MONDAY EV'G, MARCH 9, 1868.

Some months ago, during the Par- porter of the government and a co liamentary elections, a flaming article vert to "our views." Did he not vote WANTED Thirty Cords of good, sound Beech and Maple Cordwood (green). Apply at appeared in the Advertiser, headed against the government when the ques-"Triumphs upon Triumphs," in which tion of investing the surplus revenue Guelph, 9th March, 1868. 5dwl that excitable and over sanguine sheet was up? Did he not oppose the government on their miserable free land cesses to the Ministerialists as even to grant policy. Did he net also oppose cesses to the Ministerialists as even to astonish their most ardent friends.

The piece was, moreover, pitched in same government when he conscientions and piece was, moreover and piece was, moreover and piece was as a supplied to the piece was as a supplied to the piece was as a supplied to the piece was a s such a high key, and was crammed tiously believed he was doing right, and when he advocated a broader and superlatives, which tumbled over each more liberal policy. other in the most delightful confusion, that it was copied far and wide, and ing man when in his desperation he laughed at as a bit of unmitigated catches at any straw, lays hold of a buncombe, and excruciating high-sentence in the Leader of last Tuesfalutin. But the boasting and bounce contained in that ridiculous productory Mr. Gow has "bearded the lion in tion are completely thrown into the his den, by telling the would be men shade by a still more "triumphant tor of the Reform party, that the day triumph?' which it announces in has gone by when he can lecture its Saturday's issue. In the first place the Advertiser says Mr. Stirton "has supported the ministry through thick and thin." Now this is simply untrue, and any one who watched Mr. Stirton's course during last session can testify to the falsity of the statement. on the North West question, because the opening up of that Territory was united in wedlock. Early on the morning up of that Territory was united in wedlock. Early on the morning up of that tay two young men set out a measure initiated by the Reformers from the residence of the bride's father years ago, which they have persistently held to, and which the government merely took out of their hands. Then again, the Advertiser says Mr. Gow, "with one or two exceptions, has followed the same course"—that is, supported the ministry through thick and thin—"in the Local House, despitch his strong 'Opposition' tendencies." Here again we have an assertion wholly without foundation. The Advertiser must have a remarkably short memory, else it would avoid making such stupid blunders. No later than the 9th of January, when speaking of the debate on the Address in the Provincial Legislature, the Advertiser took Mr., Gow to task for opposing the patent combination.
