Mr. F. P. Raynham

WINS DAILY MAIL PRIZE.

Many friends of Mr. F. P.

Raynham, who made an unsuccessful attempt to fly across the Atlantic in his biplane, will be pleased to hear of his success in aeronautics recently held at South Downs,

Kent, England.

(London News, Oct. 21st.)

BRITISH GLIDING CONTEST.

The gliding competition promoted by the Daily Mail and organized by the Royal Aero Club, began at Ifford

Park, Essex, on Monday, and will be continued for the week. The condition laid down for the first prize £1,000 (for the longest time in the air) was that the pilot should remain in the air for at least thirty minutes and be seen by a post within 800 yards of the ground. The condition was fulfilled on the first day by Mr. Anthony Fokker, the Dutch aeroplane designer.

He accomplished a glide of 16 sec. He was never more than a mile from his starting point and at one time rose to a height of 2,000 ft. It remained in the air for 16 min. 16 sec.

The second prize of £500 was awarded to Mr. F. P. Raynham, who was seen by a post within

800 yards of the ground and remained in the air for 16 min.

16 sec. The third prize of £250

was awarded to Mr. F. P. Raynham,

800 yards of the ground and

remained in the air for 16 min.

16 sec. The fourth prize of £100

was awarded to Mr. F. P. Raynham,

800 yards of the ground and

remained in the air for 16 min.

16 sec. The fifth prize of £50

was awarded to Mr. F. P. Raynham,

800 yards of the ground and

remained in the air for 16 min.

16 sec. The sixth prize of £25

was awarded to Mr. F. P. Raynham,

800 yards of the ground and

remained in the air for 16 min.

16 sec. The seventh prize of £10

was awarded to Mr. F. P. Raynham,

800 yards of the ground and

remained in the air for 16 min.

16 sec. The eighth prize of £5

was awarded to Mr. F. P. Raynham,

800 yards of the ground and

GREAT SPECTACLE.

Mr. Raynham used a "plane designed and built in two weeks. He had been in the air with it only five times.

It was a raw, cold morning, and the wind, blowing from the E.N.E., had increased to about 20 miles an hour.

He flew well into the wind along the stretch of the hills at a height varying from 100 to 300 feet above the Beacon. For ten minutes he felt his way in the air, all the way keeping the nose of the "plane into the easterly up-current. He seemed to be getting too far from his starting point, but fears that he might not land with the 800 yards limit were soon dispelled when he came back at a terrific rate and then set off again on his battle with the easterly winds.

By this time the hope that Mr. Raynham would beat Mr. Fokker's 17 minutes became very certain. At the end of the half hour the horn of a motor car told him he was getting to his first point. Eight tense minutes followed, and then great shouts went up for the glider man and a cry of delight came from the spectators.

Now began a still more wonderful flight. Gliding with delightful assurance Mr. Raynham turned to the north, found himself again on the right track, and soared his way northeast by east like a seagull. His maneuvers for the next hour were thrilling and spectacular. Time after time he dipped before the crest.

The end came suddenly. The wind had begun to drop, and one very daring swoop took him too low. He could not recover, and still gallantly fighting, he fell lower and lower until he made a beautiful landing on a green down 400 yards from his starting point.

The magic of the mascot . . .

In a very interesting and copiously illustrated article in "Pearson's Magazine," "The Magic of the Mascot" is discussed by Ignatius Phayre. He writes:

"The tremendous upheaval of a world-war certainly accounts for a vogue in mascots and charms which has become a sort of new cult, or quasi-religion. Who does not remember the cross-legged "Touchwood" an imp of oak, with arms and legs of gold or silver, with a service khaki cap and odd sparkling eyes, which our soldiers declared could see deadly peril coming, and turn it aside from the lucky wearer of the charm? Mr. H. Brandon, the original designer of "Touchwood," sold upwards of 1,500,000 of the amulets during the first two years of war.

"The famous fountain pen with which he signed the Peace of Versailles and still greater triumphs of the Peace with Ireland is a symbol of good fortune to Mr. Lloyd George.

"Like our Prime Minister, the novelist Mr. William Le Queux looks with reverence upon the fountain pen. With this he has written twenty more of these successful books and the pen has carried on many an adventurous tour through Europe, Asia, and Africa. Children are Charles Chaplin's mascots, as they are of a good many football, shooting and other sporting teams.

"Our own Queen Alexandra values as a talisman a certain nugget of gold surmounted by a little hunchback in green enamel. This nugget is hollow; it opens at the touch of a secret spring, revealing a heart-shaped ornament of New Zealand jade. This singular mascot was given to his mother by the late Duke of Clarence. There is hardly a royal personage in Europe who does not possess an amulet.

"During the astonishing run of Chu Chin Chow, it is a fact that on three of the five anniversaries of this phenomenal piece a strange black cat appeared at the stage door, and was promptly installed in a life of luxury.

"All magic," says Sir James Fraser, the great anthropologist, is based upon the law of sympathy—that is to say, on the assumption that things act upon one another through some secret link. Here we have the 'raison d'être' of the mascot."

Bootlegging Methods.

IN BERMUDIAN WATERS.

Hamilton, Bermuda.—This is how some marine bootleggers are believed to operate in Bermudian waters. Such a man comes to Hamilton and engages a steamer of small dimensions, or a motor boat. Then he buys whiskey ashore, and loads his ship to the rails with the product of the Scotch distillers. He clears for a Canadian port and puts to sea. Within a day or so, sometimes within 24 hours, the vessel is back in Hamilton, but without her cargo. Were he pressed for an explanation the bootlegger doubtless would say, with a smile, that he was caught in a storm which washed away his deck load; and that he had even to throw overboard the cases below decks to lighten the ship. Ships entering American ports may not be permitted to carry liquor, but with this law the man with a local charter does not necessarily concern himself. His interest is limited to these waters. He has been known to talk of latter day pirates, but he does not seem particularly to fear them. A "pirate" with a desire to sell a bottle for $12.00 what he can lift at sea for nothing, perhaps, sails from an American port and heads for Bermuda. He lays off and on until he meets a victim in the shape of a small motor boat. He overhauls her, and with a display of force sufficient to warrant a recital on the docks when the motor boat gets back to Hamilton, he transfers the cargo he desires.

Newspapers Protest Killing of Mexicans.

MEXICO CITY.—Local newspapers have made much of the fact that, according to figures published by the department of foreign relations, during the past year only fourteen Americans have met violent death in Mexico compared to twenty-one Mexicans killed in the United States, including thirteen in the state of Texas. The newspapers assert these figures prove that the United States government is not justified in its demands for protection of the lives of its nationals here. It is also reported that during the past few months the Mexican foreign office has made frequent representations regarding alleged killings of Mexicans in the United States.

AUTOMOBILE TIRES.—We have a small shipment of Tires which will be sold at bargain prices. All new. Different sizes. Also, 30 x 3 1/2 Tubes. B. SPURRELL, 365 Water Street. sept15,60d,11

A Courageous Governor

At Buffalo some disorderly radicals in his audience drew from Governor Miller substantially the same declaration that he made at Hornet ten days ago of his determination to enforce the laws and prevent violence without regard to the political consequences to himself. To Buffalo, as to Hornet, he had to send State police to stop the lawlessness that followed on the car strike.

Yes, I want the police. The people of Buffalo knew they were there. Order was restored. Rioting ceased. The lesson was learned and those who are booing have not repeated those acts of disorder. Incendiarism is not to be stopped by saying "Please," but by commanding respect for the law. So long as I am Governor that will be done. To those who do not want that done, and some of them are here tonight, I say do not vote for me, for as long as I am Governor it will be done.

The great audience cheered. The Governor's contempt for votes that can be won by disregard of his first public duty, the preservation of order, has earned him votes all over the State. In a political world composed largely of "duskyfooters" courage is the quality least frequent and most admired in public men. Governor

Miller has it in as high a degree as Grover Cleveland had. Joined to his intellectual power, his strength of will, his energy, his gift of leadership, his ability to make the members of his party in the Legislature co-operate with his policies, this absolute courage in fulfillment of his functions as Governor of the State, bound to consider the general good and refusing to be bulldozed by the representatives of any interest, group or class, ranks him with the greatest Governors New York has had.—New York Times.
