phrase that as a cant expression meant going for a real big "drunk." Now what are the facts? Our readers can see for themselves and convince themselves of McGrath's absolute unscrupulousness. Here are the only words we used in this connection:

"We direct the attention of our readers to the letter of Mr. Coaker . . . in which he makes it known that the fishermen of Port de Grave have invited us over there with him to address them at a public meeting."

These are all the words we used in connection with the matter. We stated simply that we had received an invitation from the fishermen of Port de Grave. We did not even say we had accepted. We did not say whether we were going to Port de Grave or not. Moreover we were invited to the town of Port de Grave and not to the town of Brigus. The whole statement that the Telegram editor gleefully proclaimed he was "going to Brigus" next week with Coaker, apparently unconscious that in the past "going to Brigus" was a polite term, for a real big "drunk" is a clear case of fabrication from beginning to end.

The whole insinuation and insult is based on our supposed use of the phrase "going to Brigus." Our readers can see for themselves that we did not use the phrase at all. We did not say we were going to Brigus. We did not even say we were going to Port de Grave. We mentioned merely the invitation. This is a simple and convincing instance of McGrath's fabrication. He is heartless, cruel and flimsy in his insults, and absolutely satanic in concocting a charge to injure an opponent. We have shown him up now as a base fabricator of a false charge and a brazen perverter of truth.

Now, we will turn to what McGrath calls "That Strange Rumor two years ago about the Evening Telegram." In reply to our denial that either the proprietor or editor of the Evening Telegram had approached the Morris party two years ago with a view of supporting it for certain consideration, McGrath says:

"It is but natural that Editor Lloyd should deny this rumor. No one would expect him to admit it now, when he is working overtime to try and have the people believe that he never wavered in his loyalty to his leader the past four years. 'We submit, however, that his mere denial will not satisfy the public, who will want something more than a bare assertion that the rumor is not true. They will want, for instance, some information as to why, during all that time, the Telegram was silent on public issues, printed nothing political, and was supposed by many to have 'gone out of politics.'"

So says McGrath, and as usual overreaches himself. Would it not be unnatural if Editor Lloyd did not deny such a falsehood? But McGrath wants more than a bare denial. He wants proof of a negative against all codes of argumentation. In pressing home his point, he shows the weakness of his hand. He wants to know "why during all that time the Telegram was silent on public issues." The only period of time mentioned by McGrath is the past four years. The Telegram has not been silent the past four years. Within that period we have dealt with every public issue that has come up. We backed Bond during the 1909 elections. We dealt with the American fishery question and the Hague issues. We commented on the Reciprocity issue and the visit of Mr. Pepper, the Washington Commissioner. We opposed the movement to permit the exportation of pulpwood from the Labrador. We supported Sir Robert Bond during the session of 1910. We opposed the Railway Extension Bill and the Loan Bill. We criticized severely the extravagance and pick-nicking propensity of the Government. We criticized the Canadian Naval plans in which Morris and Watson had apparently not protected Newfoundland in a series of articles entitled, "Under the Maple Leaf." We criticized strongly the slackness which the Government showed as to the Bait Act, in regard to the Corkum business and the Trefethen and Lord scheme. We have been constant in criticizing the waste of money in the appointment of Agricultural Commissioners, &c. We have exposed the granting of large areas of timber land to party supporters and relatives and associates of members. We opposed the amendment of the Crown Land Act, and asked for a Royal Commission to investigate the extraordinary way in which timber land of the Government has been dealt with. We opposed the Sanatoria expenditure. We took a large share in the exposures made in the Morison Memorials. In fact we have been all the time on the watch and dealt with the principal issues as they arose.

If however, McGrath's "all that time" is in reality meant to apply for the part of the past four years, preceding the time of the alleged rumour, which he gives as two years ago, our answer is contained in the last paragraph, for the first part of it deals with issues during that period. If Mr. McGrath contends that we were not constantly and persistently heckling the Government, our reply is that we dealt with all the main issues as they rose, and that our plan of campaign was decided on after consultation with Sir Robert Bond, and that part of the plan was to give the Morris Government rope in the expectation they would hang themselves; and everybody knows that the policy was sound and that the Government has killed itself with the constituencies. McGrath has overreached himself on this reference to the Telegram's criticism, for the course pursued was kept up in close consultation with Sir Robert Bond.

The rest of the McGrath case is even more unsound. He charges Mr. Herder with offering to sell out the Evening Telegram with part consideration, a seat in the Legislative Council. The proof offered is peculiar. It is that Mr. Herder could "fairly claim" it for turning over the Evening Telegram. A delicious bit-bit of political morality. But what a proof! Now for the other side. Mr. Herder denies it categorically. McGrath, however, says this term was originally agreed on. McGrath's logic involves the Government in offering to give Mr. Herder a Methodist seat in the Legislative Council when the Government had not one at its disposal. At that time the Government had not a Methodist seat at their disposal. Does McGrath take Mr. Herder and the public for fools?

Another term which McGrath alleges was agreed on was to give Mr. Arthur Herder the Clerkship of the Assembly. But Mr. McGrath held the clerkship at that time, and held it long after until the Hon. D. J. Green's death made the vacancy which he obtained in the Legislative Council. This part of the case is also unsound. For McGrath unwittingly involves the Government party in having made an agreement to turn him (McGrath) out of the Clerkship and put Mr. Arthur Herder in his place. Does not McGrath see how ridiculous he is making himself?

McGrath next states that Mr. Herder insisted on having the lion's share of the public printing as another part of the consideration. Further, he says this was agreed on. The proof he offers is that Mr. Herder always insisted on getting it from the Bond Government, and further that on one occasion he compelled Mr. Jackson to take out of the Herald Office printing he claimed should go to his office. What a proof! McGrath asserts it was agreed to give the lion's share of the Morris Government printing to the Evening Telegram. If the agreement made was to give the lion's share to Mr. Herder, the only things left would be the Jackal's share. Then, McGrath's argument involves this conclusion that the Morris party was willing to provide for the Evening Telegram as a lion and for the Chronicle and Daily News as jackals. McGrath should remember the old saying, "What a tangled web we weave, when once we practice to deceive"; for undoubtedly he is badly tangled up. Thanks for the tribute to the prowess of the Evening Telegram. We know it was unconscious, but it is there all the same, and the position is now on record in public print.

He turns next to Mr. Lloyd. He says that we offered to support Morris for a safe seat in the House of Assembly and legal pay. The charge is untrue. The proof offered is of the same flimsy nature as the rest of the McGrath proofs. He says that Mr. Lloyd has been to three districts and has had legal patronage from the Bond Government. What proof is there in that of Mr. Lloyd offering to sell himself to the Morris party? The fair inference is quite different. As to the safe seat, Mr. Lloyd has never sought a safe seat. He offered to go and did go on three occasions to fight forlorn hopes. He went to Trinity and wrested a seat held previously by a Tory opponent. He went to Port de Grave and to Fortune Bay and tried to rescue seats held previously by Tories. In the latter quests his mission was not successful as in the Trinity District. Is it likely then that a candidate who has never asked his own party for an easy mark should ask of it from Morris? Moreover, is it probable that a man who never worried about patronage from the Bond Government would begin to insist on it from his opponents? Mr. Lloyd never offered to support the Morris party and was never willing to support the Morris party.

The harping on the Letter List exposes the poverty of McGrath's case. We refused to barter our independence one jot to retain it. During the time we held it we criticized the Morris party freely and frankly. Sir Edward Morris's testimony is conclusive on that point. He complained at Bonne Bay bitterly that we had pursued him in a way unsurpassed in our political annals ever since he took office. Of that period of three and a half years complained about by Morris, six-sevenths of it, viz., three years, included the time we were printing the Letter List. His leader therefore completely disposes of McGrath's charge that we were on the fence, and it also disposes of the first charge we noticed that there has been nothing doing in the Evening Telegram politically. Whatever McGrath affects to assert for the sake of argument, Morris completely demolishes by his bitter attack on us at Bonne Bay. And further, when the test came we showed what we thought of the patronage by sacrificing the Letter List patronage rather than print the Advocate's apology which the Government asked us to do.

No one knows better than Sir Robert Bond that the statement we now quote from McGrath's article is an absolute fabrication and utterly untrue.

"Another fact possibly with a bearing on this matter is that three times last fall when Sir Robert Bond came to town to discuss political issues with his party, he failed to visit the Telegram office, conferred with Editor Lloyd, who had to go to the railway depot to speak with him. 'Might not this be fairly regarded as evidence that the ex-Premier suspects the Telegram people of having tried to sell him out, and no longer trusts them?'"

The charge is grossly untrue, for we have been in close touch with Sir Robert Bond the whole of the time referred to.

The Bruce leaves Port aux Basques on the arrival of Tuesday's express.

The Clyde left Herring Neck at 4.45 p. m. yesterday bound south.

The Ethie was to leave Clarendville at midnight for St. John's.

The Glencoe left Beacom at 5 p. m., yesterday, going east.

The Home leaves Humbermouth bound north this afternoon.

The Invermore is due at Port aux Basques to-day but the line being interrupted there was no report from her.

There was no report of the Solway leaving Sydney to-day.

BOWING SHIPS.

The Portia left Grand Bank at 7 o'clock last evening.

The Prospero left Twillingate at 6.15 a. m. to-day.

Fishery Impeded.

The winter fishery at Rose Blanche and other places on the S. W. Coast has been greatly retarded of late by the stormy weather which has prevailed, and the boats rarely get on the grounds. Unless good fishing is done in February and March this fishery will be short of last year's aggregate catch.
